OFFICE OF THE INDIANAPOLIS NEWS,
November 1, 1879.

The actual circulation of The Indianapolis Daily News for nine months ending yesterday, was an average of 10,888 copies for each day.
W. J. RICHARDS,
Advertising manager.
Subscribed and sworn before me this 1st day of November, 1879. JAMES GREENE,
[L. S.] Notary public.

Fred. Miller and Anna Schoval have been licensed to marry.

Judge Heller last evening sentenced Emma Hawkins to the reformatory for one year, for receiving stolen goods.

F. W. Hamilton has taken a desk in the county auditor's office, and looks, as he doubtless feels, at home.

Judge Elliott still carries the first stop watch brought to Indianapolis, now almost a quarter of a century ago.

A woman made affidavit before Squire Thompson, this morning, to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors for one year.

The south drive way of the White river bridge on Washington street will be opened for travel to-morrow with a new floor.

The county commissioners visited the jail to-day, and will make some necessary repairs and lay in a stock of clothing for the winter.

Bishop Chatard returned to-day from St. Mary's of the Woods, after his regular episcopal visits to Brazil and Terre Haute, closing the work for the year.

It is suggested that rail road managers put thimble whistles on their locomotives, to carry out the provisions of the whistling law, which has been held to be constitutional.

M. T. Allardt, architect, who has been making drawings at Kingan's pork house, had his tools, about $40 worth, over the retail market, and they were all destroyed by the fire.

R. M. Smock and wife celebrated their wooden wedding last night at 549 Central avenue, and this morning the house looks like a branch wareroom of the Udell wooden ware company.

A meeting of the grand temperance council of Indiana will be held in the city next Thursday, to perfect the general organization and effect an alliance among all the various organizations in the state.

Yesterday afternoon James Cain, a rolling mill hand, went into Kittenbach's saloon, opposite the court house, threatening to kill the proprietor. Patrolman Marshall locked him up to prevent mischief.

Postmaster Holloway telegraphs from Galena that General Grant will visit neither Washington nor Indianapolis on the 20th of November, but will come to this city between the 10th and 15th of December.

Emma E. Griffiths, and Elizabeth Gilbert, who were injured on the Vandalia rail road October 25th by being caught beween cars at the Kentucky avenue crossing, have brought suit to recover $5,000 damages.

Father D. O'Donaghue, secretary of Bishop Chatard will leave for Europe next Thursday. His health is bad and he purposes wintering in France or Italy, and return next May after a short tour through the British Isles.

V. T. Malott, general manager of the Indianapolis, Peru & Chicago road, has contracted with the Cambridge City car works for 100 box cars, to be delivered in 50 days, to be used in the local business of the road.

An oratorical contest will take place January 12, among the students of the law school, to determine who shall deliver the orations at commencement. There are a number of good speakers among the pupils.

Albert Scott and Thomas Davis, the men arrested last night on suspicion of being the men who confidenced the young Kentuckian out of $25 yesterday, were released from custody this morning on promise to leave town

The postponement of the visit of General Grant to this city has awakened a new interest in the excursion to Chicago next Thursday, and tickets at the special rate are being disposed of rapidly by H. C. Holloway, at the post-office.

J. W. Sherwood, master of transportation of the I. C. & L., has been appointed superintendent of the Cincinnati, Lafayette & Chicago road, which is henceforth to be known in connection with the I. C. & L., and will have train despatchers' headquarters in this city.

The directors of the Indianapolis and Delphi railroad company, with a number of persons living on the proposed line, went out on a special train to Brightwood to-day at 1 p. m., to look at the surroundings, it being proposed to use one rail of the Bee line. The meeting will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

An attorney said this morning, referring to the abuse of the jury system, exposed in The News yesterday, that unless a radical change was made the in manner of selecting juries, as well as an improvement in their composition, the matter would be investigated in a way that would "make Rome howl."

Mrs. Mary Wallace, the mother of the emperor of the hoodlums, attempted self-destruction last evening at 6 o'clock, at the Union depot, by throwing herself in front of a J. M. & I. locomotive. Express Messenger Callavan pulled her from the track just as the train was about running over her. Patrolman Clary lodged her at the station house as a drunk.

In building the bridge over the canal on Walnut street the street commissioner will slant the iron from the middle to the ends, instead of running it up from one end to the other. The lop-sided appearance given to those bridges already built out of the iron taken from the Delaware street viaduct, is due to the manner of building, and it is to improve on this that the sides of the Walnut street bridge will be changed.

Sidewalk solicitors do not confine themselves to Illinois street, but now make life a burden to countrymen and other strangers who traverse Washington street and other thoroughfares. These steerers lie in wait and pounce upon strangers with the greatest ferocity, holding on to the coat collar of the stranger, who struggles to get away and successfully landing him in some clothing house, shoe store or restaurant. The nuisance has grown to such proportions that the city council should interfere to abate it.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS.

Attorney General Woollen's Opinion as to the Time They May be Collected—Judge Elliott's Opinion in a Case Submitted to Him.

The matter of making special, or treasurer's assessments of property withheld from taxation is attracting considerable attention throughout the state now, from the fact that in many counties "tax detectives" are employed to discover and list property not returned by the owner. Attorney General Woollen has written the following to C. P. Ferguson, of Charleston, Clarke county, in reply to inquiries on this subject:

I have no doubt but that the treasurer, uner section 94, has a right to assess any omitted property without regard to time, except perhaps he could not go back of the act of 1872. There is no presumption in favor of the construction that the legislature intended to release taxes upon property, and section 94 is general in its terms, and sections 261 and 264 are restricted to a certain mode of placing them on the duplicate. I have had my attention called to this before, and the foregoing is the opinion I have formed on the subject.

A case involving this point was tried in the superior court in September, S. Hanway, suing Harris Tyner, to recover taxes on an assessment made by the treasurer of Tipton county. Judge Elliott held that such an assessment can only be valid when made in the manner and within the time designated by the law. A substantial compliance with the statute must be shown to entitle the plaintiff to recover. Section 263 of the assessment law is an express limitation of the power to make special assessments; section 263. When any such special assessment is not returned to the county treasurer on or before the 1st of March next after it is due, the same may be returned on or before the 1st of March succeeding the year; and if not then returned it shall be considered barred, unless return is prevented by an injunction or order," etc. It is a familiar rule of construction that all words must, if possible, be given effect. It is not only possible to give these words effect, but it is very apparent the legislature intended they should have effect. That there should be some limitation upon the power to go back and assess unlisted property is quite apparent, and the legislature have fixed the limitation at the period designated in their action. The opinion further says that the repeal of all former acts completely destroys the right to collect taxes and enable by former laws.

Board of Alderman.

At the meeting of the board of alderman last night the petition of the property owners in the vicinity of Highland and Market streets, asking for a change of grade was referred to the judiciary committee, civil engineer and city attorney. The routine business of the council was concurred in. An invitation was read asking the board to participate in the ceremonies of the unveiling of the Thomas manument at Washington on the 20th. Received with thanks. The board refused to recede from its nomination for committee clerk, and struck from the files president Ridenour's ordinance to repeal the committee clerk ordinance. The ordinance granting the I. D. and S. railroad the right to lay a double track into the city was repealed by an unanimous vote.

The Governor's Temperance Union.

Edward Market, convicted of burglary and grand larceny in the Elkhart civil circuit court, and sent to the penitentiary for five years from March 28, 1876, was pardoned by the governor this morning after serving three years and seven months. Four of his companions in the crime for which he suffered, had been sent for one and two years, and the pardon was granted on the petition of the judge who tried the case, and others, that justice had not been impartial. He came out pledged to abstain from the use of intoxicating drinks, and makes the fifth member of the governor's temperance society.

Other Good Men.

A News reporter met a democrat this morning who says he has become tired of all this talk about Mr. Hendricks being the only candidate for the presidency the democracy of Indiana can produce. "Why," said he, "we have W. H. English, Joseph E. McDonald and several others—the woods are full of 'em. It reminds me of the dissatisfied darkey criticising his pastor. 'He's all de time a talkin' 'bout John de Baptis'—John de Baptis'—John de Baptis'. I tell you Nicodemus was a good man, too.'"

DISASTROUS FIRE.

Kingan's Retail Meat Market Destroyed by Fire—Insurance.

At a few minutes of 2 o'clock this morning, a fire was discovered in Kingan's new retail meat shop, at the end of Maryland st. An alarm from box 48 was immediately sounded and the fire department was promptly on hand. Within five minutes after the alarm struck there were three streams of water pouring on the building, and in less than half an hour the fire was completely under control. To the efficient management of Chief Pendergast, seconded by the well directed efforts of the waterworks company, is due the saving of a long line of frame buildings connecting the meat shop with the packing houses, where nothing could prevent a wholesale distruction. The damage is variously estimated at from $10,000 to $15,000, and is covered by the following insurance, in the companies of Barnard & Sayles: $5,000 with the Home, of New York; $4,500 with the Commercial Union, of London, and $3,000 with the Glenn's Valley of New York. The insurance was upon the building, stock and fixtures. The adjustment was begun this afternoon, and as soon as completed the rebuilding will commence. In the meanwhile a temporary shop has been improvised in one of the frame buildings, and meat will be sold and orders filled before to-night. No one can tell how the fire originated, the night watchmen saw the flames and sounded the alarm. The fire completely gutted the shop. The fixtures, meats and everything in the rooms, from the rafters to the floor, were entirely destroyed. The machinery room, where sausage was made, escaped with little or no injury. The cellars were full of lard and pork, which were not appreciably damaged. The accounts and books were in the safe and therefore uninjured. The walls of the building are in good condition and, except in one place, will need no repairing. General Macauley told a News reporter that Kingan's pork house has long been the poorest protected piece of property in the city. A six inch main connects the grounds with the water works, and is tapped by three hydrants only, while it should have been surrounded by them. The proprietors have told him several times that they had their own fire protection and didn't ever expect to call on the department. In reference to a report in a morning paper regarding the failure of the waterworks company to furnish water, he said that one hydrant was so near the flames that it could not be used. Another was used to excellent advantage, and when the No. 10 men tapped the other they found a large stone inside of the nozzle, which stopped the free flow of water for a few minutes, but after it was removed a fine stream was thrown.

Democrats in Council.

The democratic state central committee met last night at the auditor of state's office, the following members being present: Thomas Collins, Mount Vernon; H. V. Norvell, Bloomfield; John D. Smith, Union City; William Mitchell, Greenfield; C. C. Matson, Greencastle; Wiley E. Dittemore, Spencer, John Lee, Crawfordsville; H. E. Wadsworth, Laporte; M. H. Kidd, Wabash, Harry B. Smith, Hartford City, C. A. O. McClellan, Waterloo. Wm. Fleming was elected chairman of the executive committee. The state central committee fixed January 8, 1880 for their next meeting. The committee was met by the chief representative men of the party from all parts of the state, and various suggestions were made by Hendricks, Voorhees, Reeve, McDonald, Cobb, Landers, Gray, Craig and others, after which the committee withdrew and held a private meeting. The powwow amounted to little or nothing though there was evident satisfaction over the result of the New York election, Mr. Hendricks chances for the nomination being now his adherents think greatly enhanced.

From the Courts.

Judge Adams has made an order requiring trustees in voluntary assignments to pay to the clerk of the circuit court all moneys in their hands, at the time of making their reports, to be held and distributed by said clerk according to law.

Archibald McClean wants a divorce from his wife Elizabeth, to whom he was married in Belfast, 1854, because she is habitually drunken, and on the 26th of October attempted to kill him with a hatchet.

Charles D. Fleming, who was arrested last month by patrolmen Buchanan and Weidle, on verbal charge by Zimiriah Cox, of Hendricks county, that he had stolen a gun from said Cox, brings suit for $10,000 damages against Cox and the patrolmen for malicious arrest.

Judgments were taken in the circuit court to-day by the Connecticut Mutual Life insurance company against John Knight for $5,700.25, and by John C. Wright against Thos. C. Woodling for $2,443.53.

Potts vs. Pope is still dragging its weary length along in Judge Elliott's court.

Improved Fire Equipment.

The new additions to the equipment of the fire department have arrived and will go into service at once. One is a Babcock patent ladder truck with improved steering apparatus, carrying 322 feet of ladders, 65 of which was extension, besides two scaling hooks, by which a man can elevate himself to the top of any building without the aid of ladders. There are also two fire extinguishers, axes, brooms, forks, shovels and lanterns, making a perfect machine. A trial run was made this afternoon, and despite the great weight, 6,500 pounds, it worked satisfactorily.

It is especially handy in turning corners. The other is a two horse hose carriage, to carry 1,500 feet of hose, which will be placed at the central house, on Maryland street. The ladder truck will go into service at headquarters. It cost $1,500, and the hose carriage $550. They can not be duplicated now for less than $2,000 and $750 respectively.

Car Blockades and the Belt.

It is a common subject of remark that "the Belt road has not given the city the relief from the obstruction of passing trains that was expected, that as many go through, apparently as ever." This is a mistake, as the figures show, but still the relief is less than might have been reasonably expected; first, because there has been a large increase of business, and what the Belt takes off still leaves a remainder but little less than the whole amount formerly; and, second, all cars that are ordered or forced by the pressure of business lie here, must come into the city to the different freight yards, and of course make an obstruction that could be avoided if they were to go right on at once; in that case they would go round the Belt. At this season, when all the leading roads are crowded, the number of cars that have to enter the city and hold over at the freight yards is very large.

Drowned.

Shortly before 12 o'clock to-day a couple of boys saw the body of a woman lying in Fall creek, a short distance above the Indiana avenue bridge. The body was brought to J. H. Russell & Co.'s undertaking establishment about half-past 2 o'clock, and there recognized as that of Maggie Warner, an Irish woman, about 40 years of age, who left the poor farm two days ago. For several years she lived with a negro in the northwestern part of the city, until two months ago, when he took up with another white woman and she was compelled to leave. She has but one eye, having had the other cut out with a ring at the time her Othello changed mistresses, the successor destroying her eye in a fight had at that time. She was subject to epileptic fits, and it is not yet known whether her death was caused by suicide or accident.

Rebukes to Conklingism.

[New York Evening Post.]

We have just seen that Conklingism can not control the majority of voters in this state. Is it not about time that the chief engineer of the machine removed his hand from the lever? If Conkling is half so shrewd a politician as his friends report him to be, he can scarcely help seeing that the present time is an excellent opportunity for them to go to the rear for awhile and maintain there judicious reserve. If he does not see it, it behooves other leaders not to be blind to the truth. Thousand of republicans voted the regular Saratoga ticket under protest. Thousands more refused to vote it all, not because they did not care for the success of their party, but because theo felt Conklingism to be intolerable.

[Commercial Advertiser (Rep).]

Administration republicans, through whose help the executive office is taken out of democratic hands have conducted themselves during this canvass in a manner that must command admiration. After such an exhibition there should be no bitterness nor bickering in the republican party. The party should be made a solid organization. The election of Cornell should show Conkling that the liberal republicans, administration republicans, or whatever they may be called, deserve more consideration than he seemed disposed to give them. It is time for Conkling to adopt another policy than that which controlled him of late.

Another Gazelle Gone.

[London Telegraph.]

Diogenes, so we are sternly informed by German archæologists, never lived in a tub at all. The illustrious stoic resided in a jar—a sort of overgrown earthenware pitcher without a handle. Careless translators, who have recklessly rendered the Greek word for "wine-jar" by the comparatively modern substantive "tub," are responsible for the error in which humanity has been unwittingly plunged for ever so many hundreds of years. Pliny assures his readers, ancient and modern, that tubs are of Gallic origin. Diogenes can have known nothing about them.

Not Too Fast, Mr. Hendricks.

[Cincinnati Commercial.]

The Indiana democrats seem to think they are called upon to feast on the political remains of Mr. Samuel J. Tilden. In the first place, it is doubtful whether they possess Indiana. In the second place, Tilden might not be willing to see them gather golden fruit as the usufruct of treachery. There are several slippery places yet ahead of the Indiana statesman.

Rest Your Brain.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

There does not appear to be any crying necessity, growing out of the election returns which appear this morning, for us to add anything to what was said in these columns yesterday touching the series of democratic reverses, ranging around and about from Iowa to New York, and reaching even into the foreign wilds of New Jersey.

At the age of 30, a policy of $1,000 in the Mutual Life Insurance company, of New York, can be kept in force for $1.50 per month. SPANN & Co., agents.
