NEWS IN BRIEF.

FOREIGN.

—On the last day of June the inauguration of the statue of the republic in Paris was the occasion of an immense popular demonstration. The attendance of people from outside the city is stated to be hundreds of thousands.

—The Emperor of Morrocco died last week, aged 42. He ascended the throne in 1873.

—The Pan-Anglican Synod recently assembled at Lambeth Palace, London. Ninety Bishops were present at the first meeting. Communion was partaken of in the Lambeth Palace Chapel. The Archbishop of Canterbury presided over the conference.

—The regatta at Henley, England, about thirty miles from London, on the river Thames, in which the famous four-oared crew from Monroe, Mich., and the Columbia College crew, of New York, participated, closed July 5, the Columbia crew winning one of the contests, and the Michigan Shoe-wic-cas-settes, after winning the trial heat, failing in the final heat by the sudden sickness of one of the crew.

PERSONAL.

—The President has appointed Maximilian F. Bongana Commissioner of the Mint at New Orleans; Joseph Albrecht, Assayer; and Samuel Weeks, Melter and Refiner; John C. White, of Illinois, Secretary of Legation for the United States to Brazil; Thomas Heim, of Kansas, Register of the Land Office at Kerwin, Kan.

SAMUEL J. TILDEN has started for Europe for a short visit.

THE estate of Dr. J. C. Ayer, the patent-medicine man, who has just died in a private asylum at Lowell, Mass., is estimated at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000.

THE President has appointed Melville D. Howard, of Nebraska, Register of the Land Office at Grand Island, Neb., and F. W. Robb to be Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nebraska, vice Newman, suspended.

—L. P. Ingersoll, author of the "Life of Greeley," and a long time connected with Chicago and Western journalism, has been appointed by Secretary McCrary librarian of the War Department.

—Giles W. Hotchkiss, ex-Member of Congress, died at Binghamton, N. Y., a few days ago.

POLITICAL.

—Ex-Gov. Noyes, of Ohio, who returned from his post as Minister to testify before the Potter investigating committee, has had a hearing. He stated that he was in attendance upon the Canvassing Board in Florida. He did not go at the request or with the knowledge of Gov. Hayes. He took a legal part in the proceedings of the canvass, arguing cases before the Board of Canvassers, etc. He undertook to find out the facts relating to the alleged frauds in Alachua county, Archer precinct, No. 2, and, owing to parties swearing one way and immediately thereafter directly opposite, he lost all confidence in them, but finally he reached the honest conclusion that the count as returned was correct. After the vote of Florida had been cast McLin came to me greatly depressed and said he did not know what would become of him; that he had so excited the hostility of the Democrats that he could not longer live in Florida in peace; that he was poor and sick and almost in despair. I said to him: "Mr. McLin, you have done your duty honestly and fairly, as I think, and I shall take great pleasure in saying so to Gov. Hayes if he shall be declared President of the United States, and I will take pleasure also in recommending you for some position where you can take care of yourself and family."....L. G. Dennis was called before the committee. He testified that Alachua precinct, where he (Dennis) lived, was assigned to Noyes. In an interview between Noyes and Dennis the former told the latter that he was going to put him on the witness-stand. Dennis replied that he had better not, as it would be equivalent to his giving away the case, and Dennis was not put on the stand.... A Mr. Glasscock, the keeper of an eating-house where Mrs. Jenks boarded last winter, was examined. He testified that he had repeated talks with Mrs. Jenks, and saw her the day she had her first interview with Secretary Sherman last winter. Mrs. Jenks was very angry then. She said Sherman had insulted her, and that she had a letter in her reach which would make him rue the day he had crossed her. Mr. Glasscock asked her what letter it was, and Mrs. Jenks said it was a guarantee given by him to Weber and Anderson.

—Ex-Gov. Packard, of Louisiana, was before the Potter sub-committee at New Orleans, the other day, and repeated his story of his election as Governor, and euchred, as he claims he was, out of the office by the Wayne MacVeagh Commission. Packard said hostile to the office of Governor of Louisiana was as good as that of Hayes to the Presidency, and he considered them both good. He stated that, if the President had acknowledged him as Governor, he would have been able to maintain himself with ease.

—William E. Chandler was before the Potter committee on the 29th ult., and testified to an interview with Senator Matthews ten days before the inauguration. Matthews urged Chandler to use his influence to prevent President Grant from recognizing the Packard Government, as it was the intention of Hayes to recognize the Nicholls and the Hampton Governments. Matthews said he had examined the question, and did not think that Hayes' title and Packard's title were on the same footing. Chandler urged that such a course would give a Republican administration and a Democratic Senate, but Stanley Matthews replied that it had been or would be arranged that the Republican Senators would be elected. Chandler furnished a long list of political pookers from Florida that had been appointed to positions on his recommendation.....T. D. Dennis, of Florida, was examined, and, in answer to questions, told of his interview with the President, who said he "was one of the few men that this administration could take care of," and asked him what he wanted. Dennis was appointed to a place in the Department of Agriculture, drew pay for several months without doing any work, got tired of this, resigned, and was appointed in the secret service.....Gen. Tom Anderson, of the Louisiana Returning Board, was examined. He denied having anything to do with forging the names of any of the electors to electoral returns.....Boulds Baker, the Texas gentleman who sent a lengthy telegram to President Hayes suggesting the appointment of a Southern Conservative to a Cabinet position, appeared before the committee, and declined to be either sworn or to answer any questions propounded to him. The Chairman stated that, as the committee had no power to compel a witness to testify during the recess of Congress, he would discharge him from further attendance.....Mrs. Jenks was recalled, and testified that she had not seen Secretary Sherman since she had been in Washington in attendance upon the committee. She was then discharged.

—Before the Potter committee, on July 2, Emile Weber, brother of the dead Supervisor, read a statement, which he swore to. The statement set forth that he had no personal knowledge that Democratic intimidation had existed in the parishes of East and West Feliciana. His brother, Daniel Weber, and James E. Anderson had informed him that the two parishes had gone fairly Democratic. John Sherman was spokesman for the visiting statesmen, and he (Weber) knew that Sherman had given his brother assurances which caused him to allow his protest to stand after it had been made. Weber had, in conversation with Sherman, explained to him that his brother thought his parish had gone Democratic, and he was disposed to take back his protest, whereupon Sherman assured him that his brother would be cared for, and requested that he send his brother to him. His brother, on the day he received it, showed him Sherman's letter of assurance, and said he had received it direct from Sherman. Weber was familiar with the handwriting of Sherman, and was satisfied that the letter was written by that gentleman. In 1877 the Sherman letter was the subject of great mortification to the Weber family, and his sister-in-law, "Mrs. Daniel Weber, had endeavored to find it among the papers of her husband, which were packed away in two trunks and a large shoe-box." Late in the summer of 1877, he, the witness, had made a search for the letter, and had found it in the shoe-box, and had destroyed it forthwith. Mrs. Jenks had been in no way connected with the authorship of the Sherman letter.... Thomas C. Anderson, of Louisiana, testified that he did not see any one sign the certificates of the electoral vote while in the Governor's office at New Orleans; that Mrs. Jenks, pleading the poverty of her mother, asked him to appoint her brother, A. B. Murdock, to a place in the Custom House.

—Official election returns have been received from all except seven California counties. The result of the count shows beyond doubt that the non-partisans have elected all their thirty-two delegates at large and fifty-four county delegates. The Kearneyites elect fifty-one county delegates, the Republicans eight and the Democrats seven.

—The Postmaster at Canton, Miss., has interviewed Eliza Pinkston, and she is all right again. Her late statements and affidavits are withdrawn and contradicted, and she adheres once more to the original story with which she entertained the visiting statesmen.

—The New Orleans section of the Potter committee, on the 3d inst., examined a witness named Simpson, a discharged employe of the Custom House, who swore that a friend of his—also an employe—saw $10,000 in cash paid to a member of the Returning Board. The money was paid in Kellogg's office just before the final report of the board was signed, the member refusing to sign until he got the money. The names of the Returning-Boarder and the man who witnessed the payment were not given by Simpson.

—The Arkansas Democratic State Convention was held at Little Rock on July 4 and 5. Gov. Miller was nominated for re-election, and Jacob Frollich for Lieutenant Governor.

—The Alabama Democratic State Convention, which met at Montgomery July 4, adjourned late the same night. A resolution indorsing President Hayes for his wise and patriotic policy was laid on the table; also a resolution to nominate a State ticket. The platform is violent in denunciation of the Democrats of the State.

—E. L. Weber was again before the Potter committee on the 3d inst., and testified, in regard to the alleged frauds in Louisiana, that it was arranged before election by Kellogg, Thomas C. Anderson and Packard to secure affidavits of intimidation in the parishes of East and West Feliciana for the purpose of throwing out those parishes. He was assured by Kellogg and others that, if he would use his influence with his brother toward having him make a protest, he (witness) would be returned to the Senate. He was defeated for the State Senate by about 1,200 majority, and was returned by the Returning Board as elected by about 600 majority. "Packard told me a few days before the election that, if he and Hayes did not get any votes in East and West Feliciana, he was going to be Governor and Hayes was going to be President. He told me this in the presence of Mr. Armistead, Mr. Duncan and others, whom I do not now remember. He said the best way to dispose of the Democratic majority was to throw out the vote of the county; that that was better than making a Republican canvass, and I know of my personal knowledge that Kellogg employed L. B. Jenks to keep James E. Anderson away from the parish, and to prevent his holding an election there as Supervisor." Witness stated that since he came to Washington to testify he had been approached by friends of Secretary Sherman on two or three occasions, and told if he would give evidence contradictory of Anderson's story he (witness) would be well provided for. Witness said he had already been used as a tool, and he didn't propose to be so used again. The committee adjourned till Wednesday, July 10.

GENERAL.

—The protracted struggle between rival political factions for the municipal control of East St. Louis has at last assumed the form of a tragedy, two men having been killed Saturday, June 29, in a collision between the opposing forces. The difficulty had its origin in a conflict of authority growing out of an attempted reorganization of the city under a new charter, both parties claiming to be lawfully invested with authority. Pending a settlement of the dispute in the courts the bitterness and hostility between the factions had increased in intensity, until the matter culminated in a pitched battle between Mayor Bowman's supporters and the Metropolitan police. The latter were attacked in their armory by the Bowman party, and gave battle from the windows of the building. Two of the attacking Deputy Marshals were killed outright and a third dangerously wounded. The Metropolitans were subsequently arrested by the Sheriff of the county.

—The steamboat Capital City, of the Anchor Line, burned at an elevator at Memphis, the other night, involving that structure in the conflagration. Two lives—a passenger and a deck-hand—were lost, and property was destroyed to the amount of $250,000.

—In accordance with the provisions of the Army bill, requiring department commanders to select their headquarters, the following selections have been made by them: Maj. Gen. Hancock goes to Governor's island, New York harbor; Maj. Gen. McDowell, to the Presidio of San Francisco; Brig. Gen. Howard, to Fort Vancouver, W. T.; Brig. Gen. Terry, to Fort Snelling, Minn.; Brig. Gen. Ord, to San Antonio Depot (a Government building in San Antonio, Tex.); Brig. Gen. Crook, to Omaha Barracks; Brig. Gen. Augur, to Newport Barracks, Kentucky; Brig. Gen. Pope is already located at the military post, Fort Leavenworth; and Col. Wilcox is at Fort Whipple, Prescott, Arizona. The only exception made is Lieut. Gen. Sheridan's headquarters, which remain at Chicago.

—The race at Louisville between Tom Brooch and Mollie McCarthy, which was expected to be a grand contest for supremacy, proved to be a disgraceful fizzle, the California mare being distanced in the first heat of four miles in the very slow time of 8:19¾, or one minute and four seconds slower than the time which had previously been made by the winner.

—A picnic party at Sugar Camp grove, near Pittsburgh, Pa., on the Fourth, was suddenly overwhelmed with a terrific storm of wind and rain, and the blowing down of a tree upon a wagon, in which eighteen persons had taken refuge, killed seven of the number and wounded others.

—The celebration of the centennary of the massacre of Wyoming, which occurred July 3, 1778, took place at Wilkesbarre, Pa., with President Hayes in attendance to lend interest to the occasion.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL.

—The public-debt statement for June shows an increase in the debt for the month of $2,149,881, and the following balances in the treasury: Currency, $2,653,479; special fund for the redemption of fractional currency, $10,000,000; special deposit of legal tenders for the redemption of certificates of deposit, $46,755,000. Coin, $197,415,123, including coin certificates, $44,367,000; outstanding legal tenders, $346,681,016.

—The Chicago Evening Post has been absorbed by the Daily News.

—The coinage executed at the mints of the United States during the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1878, was: Gold, $52,770,420; trade dollars, $11,378,010; standard silver, $8,600,500; subsidiary silver coin, $8,349,315; minor coins, $30,676. Total, $81,118,921.

—The Arkansas Supreme Court has decided that the levee bonds issued in 1869 and 1870 are unconstitutional and invalid. About $3,000,000 in bonds are affected by this decision.

—The opening of the newly-completed Sturgeon Bay canal, which furnishes a short cut from Lake Michigan to Green bay, was celebrated with exercises appropriate to an event of such importance to lake commerce.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

—Col. Alvah Buckbee, a prominent resident of Elmira, N. Y., shot his wife and his mother-in-law, and then blew his brains out. Both women were fatally injured.

—William J. Abrams, who was connected with the notorious Mrs. Clem in the murder of Jacob Young and wife in 1857, and who has been in the Indiana State prison on a life sentence, has been pardoned by the Governor.

—Dick Dawson (colored) was hanged on Friday last at Thomaston, Ga., for the murder of Frank Cunningham, his brother-in-law.

—A. H. Burklow, who murdered David Wagoner, last year, was hanged at Vienna, Ill., last week.

FARM AND HOME.

Farm Rakings.

"EXPERIENCE has taught" a correspondent of the Prairie Farmer that "cut-worms never bother on land where sheep ran the previous fall and winter."

PERSONS who store harness "under foot" may like to know that a dressing of oil in which cayenne pepper is mixed—at the rate of a teaspoonful to a pint—is said to afford "sure protection against gnawing by rats."

ASPARAGUS is one of the most important of the vegetable crops grown in German gardens, and in the vicinity of Brunnenschweig, 25,000 acres are devoted to this crop, most of which is canned for home consumption and for the Russian markets.

IF his income is small, no man is better prepared to meet hard times or to practice economy than is the farmer, and, when Providence rewards him with bountiful crops, he can feel that the blessings which enrich him have made no one else poorer.—Ohio Farmer.

MR. O. S. BLISS, of Georgia, Vt., asserts in the Country Gentleman that horses "become, after a little, almost passionately fond" of skimmed milk; he has known a few cases in which it has been thus utilized "with great economy," and "a pail of it three times a day will keep a work-horse in better condition than the average ration of four quarts of oats."

A WRITER in one of our daily papers makes the assertion that if the farmers and country butchers were allowed to retail their meats in the market, or peddle them about the streets, as other products are sold, the city consumers would save the sum of $9,000 per week. In other words, this is the amount of profit made weekly by our butchers, in whose interest the law preventing the peddling of meats is enforced.—Cleveland Record.

TO KILL THE CURRANT WORM.—I see a number asking what will destroy the gooseberry and currant worm. I will give them a sure remedy, although a little too late to save them this year. Make a strong brine, strong enough to keep meat, and sprinkle the bushes well. The brine kills the worms almost instantly. This has been the result with mine, and others have tried it and call it a sure cure.—Philadelphia Practical Farmer.

DR. SYLVESTER, of Lyons, N. Y., a very successful and extensive cultivator of quinces, plants on a moist—not wet—but porous soil. He applies salt, sown broadcast to the soil, about the extension of the roots, at the rate of three or four quarts to each bush for full-grown ones. It would seem a large quantity, but the quince is a native of maritime soils, and is known to thrive away from the sea coast under the conditions of moisture and saline applications.

EVERY piece of horseradish grown, if we take a piece of root ab ut an inch in length, about the size of a large bean, and put it an inch below the surface of the prepared ground, a short piece will come to the surface and form a crown, and another portion will descend and probably fork to form a root; but, instead of this, if we make a hole a foot or so deep in the ground, with a dibble, and let the little pieces of root drop to the bottom, a clean, straight sprout will come up to the surface, and this will in time make as clean and thrifty a sticker piece as could be desired.

SALTING STOCK.—One of the most important things to attend to in the care of farm stock of every kind is that they have access at all times to salt. In this connection we would again call attention to the bad practice in vogue with many otherwise good farmers, in that they salt irregularly, and at such times with too liberal a hand. Thus animals will gorge themselves, and this often results in severe purging. Again, when salt is thrown about on the ground to be licked up, the stronger animals get more than they should and the weaker ones little or none. Besides this, injury to weak animals is often the result of this struggle. The proper way to salt stock is to have the salt placed under cover where they may get it every day, if they wish. In this way they take just what they want and no more, and, while eating what is necessary for them, they never take enough to do them injury. Thus cattle will seldom take more than an ordinary table-spoonful per day, and this is about what they require in summer as an aid to proper digestion.—Prairie Farmer.

Domestic Economy.

VOL-AU-VENT is a figurative expression applied to puff-paste of the lightest kind.

THE art of cooking fish is to wash and handle them as little as possible. Lay by in a dark, cool place ready for cooking.

WAFFLES.—Mix flour and cold milk together to make a thin batter; to a quart of the flour put six beaten eggs, a table-spoonful of melted butter and a teaspoonful of salt; bake them immediately.

FRIED CAKES.—One-third pint sour cream, two-thirds pint buttermilk, one teaspoon saleratus, dissolved in a little milk, added; stir together till the milk foams; one cup sugar, two eggs, two teaspoons salt; cut in rings; fry in lard just hot enough to bubble up nicely.

CREAM PIE.—One large table-spoon of butter, three of sugar, two of flour, two eggs, and a little more than one-half pint of milk. Beat the sugar and butter to a cream; beat the eggs well, and mix them with the milk; then stir in the flour, etc. Flavor with whatever you like. This is for one pie.

GOOD health is a blessing only attained by careful attention to the real wants of the body; but by how many ways do we aggravate symptoms and produce diseases it is difficult to cure, frequent among which is Heart Disease, Nervousness, Sleeplessness or Wakeful nights. Among the many forms of Heart Disease are Palpitation, Enlargement, Spasms of the Heart, Stoppage of the Action of the Heart, Trembling all over and about the Heart, Ossification or Bony Formation of the Heart, Rheumatism, General Debility and Sinking of the Spirits. These troubles can be cured by the use of Dr. Graves' HEART REGULATOR. Send to the sole agent, F. E. INGALLS, Concord, N. H., for a pamphlet of testimonials, etc.
