Amelia Henderson, Bride of John Merrill Baker in Brilliant Ceremony

A BRILLIANT fall wedding was solemnized this afternoon in the marriage of Miss Amelia Henderson, daughter of Charles E. Henderson, Hampton Ct., and John Merrill Baker, Chicago. The ceremony was read in the First Presbyterian Church by Dr. George Arthur Frantz, pastor.

The altar was decorated with palms and ferns and baskets of Easter lilies. Bouquets of Easter lilies were tied to the family pews with white satin ribbons. A program of organ music was played before and during the ceremony by Paul Matthews, organist.

Her hat was autumn brown velvet and she wore brown satin slippers to match. She carried a bouquet of Zinnias and marigolds in the autumn shades, tied with yellow chiffon.

Her veil was of dotted net edged with rose point lace. The cap, made fan shape in the back, was held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms. Stylist Will Tell How to Dress on $20-a-Week Pay

"What color hose should I wear with a dark blue georgette dress? How long should my skirt be? What color should I wear if I have blue eyes? Why shouldn't I wear red if my hair is hennaed?"

These and some others are questions that Mme. Bikoff, stylist for L. S. Ayres & Co., will answer and discuss at the first of the Thursday discussion luncheons at the south side branch of the Young Women's Christian Association.

"But more important than any of these questions, declares Mme. Bikoff, "is the question of how can I wear what I want to on a salary of $20 a week?"

Mme. Bikoff will display on a model costumes from the Ayres basement store that meet requirements of good taste, desire for pretty things and still within the means of the small salaried girl. This, she explains, is almost a hobby, because when she first landed in this country from Russia soon after the war, she found herself forced to live on $20 a week, and she knows that it can be done.

YOUR CHILD

Thermometer a Real Need

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

I think every mother should have a clinical thermometer and learn how to use it.

A clinical thermometer costs about $1.50 or $2 at drug stores. However, it is very easily broken and should be carefully handled.

After being used it should be washed in an antiseptic solution such as boric acid, strong salt water or alcohol, dried on a clean towel, aired for a short time, replaced in its case and kept where it can be found easily and quickly when needed. Also it should be kept out of reach of the children.

All this sounds rather ominous for such an innocent and helpful little instrument. But care is necessary for several reasons.

The disease germs of one member of the family can be transmitted to others if the thermometer is taken out of the sick person's mouth and put into the mouth of another without the necessary cleansing.

If children are allowed to play with the thermometer they are likely to break the thin glass in their mouths. Not only would that be dangerous, but the mercury would be none too good for them.

In many ways a clinical thermometer is like any other thermometer except that the little thread-like line of mercury in the tube, contrary to the adage that what goes up must come down—doesn't! It will go up itself to the figure registering the patient's temperature, but it will not go down until you shake it down.

The normal temperature of a well person is ninety-eight and three-fifths. It is plainly marked on the thermometer with a tiny arrow.

When the thermometer is put into the mouth of a well child under the tongue, lips closed, and allowed to remain for one minute, the mercury should stand pat right at the mark. A baby's temperature should be taken in the groin.

Before using, it should be seen that the mercury is shaken down to a point below normal or no result will be obtained.

If the mercury goes up above ninety-eight and three-fifths degrees, the patient is feverish. Children often develop sudden alarming rises in temperature from simple causes, but on the other hand it may not be so simple. A temperature is nature's warning of trouble.

Sometimes a day or two in bed with liquid diet and a laxative will be all a child needs, but if the temperature continues or if he has sore throat, or a rash, particularly on the chest, or a cough, or watering at the eyes and nose, I shoudn't lose too much time in getting a doctor.

A thermometer will materially aid a mother in deciding that disturbing question, "Shall I send for the doctor?"
