FLOOD AND ROAD MEASURES PASS

Forming of New Boards Unanimously Voted in State Senate.

The senate has passed and sent to the house two bills sponsored by the Republican policy committee, one to create a state flood control and water resources commission providing for an annual appropriation of $100,000 and another establishing a new state highway commission.

Without a dissenting vote yesterday, the upper legislative body approved the bill which would establish a flood control commission of 19 members, including the state conservation department engineer, chief highway commission engineer, and state health board sanitary engineer.

Creates New Board

Al except these three ex-officio members would serve three-year terms.

The measure was amended to provide that all actions of the commission be approved by the governor.

Also passed unanimously yesterday was the highway bill. It would create a new "bi-partisan" commission composed of two Democrats and two Republicans. However, a chairman designated by the governor would have two votes.

Tenure of the commissioners would be subject to the pleasure of the governor for four-year terms. Each commissioner would be paid up to $6000 annually for full-time employment.

Another bill passed yesterday by the senate would include tourist camps and other similar places under the provisions for keeping a registry of guests. The record would be kept at least one year after the period covered and would be open for inspection by certain authorized persons.

The bill also would provide penalties for false registration. It was defeated last Thursday by the senate when some senators objected to tourist camp operators being required to keep detailed registry records. This was amended to include provision for a card index file, instead of an ordinary hotel register, and reconsidered. There was only one dissenting vote yesterday.

On the statement by Senator Charles Fleming, (D. Hammond) that half of all delinquent gross income taxes originated from Marion and Lake counties, the senate passed twin bills authorizing the sheriffs in these two counties to collect a 60-cent "commission" on delinquent warrants.

Hospital Head Tells About Taking Babies From Mothers

For psychological reasons, unwed mothers who have surrendered their illegitimate babies for adoption purposes have been deprived of their children immediately after their birth at Coleman hospital.

Dr. John A. Van Nuys, Coleman medical director, said it had been deemed "desirable" than an unwed mother should not see her offspring, if she is to lose the child, "because the image of her baby might linger forever in her memory."

His testimony came yesterday at a hearing of the house social security committee hearing.

50 Cases Annually

Dr. Van Nuys said the hospital has some "50 or 60" such cases each year.

He said the decision to separate immediately unwed mothers from their released children had been made at the behest of the state welfare department in 1939.

In a letter to house social security Chairman Earl Teckemeyer (R. Indianapolis), the welfare department denied it had suggested this procedure, however.

Explains Adoption Steps

Dr. Van Nuys said there is nothing medically unsound in the practice of separating mother and child immediately after birth.

He declared that Coleman hospital must "exercise extreme caution" in its handling of illegitimate offspring because of the wishes of prospective foster parents to view babies before adoption.

This is not allowed, he said, but sometimes "persons posing as friends or relatives of the real mother make attempts to examine potential foster-children anyhow."

At yesterday's session a 17-year-old unwed mother reiterated her charge that she had been deprived of her baby for five weeks. Coleman hospital officials said the girl had been entered there by the welfare department with instructions that the baby was to be released for adoption.

ODT EASES PERMIT RULE ON MEETINGS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The office of defense transportation today announced it would not require permits for meetings which draw an out-of-town attendance of 50 or less, in addition to local attendance.

This is a reversal of a former ODT policy which was to adhere strictly to the "rule of 50," frowning on attendance over that mark even though only a handful of the total attendance was from out of town.

"The task of reviewing the applications which have been pouring into the office of the war committee on conventions has become so burdensome, the committee has decided that conventions and meetings which have an out-of-town attendance of 50 or less in addition to the local attendance will not require permits," Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT head, said.
