From New York.

NEW YORK, 31.—The Herald's correspondent writing from near Deep Bottom 28th, says that prisoners report that when it was discovered that the second corps was north of the James, the enemy immediately commenced pouring in reinforcements both from Petersburg and Richmond. Gen Lee was taken entirely by surprise and was obliged to use the utmost dispatch to rush troops to the threatened point.

During the night the enemy continued strengthening the splendid natural position he held, which in the morning was found, together with the numerous reinforcements, too strong to assail.

All the roads to Richmond, between the James and White Oak Swamp were strongly defended.

Last evening Merritt's brigade of cavalry drove Hampton's troops from an important point on the Central road, which was held until 10 A. M. next day, when the rebels came out in three brigades of infantry, making a steady assault on Merritt's force, who had dismounted.

After falling back in order to a reserve brigade, both delivered a destructive volley and then charged.

The rebels broke and fled in confusion, leaving their dead and wounded on the field.

At the same time Gen. Griggs' division became engaged at another point with a superior force, and the fighting was severe, Davis' brigade receiving the largest share. He was obliged to yield a portion of the ground and lost one gun, but soon rallied, checked the advance of the rebels, and finally drove them back.

Gen Kautz took possession of Malvern Hill, which had been abandoned by the rebels to protect one of the Richmond roads.

General Gibson, after the repulse of the rebels, relieved the cavalry with his infantry and skirmished with the enemy at night and took up a new position.

Lieut Fletcher, of the 20th Massachusetts, and H. Fisher, of General Mott's staff, are supposed to be captured.

Captain McEwan of General Barlow's staff, is killed or captured.

The Mendota did good service during the engagement.

These operations had the effect of drawing a large force from Petersburg, and greatly alarming Lee.

The Richmond Examiner, in speaking of the fight on the 26th, near New Market, acknowledges a defeat, and the loss of four 20 pound Parrotts.

It also says Grant is to attack three points simultaneously—Deep Bottom, Fort Drury, and Petersburg.

NEW YORK, August 1.—The morning papers have nothing later from Petersburg than our dispatches yesterday, and but few additional details. The following is all there is of interest:

The Times' special before Petersburg on July 30, says:

As soon after daybreak as it was practicable for troops to move in co operation, an immense mine reaching far away under the enemy's line of earthworks, in front of Burnside's corps, was fired.

The explosion was the signal for the discharge of every piece of artillery we have in position from the Appomattox to our extreme left.

The effect was magnificent; ninety-five pieces of ordnance was fired simultaneously that it seemed as if they might have been discharged by the pull of one lanyard.

The firing thus fiercely opened was kept up in the same manner, with scarcely a perceptible lull, for at least an hour and a half, when it slackened to some extent.

The result of the explosion of the mine was almost to annihilate one regiment and burying three guns.

Under cover of the artillery and taking advantage of the suddenness of the assault, the 9th corps advanced, taking possession of the works through the gap made by the explosion, and driving the enemy to their second line, which line the hill tops east of the town.

Nineteen of the 22d South Carolina, buried by the exposion, have been dug out. They are badly bruised and scratched, and some of them doubtless mortally wounded.

The attack they pronounce a surprise.

The mine was 400 feet long, constructed with two galleries diverging from the main passage, making three chambers, in which a train of powder fifteen inches wide and deep was laid.

The effect of the explosion was very disastrous.

The grandeur of the artillery firing has never been surpassed.

The enemy's artillery played but feebly.

A very few minutes elapsed before the rebel lines were entirely shut from view by banks of smoke.

Our gunners could only be guided in their work by having obtained proper range before.

Many shells from the front of the 18th corps must have struck far into the streets of Petersburg from that direction.

A heavy column of black arose soon after opening, evidently from burning building.

After the rebel lines had been pierced, they made a sudden movement to their left and suffered heavily from an enfilading fire.

General Sedler's division of Burnside's corps led the attack, the 14th New York heavy artillery having the advance.

About 100 prisoners so far have been brought into Burnside's headquarters.

Cannonading is still hot and the rebels hold their position obstinately.

Our infantry have just received orders to advance.

The Herald's special says:

The mine was to have been sprung at 3 o'clock this morning and Grant accompanied by his staff, reached Burnside's headquarter about that hour, and Meade and staff arrived at the same headquarters.

The appointed hour for the explosion of the mine arrived but for some reson did not take effect.

The troops had been placed in position to move at the first signal.

The entire 2d corps was held in reserve, but up the the hour of writing this dispatch they had not been called into action.

At 4 o'clock a cloud of dust was seen rising from the rebel entrenchments. This was followed by a general upheaving of earthworks, reaching probably fifty feet.

The whole mass looked like a huge fountain of earth and dust and formed a most imposing spectacle.

Simultaneously with this explosion our batteries along the line opened a most murderous and destructive fire on the rebel's breastworks, and infantry with deafening cheers rushed into the entrenchments of the enemy.

Constant cannonading lasting now one hour and twenty minutes had been going on at six o'clock.

Our valiant troops had captured and occupied the first line of the rebel entrenchments.

Prisoners are constantly arriving from the front; and our wounded are also coming in.

They report the slaughter inflicted upon the enemy by explosion and accurate range of our shells from guns and mortars as terrible in the extreme.

So far the victory is ours. The air is thick with flying missiles.

We are pushing the enemy steadily and surely and occupying his fortifications.

The World's special says:

The movement of the 3d corps across the James river was a feint, as they were brought back during the darkness of Friday night to their old position.

Sheridan with a large force is operating around the rebel right. Important results anticipated.

The Word's special from Frederick says:

No rebel infantry force has yet crossed the Potomac.

Three regiments of cavalry, with five pieces of artillery, penetrated Pennsylvania as far as Chambersburg, and perhaps beyond.

Our cavalry, under Colonel Lowell, hold the passes of South Mountain and Boonsboro; also, the enemy has recrossed the Potomac and no rebel force in Maryland.

From Gen. Grant's Army.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, July 30, P. M.

Reports just in say that we have possession of the entire first line of the rebel works, and a large number of prisoners.

Our loss in the charge was severe.

Our men had to cross an open field to reach the rebels.

The troops engaged were the 9th corps and the 18th corps supporting it—the 2d and 5th corps in reserve.

The firing is still going on with great fury.

Generals Grant and Meade, with all the corps Generals, are at the front, watching the progress of affairs.

The Tribune's special dated Headquarters Army of the Potomac, in front of Petersburg, July 30, says:

The grand conflict commenced in earnest at daylight this morning.

A loud and continuous roar of cannon all along the lines startled the whole country from its slumbers, and spreading throughout the army the wildest excitement and enthusiasm.

Gen. Grant's new flank movement entirely changed the aspect of affairs here. By it his right was thrown on the north side of James river, within ten miles of Richmond, enabling him to switch his entire force on either side of the river in a very few hours, and compelling the enemy to cover Richmond with a large force, as well as Petersburg and the exterior line, which they could not do and have to risk a general engagement at the same time.

The artillery duel progresses magnificently at this hour. The musketry have not yet come into action, but the whole army is under arms and in line of battle.

From Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, August 1.—A letter from Fortress Monroe says:

Later advices from the front show that we were unable to hold all the ground gained in the assault on Saturday, it being mostly commanded by an inner line, and that the works taken by our forces were recaptured by the enemy.

We took five hundred prisoners in the assault.

The loss on both sides is probably from 4,000 to 5,000.

Reports from Gettysburg and Emmettsburg represent that a panic exists there and throughout that country, the people believing the rebels are approaching in large force.

This morning the train from Frederick came in as usual, and brings the report that great excitement prevails there on account of Hunter's order for the expulsion of rebel sympathisers beyond our lines.

The train from Sandy Hook arrived this morning. No rebels on the road.

From Joliet.

JOLIET, ILL., July 31.—The German Catholic Church here was struck by lightning to day during service. Five persons were instantly killed, and fourteen severely injured, three of whom have since died.
