Mrs. Carrie Nation Makes Determined ...

But For It Must ... FUL SNOW.

A Wife Says:

"We have four children. With the first three I suffered almost unbearable pains from 12 to 24 hours, and had to be placed under the influence of chloroform. I used three bottles of Mother's Friend before our last child came, which is a strong, fat and healthy boy, doing my housework up to within two hours of birth, and suffered but a few hard pains. This liniment is the grandest remedy ever made."

Mother's Friend

will do for every woman what it did for the Minnesota mother who writes the above letter. Not to use it during pregnancy is a mistake to be paid for in pain and suffering. Mother's Friend equips the patient with a strong body and clear intellect, which in turn are imparted to the child. It relaxes the muscles and allows them to expand. It relieves morning sickness and nervousness. It puts all the organs concerned in perfect condition for the final hour, so that the actual labor is short and practically painless. Danger of rising or hard breasts is altogether avoided, and recovery is merely a matter of a few days.

Miss Jessie Pickett, of Tennessee, has finished a quilt which contains 36,000 pieces, and there are 50 stitches to the pieces, making 1,800,000 stitches made by the young lady, over two years being required to complete the work.

Spring coughs are especially dangerous and unless cured at once, serious results often follow. One Minute Cough Cure acts like magic. It is not a common mixture but is a high grade remedy. Smith, Yager & Falk. tf

Nat Reiss is determined to give the people their full miner's worth this season. With Hoy's "A Trip to Trumptown" he carries forty people, two brass bands and a mammoth orchestra sixteen specialty artists, and travels in his own special train of cars.

Adam Schrutski, a Cincinnati tailor, is afflicted with a peculiar disease that is a puzzler to the medical fraternity, but however, they have named it mollitissossium. It's a bone-break disease, and in the last eight years the victim has had his legs and arms broken 32 times. If he is ever so careful the slightest missstep will break his leg and his arm is as easily broken.

You will waste time if you try to cure indigestion or dyspepsia by starving yourself. That only makes it worse when you do eat heartily. You always need plenty of good food properly digested. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the result of years of scientific research for something that would digest not only some elements of food but every kind. And it is the one remedy that will do it. How to Increase Your Beauty.

Beauty and health go hand in hand. The healthier you are the prettier you will get. One of the greatest detriments to good health is constipation. Constipation causes pimples sores, eruptions, moth patches, liver spots, sallow skin, blood poison, sick headache, etc. You cannot be beautiful unless you are well, healthy and happy. The only known cure for constipation is Bailey's Laxative Tablets. Small and chocolate coated. They produce natural movements, and work while you sleep. Make you feel active and energetic. Price 10 and 25 cents. Made by Lakeside Med. Co., Chicago. Sold by Page Blackburn.

"What are you crying about?" asked a kind hearted stranger of a lad standing in front of a newspaper office, weeping as if his heart would break. "Oh, pa's gone up to whip the editor." MURDER OF FIVE CHILDREN.

A French Town Horrified By Terrible Crime of Robbers.

Chartres, France, April 28.—This town has been horrified by the murder of five children and the attempted murder of their father, a farmer named Briere, residing in the neighborhood of Chartres. Two tramps entered the farmhouse in the absence of Briere, killed four girls, aged 14, 11, 5 and 4, and a boy 7 years old, with knives and cudgels, while they were in bed and apparently asleep. Briere returned while the murderers were robbing the house. They heard him enter the courtyard, attacked him, and after a desperate struggle left him for dead with four stab wounds in the head. The murderers then escaped with 1,800 francs and a number of objects of value.

Inside the farmhouse there was a ghastly spectacle. The bedrooms were bespattered with blood and brains. The murderers had battered out the children's brains and then cut their throats. The little girl of 5 years of age had evidently waked up, for she was found in her cot with her arms outstretched as though appealing for mercy. The watchdog was killed with a bludgeon. Briere, when he was attacked by the two murderers, shouted for help during his struggle, but the nearest neighbor was stone deaf and did not hear his cries. The gendarmes are scouring the country for the murderers.

SITUATION IN MANCHURIA.

Renewed Military Activity Is Giving Russia a Job.

St. Petersburg, April 28.—Renewed activity is beginning in Manchuria. Chinese troops are strongly intrenched at three points around Mukden. They are armed with good Mauser rifles and have 30 Krupp guns.

To the eastward of Mukden, near Turchansen, there are 12,000 men under the chief Boxer, General Lutanse. To the northwest, near Kulu, there are 6,000 Chinese under the former governor of Mukden. To the eastward in Mongolia and near the Ia Shan mountain, there are 9,000 more under the Chinese general Schu.

Admiral Alexieff has accordingly organized an expedition under General Berpinsky, consisting of two regiments and five sotnias of Cossacks, 16 guns and a body of volunteers to operate against the three points mentioned. The first movement was successfully carried out in the beginning of April. Kulu, which is 250 kilometers from Mukden, was stormed and the ex-governor of Mukden was taken prisoner. In this action the Russians had 13 men killed and four officers and 18 men wounded. The advance toward the Turchansen position was then begun.

Owing to the departure of most of the Russian troops from Mukden, the latter city has become very unsafe. Almost nightly Russian sentinels are found shot in the back. The situation in southern Manchuria is disquieting, and another advance of Russian troops will be necessary in the early spring.

TOO HIGHLY COLORED

Gen. MacArthur Makes a Report on the Commissary Frauds.

Washington, April 29.—The following cablegram has been made public at the war department:

Manila, April 26.—Adjutant General, Washington: With reference to your telegram of 20th, gross report grossly exaggerated, unknowing; matters therein touched upon regarding officers satisfactory department fully investigated. Proceedings marked by transport Sherman. Regarding theft commissary stores amount which grossly exaggerated by gross reports immediate drastic measures already been applied. Three officers and number enlisted men being tried courtmartial. Number others military commission. MacArthur.

No statement was made that the report of General MacArthur was satisfactory, although it has been the theory at the war department that the reports were exaggerated. At the same time there is cause for regret that even under the best construction that can be put upon the dispatch, three officers and a number of enlisted men and civilians have conducted themselves in such a manner as to necessitate a courtmartial or a trial by commission in the cases of the civilians.

Britain's New Budget.

London, April 29.—The exceptional interest taken in this year's budget was exhibited by the crowded house of commons when it reassembled yesterday. The attendance of members was unusually large, while the appearance of the galleries testified to the deep interest of the public in the fresh tax proposals required to meet the expenditures in 1901-1902, which totals £187,602,000, irrespective of war charges, this being an increase of £22,301,000 over last year. The national fortune sheet for 1900-1901 stands as follows: Revenue, £139,257,000; expenditure, £168,302,000; net deficit, £29,045,000.

Quarantine Against Sheep.

Washington, April 29.—In the United States supreme court Justice Brewer has handed down an opinion in the case of Rasmussen vs. the State of Nevada, in which he affirmed the constitutionality of the law of the state of Idaho, authorizing a quarantine against sheep in outside states supposed to be affected by an infectious disease.

IT MADE HIM A HERO.

AN ACT THAT BROUGHT A LAWYER FAME AND FORTUNE.

It Looked Like an Exhibition of Pure Nerve and Daring, but in Reality It Was Simply an Outcome of His Nearsightedness.

"A person who enjoys good eyesight," said a man who most decidedly does not, "would be greatly astonished to know how little is seen by those who are nearsighted even in a moderate degree. The average shortsighted man, of whom there are hundreds in every large city, sees nothing distinctly more than a foot away from his nose. Beyond that distance the outline of objects becomes hazy and indistinct, growing rapidly more and more so until everything is finally merged into one general blur. The faces of people across the street are mere pink blotches, their figures are destitute of detail, signs are indecipherable 30 feet away, and the whole movement of traffic and passing show of the thoroughfare is a misty panorama, in which nothing much smaller than a cab can be definitely distinguished.

"Of course a nearsighted person can see as well as anybody through properly fitted glasses, but a great many folks regard them as such a disfigurement that they prefer to do without their aid. That kind of pride is certainly very foolish because it causes one to miss at least nine-tenths of what is going on, to say nothing of being an open invitation to accident. Yet, oddly enough, I know of a case in which it actually saved a man's life and laid the foundation of a fortune.

"The hero of the episode was a lawyer in a city in Ohio where I spent my boyhood. He was beyond middle age at the time, but was straight as an arrow and a decidedly handsome, soldierly looking personage. These good looks of his were his weak point, and although he was extremely nearsighted he was vain enough to deny himself glasses and kept the fact of his infirmity a secret. The consequence of this folly was a wide reputation for haughtiness, as he rarely recognized anybody on the street, and it undoubtedly damaged him in his practice. At any rate, he had never made anything more than a very modest living when the curious incident I have in mind occurred.

"The city government had been for a long time under ring rule," continued the story teller, "and it finally became so bad that the decent people revolted and organized a reform movement. The good looking lawyer—call him Colonel Jones for convenience—was one of the reformers, and, among other things, he made himself active in securing indictments against a number of gambling house keepers.

"The boss ringster of the place was a typical bully and ward politician named Harding, who was financially interested in several of the games and naturally furious at any interference. He was a giant physically, he would fight at the drop of a hat, and the personal fear he inspired was really the secret of his influence. After the gambling indictments were found he proceeded to use his 'pull' to have them pigeonholed, and, learning what was going on, Colonel Jones was rash enough to write a newspaper card in which he scored the authorities for allowing such a ruffian to defeat the ends of justice.

"The colonel looked like a soldier, but he was really a very bland and peaceable gentleman, and he never dreamed that his little effusion would get him into personal difficulty. On the morning the card appeared he was walking calmly to his office when Harding rushed out of a bar across the street, called him by name and at the same time leveled a six shooter at his head. At that distance all coons looked alike to the nearsighted lawyer, and, turning in the direction of the voice, he made out the vague figure of a man with outstretched arm apparently beckoning him to come over.

"A little surprised, but still perfectly placid, he started to cross the street. Harding glared at him in amazement and once or twice was on the point of pulling the trigger, but the spectacle of that serene and dignified figure calmly advancing straight on the muzzle of the gun was too much for his nerves, and before the colonel traversed half the distance he dropped the weapon and ignominiously fled.

"Needless to say, the episode made a tremendous sensation, and Jones, who had sense enough to hold his tongue, was the popular hero of the hour. Harding, on the contrary, was ruined, for his prestige had disappeared like a flash of lightning, and, unable to stand the disgrace of the affair, he quietly sold out his belongings and left the city. That broke the back of the ring, the reformers went into control, and the colonel was elected mayor by a tremendous majority. He served two terms, built up one of the biggest law practices in that part of the state and died worth nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

"In explanation of my inside knowledge of the case I don't mind saying that he was a distant relative of mine, and in the family circle, where his nearsightedness was well known, he owned up to the facts as a good joke. He said he had a vague idea when he started across the street that Harding was a former client who had promised to pay him a fee that morning."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Brute Tatum—I asked you when I moved this place if you had ever been troubled by chicken thieves, and you said no. Every one of my chickens was stolen last night, and I am told that the neighborhood has been infested with chicken thieves for years.

He Hacked Off His Leg.

Caught in a bear trap on the banks of the Athabasca, near Milford, Me., John McLeod, a lumber scaler, was obliged to take out his jackknife and cut off his leg. The trap was too heavy to move and was sprung in such a way that he could not reach over and release it. He was far from any human being, and the only way out of it seemed to be to cut off the leg.

That was done easily, because the leg upon which he operated was of wood. But when he stumped back to camp it made him mad to hear the jeers of the French-Canadian cook of the lumber crew.

"Why you no take off you whole wood laig, ah? You get out um thrap and no spile you wood laig 'tall, ah?"

Such a way out of his difficulty had not occurred to McLeod before.

Skill In Throwing Off Mail Bags.

The busiest clerk in any crew or car is the one who is detailed to receive and throw off the sacks and pouches. To lift a heavy mail sack and throw it from a car moving at the rate of a mile a minute is a matter of good target shooting. "Looks easy enough," commented one of the veteran clerks at the letter case, "and it does seem as if a man should be able to hit a station platform without much difficulty, but you see that station is passed and gone in about one second. Then, the suction of a train running at this speed is something terrific, and until the knack of throwing a pouch is learned a man is liable to feed the wheels with a few letters."—Saturday Evening Post.

Origin of the Word Sterling.

The origin of the word "sterling" is very curious. Among the early minters of coin in northern Europe were the dwellers of eastern Germany. They were so skillful in their calling that numbers of them were invited to England to manufacture the metal money of the kingdom. The strangers were known as "easterlings." After a time the word became "sterling," and in this abbreviated form it has come to imply what is genuine in money, plate or character.

A Cheese Roast.

Those who insist upon eating cheese should take the precaution to cook it thoroughly before eating. It is for this reason that some people who are unable to eat raw cheese find themselves able to eat toasted cheese without difficulty. Toasting the cheese does not, however, increase its digestibility, but rather the reverse. Its beneficial effect, if any, is from the destruction of the virulent microbes which are present and which are capable of giving rise to symptoms even more distressing than those of ordinary indigestion. The best method of dealing with cheese is to give it to the pigs, as it is nothing more or less than decayed milk, fit only for a scavenger diet.—Sanitary and Municipal Engineering.
