Can't Enforce Education With Paddle, Judge Rules

Fines Richmond Teacher Who Spanked Girl Holding It Improper; She Will Appeal

Times State Service

RICHMOND, Sept. 9—"The day of beating knowledge into children is past in Indiana, you cannot force an education with a paddle."

Thus, Special Judge William Dennis, president emeritus of Earlham College, today upheld his conviction of a Richmond school teacher who was fined $1 and costs yesterday for paddling an 11-year-old girl because she mispronounced the word "education."

Mrs. Ethyl M. Bell, popular teacher in Wayne County Schools for many years and a grandmother, was found guilty of assault and battery in administering a paddling last October to Betty Lou Smith, a pupil in a class for retarded children.

Calls it 'Improper'

Dr. Dennis, appointed to hear the case after the prosecution asked for a change of venue last fall, said he was convinced from the testimony that the paddling was "improper." The teacher insisted she used the paddle "as an educational instrument."

"Manners and morals have changed since the old days of the Hoosier schoolmaster," Dr. Dennis said. "I am convinced the use of the paddle on this child, under these circumstances, was improper.

"You cannot use a paddle as an instrument of education, you cannot force knowledge by using a whip."

Dr. Dennis added, however, that he considered the use of the paddle as a means of discipline "perfectly legal under some circumstances."

"I was impressed with Mrs. Bell's demeanor on the witness stand and am confident she has been a good and successful teacher," Dr. Dennis said. "I believe, however, the paddle was improperly administered in this case."

Mrs. Bell's attorney, Clarence Brown, said he would appeal the case to the Wayne County Circuit Court, probably filing Monday morning. He said his client would continue to insist that the paddle, "used as an educational instrument," was properly applied.

Betty Lou, according to testimony, was paddled twice last October when she failed to pronounce the word "education" correctly in a reading class. The child was paddled in the presence of 13 other pupils, including her sister, Beverly, 14, witnesses said.

Mother Files Charges

Charges were filed by the child's mother, Mrs. Gordon Smith, of Richmond, who appeared in court to prosecute.

Indiana law permits paddling in schools under some circumstances and corporal punishment is allowed in Indianapolis schools under rules of the Board of School Commissioners.

Under rules of the commissioners, the superintendent's office said, an unruly Indianapolis school child can be punished only in the presence of the school principal. If corporal punishment is administered the teacher must first take the child before the principal and then file a written report of the incident with the superintendent.

"Corporal punishment is considered the lowest form of discipline in Indianapolis schools," William A. Evans, administrative assistant, said. "Self-discipline is the highest."

Corporal punishment has only been administered in exceedingly rare and unruly cases in Indianapolis, he said.

40 Reported Safe In Forest Fire Trap

KING CITY, Cal. Sept. 9 (UP)—Heroic U. S. forest rangers fought their way through a forest fire to 40 guests trapped at the luxurious Tassajara Hot Springs resort and reported back today that all were safe.

The rangers reported that the fire destroyed the resort's 36-room hotel and at least 15 adjoining cabins.

The blaze failed to burn the immediate area surrounding the summer playground but fanned out over 1200 acres of nearby forests.

Vacationers, half of them women and children, picked up water buckets, shovels and axes along with resort employees and other residents in a battle for their lives.

District Ranger George Branagh, who made the tortuous trip into the resort with fire control officer Jack Curran, reported over his portable radio that "all were safe."

He said the resort's owner, ex-actor Phil Terry, had arrived at the scene ahead of them and had "things pretty well organized."

Gunman Slugs, Robs Station Attendant

Armed Youth Takes $8 From Taxi Driver, Flees in Cab

A service station attendant today was robbed of more than $200 at gunpoint and slugged in an early-morning holdup from which his assailant escaped in an automobile, police said.

In another holdup last night a gunman stole $8 from a cab driver and stole his cab.

Police later in the evening arrested a youth who could not account for himself and was carrying a 32-caliber revolver.

Bill Kehrt, 22, attendant at the O'Neal Ross Standard Service station, 2101 W. Morris St., told police he was forced to hand over receipts from the previous night by a matter-of-fact bandit about 6:30 a. m.

The holdup man walked in just after he opened the station and asked for a gallon of gasoline to carry away, Mr. Kehrt said. After filling a glass jar for the man, the attendant took a $10 bill from him and opened the safe to make change.

At that point, Mr. Kehrt said, the man spoke:

"Now I'll take it all."

Struck In Face

After taking the contents of the safe, more than $200, the bandit forced Mr. Kehrt to walk into the restroom. As he turned about to face the door, Mr. Kehrt told police, the man hit him in the face and ran.

An unidentified witness driving into the station as the holdup man ran out said he saw the bandit run across the street, jump into a car parked there and drive away.

John Robert Robins, 41, of 2203 Howard St., a driver for United Cab Co., last night told police he was robbed of $8 by a young passenger at the intersection of Missouri and W. Washington Sts.

The youth, who carried a gun, then made him get out and drove south of Missouri St., Mr. Robins said.

Later in the evening police arrested on a vagrancy charge a 19-year-old youth questioned at 10th St. and Massachusetts Ave. The boy was carrying a 32-caliber revolver with four live shells and was unable to account for himself, police said.

The taxicab was recovered about midnight in the rear of 2027 S. Pennsylvania St., according to police.

The Secret's Out, Men

Noah Hid Ark to Baffle U. S. Spies, Russ Say

Turks May Have Used It for Firewood Despite Marshall Aid, Moscow Avers

LONDON, Sept. 9 (UP)—Noah probably hid the ark to prevent its falling into the hands of American spies poking around Mt. Ararat, Moscow Radio said today.

Mt. Ararat, in Eastern Turkey, is only 20 miles from the Soviet border.

"Who would have thought in the United States that the Biblical patriarch Noah might prove disloyal to God-fearing American spies?" an English-language broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor in London asked.

The broadcast said the story started last spring when so many people suddenly started hunting for the ark that the Turks, "accustomed as they were to missions, commissions and plain spies, felt embarrassed and hesitated whether to let them go poking around Mt. Ararat."

However, the broadcast said, everything was straightened out when Prof. Aaron J. Smith, of Greensboro, N. C., arrived.

"CONTEMPTUOUSLY pushing aside his British and Dutch rivals, Prof. Smith notified the Turkish authorities that he alone should be allowed to go," the broadcast said.

These orders of the American pathfinder immediately assumed the shape of a decision in the Turkish council of ministers," it said.

"Strangely enough, they failed to find the ark. Some said the Turks had used it for firewood despite all the blessings of the Marshall Plan which have been showered on them.

"Others claimed followers of old Noah persuaded him to hide the ancient relic from the greedy eyes of the Americans—at least the relic would remain un-Marshallized in Marshallized Turkey."

An American expedition headed by Prof. Smith has been searching the slopes of Mt. Ararat for more than two weeks in hopes of finding an ancient hulk believed to be Noah's Ark.

Tito May Seek Wall Street Loan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (UP)—Marshal Tito's Yugoslav government, successful in its bid for U. S. Export-Import Bank loan, may now turn to private Wall Street firms for additional dollars, it was reported here today.

While the Yugoslav embassy would not comment on the reports, they were received with credence in informed U. S. circles. It was pointed out that the $20 million Export-Import loan granted yesterday, and a World Bank loan now under consideration, would boost Yugoslavia's long-range production but would have little immediate effect.

The $20 million United States loan was the first granted any Communist country and was expected to widen the breach between Marshal Tito and the Kremlin. Russia and her satellites have clamped a tight economic blockade around Yugoslavia since Marshal Tito's break with the Cominform.

Diplomats said that Yugoslavia currently suffers from a severe shortage in the entire range of consumer goods. The Export-Import loan and the requested World Bank Loan cannot be used for consumer goods, but are limited to use for reconstruction and rehabilitation of basic industries.

If Yugoslavia can get private American dollars to buy consumer goods, Marshal Tito will have taken a big step toward improving living standards and bolstering internal morale against the Soviet "war of nerves" campaign.

Hint British Bid For RFC Loan

Aid Would Sidestep Dollar Conference

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Great Britain was reported unofficially here and in London today to desire a $600 million Reconstruction Finance Corp. loan wholly outside the current three-nation dollar conference.

Working groups representing Untied States, Canadian and British conferees continued today to explore indirect methods of salvaging the British economy.

Congress heard with interest, but without any great enthusiasm, the general outline of the aid program proposed by the British at yesterday's conference session.

The RFC loan would not involve a congressional appropriation nor increased Marshall Plan spending. If applied for and granted, it would be fully covered by collateral. RFC officials told the United Press no loan application had been made so far.

Great Britain obtained a $425 million RFC loan in July, 1941. It bears 3 per cent interest and was to run 15 years. All but $120,900,000 of that advance has been repaid.

Have Ample Collateral

The British deposited approximately $1 billion in collateral to secure the 1941 loan. Of this collateral, $33,600,000 has been used to assist in meeting loan payments. There remains ample collateral to cover a new loan of $600 million without unwarranted risk to the RFC.

Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder, conference chairman and United States spokesman, revealed yesterday that the British had presented a series of aid proposals which had been assigned to study by working groups.

Fliers May Postpone Hop Across Atlantic

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 9 (UP)—Two fliers who hope to raise money for an Italian "Boys Town" took a look at the windy weather today and said they might have to postpone their take-off for New York another 24 hours.

John Brondello and Camillo Barioglio said, however, they would await a later forecast before deciding whether to leave today. Although air experts give them only an even chance of success, the pair hope to make the first east-west crossing of the atlantic in a single-engine plane.

The fliers postponed their scheduled take-off yesterday because of storms sweeping northward from the Bahamas.

Hold Dock Strike Talks

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (UP)—Hawaiian dock leaders and stevedoring company officials meet in separate sessions with federal labor mediators today to explore preliminary proposals for settlement of the territory's 132-day stevedore strike.
