NEW U. S. LEAD HEAD.

J. J. Mulligan, formerly assistant superintendent of the U. S. Lead Refinery, Inc., has received the appointment as superintendent of the local plant, effective January 1, 1922.

Mr. Mulligan has been in the employ of the refinery company for some time, starting as a metallurgist, Mr. Mulligan has climbed to the position of superintendent.

G. R. LORD TRANSFERRED.

The official announcement of Works Manager George R. Lord of the Sou-clair Refining company being transferred to the Chicago office of the company, was made today. General superintendent A. F. Gustafson of the East plant will assume entire charge of the East Chicago plant. This change took effect January 1, 1922.

A HUNGRY LUMBERJACK.

"No one who ever saw a hungry lumberjack devour his meal could fail to marvel at the capacity and the power of the human stomach to withstand terrible punishment," declared Priscilla Dean when she returned from a trip to Canada, where her Universal company, under the direction of Stuart Paton filmed scenes for "Conflict," her newest Universal Jewel production, now playing at the Hartley theater.

"Do you know," she continued, "that even now I find myself reaching across the table for a slice of bread.

"A canuck lumberjack can eat faster, say less and devour more food in a given length of time than any form of life, with the possible exception of the mountain goat.

"It is really a treat to see those men eat. The noonday meal consists of bread, soup, meat, more bread, more meat and a little more soup. A band of savages have nothing on these famished lumberjacks when they come plowing up the dirt road, yelling and fighting to see who shall be first to dive into the soup.

"With a terrible roar, they scurry into the wooden mess hall and fight for their rights; huge loads of bread stacked around the table. A mad scramble of flying arms and crunching jaws and the bread has disappeared. Then comes a steak that a Bolshevist lion couldn't gulp down in three meals without an attack of dyspepsia. In two minutes the entire meat supply has vanished.

"But you can't blame the poor starving dears," explains Priscilla, "in that north woods country after a hard morning's work one could almost eat a nine leg if it were big enough. Up there men are men and women are almost men."

PRINCE ENJOYS VISIT TO INDIA DESPITE TROUBLE

The Prince of Wales, indicated by arrow, riding in carriage through streets of Bombay. Troops guarding the line of march can be seen in the background.

Despite demonstrations against the British rule at points along his itinerary, the Prince of Wales is said to be enjoying his visit through India and is being well received by British diplomatic circles and adherents. He has enjoyed several feasts and other forms of entertainment provided for him. It is rumored that the engagement of the Prince of Wales to Lady Rachel Cavendish will be announced shortly after his return to the British Isles early in 1922.
