THE DEMOCRAT.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED BY

VANVALKENBURGH & THOMPSON.

D. E. VANVALKENBURGH, A. C. THOMPSON.

Thursday, January 21, 1869.

THIS is the last week the delinquent list will appear in our paper for the present year, and we, as well as our readers, are glad of it.

BY a recent arrangement we have taken the local and business management of the DEMOCRAT office, for the present and until our partner, D. E. Van Valkenburgh, returns from the south; and we intend giving the paper and business of the office more attention than they have received for some months past. A. C. T.

OUR CARD.—For the benefit of some of our readers, who have very short memories, we this week insert the names of the editors and proprietors of this paper. We are no more responsible now than before, for what appears in its columns, but if any body should happen to not like what may appear in the paper, they can know who to "come and see."

MERCHANTS VS. AUCTIONEERS.—The greatest excitement prevails in our town, concerning licensing auctioneers. It is no business of ours, particularly, and we have heard so many unanswerable arguments produced by the advocates of either side, that if we were so inclined, we would scarcely know which side to favor, but as we occupy the rooms immediately above the auction room, where there is a continued blowing and bellowing from 9 o'clock, a. m. to 11 o'clock, p. m., every day, we feel like saying that although it is theoretically right that they should come here, pay their license, and sell their cheap goods, yet practically it is a nuisance to many and probably a swindle upon others. The right to be humbugged is one very dear to the American people, and if deprived of it, life would become a blank, and we have not the slightest idea of infringing upon that right. To buy goods at an auction store is as good a game as to raffle for turkeys, or throw the dice for lager beer, and those who indulge in the pastime are about as apt to get "stuck."

Many of our merchants do not rest well at night because the people are being swindled so terribly. This may be the reason for the interest they manifest in the matter, but some of the people think there is a little self-interest connected with it. These merchants are in the habit of going east and buying their goods where they think they are getting the best bargains, and some of them are also in the habit of getting their printing done east, because they say they can get it done cheaper there than here, and we must say it does not come with a very good grace for such merchants to be talking so much about the citizens here not supporting their home merchants. We are glad to say, however, that there are but very few of this class of merchants in our place. It is right for us to support home industry and enterprise in every direction, but no class should set themselves up as privileged characters to support whom they please and compel their fellow citizens to support them.

These auctioneers are undoubtedly carrying away from our place quite a sum of money, and much of it probably, should be paid to our local merchants for goods sold on credit by them to those who are buying at the auction. This is wrong and ungrateful, yet it cannot be helped; but it is no worse, so far as the circulation of currency is concerned, for them to carry it away than it is for the eastern merchants to get it all. The worst feature about it is that it makes business unsettled and dull, and and has a tendency to embarrass our best merchants.

We have given this subject much more attention than we intended to when we began, and more than it is really entitled to, just as the merchants attached more importance to the auctioneers than they deserved. All in all, we have never seen so great an exhibition of selfishness, bungling and blundering as has been shown by all parties interested in this matter. The whole thing is to end in a law suit at the next term of court, involving the sum of not much less than $1,000. It is to be hoped that by the time this case shall have been decided, the people of this corporation will know whether they have a license law or not.

Should the excitement continue for more than "nine days," as a chronicler of passing events, we will keep our readers posted as to the most interesting features in the case.
