Children Cry

FOR FLETCHER'S

CASTORIA

Dr. D. D. Clark, who Friday was summoned to Delphos, Ohio, and who made a hurried trip to that place, as did Dr. McOscar, who was summoned from Fort Wayne, and who, upon arrival there performed an operation upon John McCabe, who had been kicked in the abdomen by a horse on last Tuesday, received a telephone message this morning that he had died. He had been working in the field on last Tuesday, when one of the horses with which he had been working became unruly, and while trying to manage the animal was kicked in such a way that his intestines and other organs had been terribly mangled and his whole inside lay open. He was treated by home physicians, who did what they could, but later developments showed that only by submitting to an operation, would perhaps save him. He was taken to the hospital department of the county infirmary, which is in charge of his brother-in-law, and the ordeal was at once performed. His whole system had been closed up, and his condition at first sight formed an almost impossible cure to the doctors. Dr. Brundage of Delphos and Dr. Beery of Middlebury were also in attendance and lent their aid to the afflicted man. He came out from under the influence of the anaesthetic all right, having withstood the ordeal very well, but was so weak that nothing could be foretold regarding the outcome. Previous to this he had been in the best of health, having only last November underwent an operation by the same physicians, but grew strong and performed more labor than at any time before.

He was a man well liked by the people of Delphos, held in high esteem, and the sad misfortune which had befallen him, and later death itself, came as a shock to the citizens of that place. He was a single man, about fifty years old and leaves several brothers, with his many friends, to mourn their loss. No funeral arrangements are as yet been made.

DIED THURSDAY.

William Follin Passed Away at Home in Fort Wayne.

William Follin, one of Fort Wayne's citizens and a well known resident of that city, passed away at his home on Hoffman street Thursday morning, death following after a year's illness from Bright's disease. He was past sixty-six years of age, a veteran of the Civil war, having served in Company D of the Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He was born and reared in Darke county, Ohio, in 1845, and until a year ago resided in St. Joseph county, Mich., coming to Fort Wayne to reside. Since then he has been retired and made Ft. Wayne his home. Surviving he leaves a wife and son, William, of that city and a daughter, Mrs. Barton Bagee, of this county. He was twice married, his former wife and a daughter having preceded him in death.

Jacob Martin, proprietor of the People's restaurant, is coming more to the front each day toward the better carrying out of his business, the latest improvement added to his stand and in the bake shop department being a new electric dough-mixer, which is already in operation and doing its part toward the turning out of the nice fat brown loaves. It is of the famous triumph make, manufactured at Cincinnati, Ohio, and is the only machine mixer in the city. It has a capacity for turning out six hundred and fifty loaves of bread each day and the batter is completely mixed in twelve-minutes, and in more perfect condition than if performed by hand. Besides, in addition to the making of bread, it saves much time to the help, as mixing by hand requires from a half to three quarters of an hour. It was something of which Mr. Martin has been much in need, and the new addition will mean much to him in various ways, and especially so when a hurry-up call will be demanded.

MAIL BAGS ARE COSTLY.

Uncle Sam has twenty-eight different kinds of mail bags in service and they range in cost from 22 cents to $11.56 each. They are mail pouches for almost every conceivable use and you can ship almost anything that comes within the postal regulations with a minimum of loss and breakage. Probably the most peculiar mail bag is the one arranged for carrying bees. Sending bees by mail was a difficult operation before the "bee bag" was adopted. Usually the bees arrived at their destination dead or so exhausted that they were of little use. Now these little honey-makers can be shipped by mail several thousand miles in the "bee bag" without suffering and can obtain air and a good supply of food during their transit. Mail bags are made of various materials. The cheapest are of cotton and the most costly are of leather.

Two grown horses instantly killed, and one cost so badly injured that it was shot today, is the several hundred dollar loss of Herman Bultemeier, a prominent farmer living north of this city, a mile and a half north of St. John's, the horses having broken out of the barnyard and strayed down the road, thence onto the interurban track, where they were struck about 12 o'clock Friday night by the Decatur-bound car leaving Ft. Wayne at 11 o'clock, in charge of Motorman Homer Ruhl and Conductor Jesse Schug. The interurban car was filled with passengers homeward bound from the show and everything went along smoothly until suddenly a shock was felt that caused a lurching of passengers, though none were thrown from their seats. The pilot was broken as was the headlight. The car was run back to the scene ofthe accident when an examination revealed the bodies of the horses lying along the side of the track. One of the horses was badly mangled, the entrails being exposed. Other injuries, including broken legs, were suffered, and death must have been instantaneous. The colt gave signs of life and was dragged into a better position, and it became ableto lift its head, but was shot this morning when the full extent of its injuries were determined. It was later taken home. Mr. Bultemeier lives about three-quarters of a mile from the track, on a road that crosses the interurban and its parallel highway, at right angles. He stated to the interurban people that the horses were in the barnyard and had probably broken out and strayed down the road and onto the track.

THE 101 RANCH WILD WEST.

The cowboy as pictured in fiction and on caucas is far different from the real cowboy as he is seen with the 101 Ranch Real Wild West show which is to be here August 3rd. The demand for western characters has caused many to affect the chappels and neck handkerchief in imitation of the real cowboy, but there are many things and characteristics about the cowboy of the ranch and plains that the would-be cowboy cannot imitate. He cannot imitate the loping gate of the genuine cow herder, nor can he have the same pair of beautifully bowed legs. All cowboys are bow-legged. This is a fact not known to everybody, but a fact nevertheless. When you see a man or boy in a suit of cowboy clothes and he is straight of carriage and you cannot see light between his knees you may well put him down at once as a counterfeit and you will not be wronging him at all. They are not born bow-legged, but in infancy they are in the saddle and the best part of their lives are spent with the horse under them. It is the constant straddling of the horse that puts the curve in their legs and you will not find one cowboy on the great 101 Ranch, at Bliss, Oklahoma, who is not bent in the legs.

If you see a cowboy with his handkerchief tied in the front you can also put him down for a base imitation of the real goods. It is not a matter of choice for the cowboy to wear his handkerchief around his neck. It is almost compulsory to tie it behind and not under the chin. He wears it around his neck because it is easier to get at, and ties it behind so that the larger portion is bagged in front and when in a storm or fast riding he has but to drop his chin into the bag-like fold and his face is immediately protected. Experience has made him an expert and with two motions he can drop his face on his breast and when he elevates it the handkerchief has been picked up around the face and shields it to the eyes. Any of the cowboys with the 101 Ranch Wild West show, while riding at breakneck speed can roll a cigarette with one hand and hold the bridle with the other. This is not considered any accomplishment but a necessity, for if the cowboy could not do it, there would be many times when he would not smoke. The real cowboy is a cowboy pure and simple, while the counterfeit is a cowboy only in dress. Cowboys do not graduate in the east.

Jesse Ernsberger of Celina, Ohio, of the firm of Ernsberger Brothers & Moses, proprietors of the greenhouse of this city, was here Saturday and closed the contract by which Mr. H. S. Moses, who has been a partner and manager of the firm and plant for the past four years, takes over the entire management, he to become sole owner September 1st. Mr. Moses also becomes owner of the greenhouse residence, in which he has resided since he has lived in this city, purchasing this from J. A. Ernsberger. The local greenhouse was established here nine years ago by the Ernsbergers, and has prospered and grown much, becoming one of the best-paying businesses of the city. September 1st, another change will take place, Mr. Moses at that time to sell to his nephew, Dale Moses, son of Mr. James Moses, of north of the city, a three-fifths interest in the plant. Dale is a clean young man of excellent personal characteristics, as well as excellent business qualities, and will be a valuable assistant to his uncle.

WELL CASING FALLS.

Levi Mumma, of North Eleventh street, the well known well driller, is carrying his right arm in a sling and will be disabled for some time, the result of an accident in which his arm was broken at the wrist, while on duty. He was engaged in drilling a well on the Thieme farm in Union township, when in some way the casing fell about twenty feet, striking him on the arm and breaking the bone at the wrist. The accident is a very painful one.

DEPOT ON FIRE.

The Clover Leaf depot at Holgate, Henry county, located on the east side of the track, near the B. & O. crossing, caught fire, but the flames were extinguished by the village fire department with small loss. Some time later an explosion occurred from a smoldering fire in the building, probably from the dust accumulation, and this time the fire completed its work. The building, a frame structure, with part of the contents, was destroyed. The B. & O. tower was also slightly burned.—Frankfort Crescent.

The Indiana Lighting company Saturday added some new fixtures to their holder establishment, which will be much more beneficial to them in the way of furnishing gas to their many patrons here. A fresh coat of pitch was recently added to the large tank and it also now presents a better appearance in the way of keeping up things.
