PRODUCE.—S. R. Edwards, at the Passenger, House, Plymouth, pays the highest price in cash for all kinds of country produce, Farmers having Chickens, Butter, Eggs, &c., to dispose of will find it decidedly to their advantage to take the same to the Passenger House. tf

Van Amburgh's Menagerie.

To-morrow (Friday) this mammoth Zoological establishment will exhibit in Plymouth, afternoon and evening, and the celibrity of the show, as well as the unusual number of animals advertised, will doubtless have the effect to draw out an immense throng of visitors. The papers are unanimous in their praise of Vanaburg, and his name has become a household word in Europe and America.

Common Pleas Court adjourned last week on Thursday, after having dispatched a large amount of business.

The County Fair commences to day.—We hope to see a good exhibition and a large attendance.

Don't fail to read the new advertisement of S. & M. Becker, and then go and buy your fall and winter goods.

The North Carolina state convention have passed an ordinance fixing the day for the election of state officers on the first Thursday in November.

An exchange says the people of Colorado have voted their new Constitution up, but negro suffrage down. Why don't the abolitionists force it upon them, any how? What business has Colorado to be disloyal?

A STRANGE FREAK OF NATURE.—The Crown Point Register says: Several of the apple, and other fruit trees about the town are in full bloom. Those who claim to be weather-wise say this phenomenon indicates that a severe winter is in store for us the coming season.

The wisdom of the law closing drinking establishments on election day, was manifest here on Tuesday last. Good order and quiet prevailed throughout the day, and most of those in attendance at the election retired to their homes sober if not satisfied. Had the saloons been kept open there would, in all probability, have been a very different state of things.

The weather has been remarkably fine for some time past, affording the farmers an opportunity to finish up their season's work. Considerable of the wheat crop has been threshed and is being hauled to market. The seed for next year's crop is in the ground, the principal part of the corn fodder saved, and farmers are preparing to do up their winter's work. Labor is not so scarce as at this time last year, many of the soldiers having returned and actively participating in the old routine of business.

BILLIARDS.—Our young friend Robert Crandall has purchased the Billiard Saloon in Hamrichouser's new brick, and keeps everything about it in tip-top order. The room he occupies is splendidly adapted to its present use, and lovers of the game will find everything pertaining to it conveniently at hand by calling on our worthy friend Crandall.

GIPSIES.—A small camp of Gipsies is located a little ways south of town; and the inhabitants of it seem to enjoy themselves hugely laying [illegible], doing nothing, sleeping on the ground, and eating what they have and can get. Their "visible means of support" are invisible, except when telling fortunes and trading horses.

On Saturday last the showman with the big woman, the little man, the alligator and the snake, anchored under a rather ostentatious display of canvas near Michigan street, and commenced showing.—Whether the show was a "good thing" or not, we cannot say, not having invested the all-potent "two bits" required for admission.

One day last week during the sitting of the C. P. Court a habitue of the lowest class of drinking establishments, having been engaged in a rencontre with some of his associates, appeared in court with a pair of finely "shaded peepers" and demanded that the law should be brought to bear upon his antagonists, one of whom was a woman. An affidavit was made, an information filed, a bench warrant issued, and the woman secured; but for some reason—we did not learn what—the case was continued for trial at the next term of Court.

Prentice says: "The work of granting pardons at Washington proceeds steadily, but slowly. We cannot help thinking of the idea of Dr. Franklin, who, when a boy, got weary of standing up and listening to grace at meals, and respectfully asked his respected father whether it wouldn't do just as well to say grace over the whole pork barrel at once."

At Bowling Green, Ky., on Monday, two negroes, convicted of murder, were taken from the sheriff by negro troops, while, with fixed bayonets, they defied the sheriff and his party, and threatened death to all who opposed them.

HYATT FROST - - - - MANAGER

LIVING GIRAFFE,

Nearly fourteen feet high. The only one on this Continent. The structure and history of this extraordinary animal have high interest for the Naturalists.

Performing Elephant, Tippo Saib

History records many instances of brute sagacity and acquirement, in all of which the Elephant stands pre-eminent. All former performances are entirely eclipsed by this wonderful Elephant, that seems endowed with reasoning faculties.

A Pair of White Peacocks, feecifully imported from Germany. Not one spot or a single dark shade tarnishes the dazzling whiteness of these wonderful birds.

LEOPARD and YOUNG, these beautiful creatures although bred in a cage, exhibit as much ferocity as any ever captured in their native jungle. They are the first ever bred in this country, consequently a great curiosity.

A WILD KANSAS BUFFALO,

Recently captured on the Western plains. It is sometimes attacked by wolves, and even the grizzly bear. When wounded it becomes enraged and hurl to destruction every thing that comes within its reach.

A PAIR OF WHITE POLAR BEARS,

From the icy regions of the North Pole. These savage, intractable creatures were captured on a floating island of ice over one hundred miles at sea.

A PAIR OF JAPANESE SWINE,

The first ever imported. To farmers, these ill-looking creatures are a great curiosity. Their huge pendulous ears are wrinkled visage gives them decidedly a very ugly appearance. Besides an endless number of other animals too numerous to mention.

Will Exhibit at Plymouth
