Still Believe in the Incas.

The rural Indians of Peru still believe in "paying the Incas," for fear that their crops will fail if the ancient observances are neglected. Burnt offerings of drugs and aromatic plants are still made, and small images are buried in the fields for the benefit of the crops and the herds. Such are the stone carvings, called mulle or piedras de Charasani, that are still sold in the native markets of La Paz, Bolivia.

There Are Other Things.

Dieticians say a 10-cent can of molasses contains eight and one-half times as much heat and energy as 10 cents' worth of beef. But these gentlemen forget that few people care to make a meal on molasses and that heat and energy are not the only things to be considered in a fine, juicy beefsteak.
