No More Dread of the Dentist Chair

THE SCIENCE OF DENTAL SURGERY has kept progress with the other arts and sciences and today we have the modern dentist with modern equipment overcoming all dental deficiencies and when necessary eliminating all pain and suffering by anesthetics.

Dentistry without pain is not a catch phrase to overcome the feelings of a doubting patient, but is an acknowledged method that all up-to-date dentists must adopt or expect to see their practice go to those who consider the comfort of their patients.

KELLOGG IS A SPEAKER AT UNION'S CONVENTION

SPEAKER REFERS TO CONDITIONS AMONG NEWSPAPERS.

REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION

Henry N. Kellogg, of New York, chairman of the special standing commitee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, was a speaker Wednesday before the convention of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union, in session in Indianapolis. Mr. Kellogg said in part:

"It gives me great pleasure once more to have the opportunity to convey the best wishes of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association to the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union. It seems impossible that a year has elapsed since I met you in Washington. When you convened there last June the European war had been in progress about ten months. I then called your attention to the fact that a goodly number of unions of the printing trades had shown they appreciated that the disturbance to business caused by the war had seriously affected newspapers, and that sixty-six unions had either withdrawn propositions for new agreements, thus continuing under old wages, or consented to new contracts with the same pay as before. During the year that has elapsed there has been additional evidence that many unions appreciated the futility of pressing demands for increases, as 142 besides those mentioned a year ago have taken similar action. Of these twenty-four were stereotypers.

Restraint Still Necessary.

"The conservatism of unions that have taken this course is sincerely appreciated, but I wish to impress on you that similar restraint on your part is still necessary. While there are some localities in which orders for war supplies have caused improvement in general business, and this improvement in some instances is reflected in newspapers, it is nevertheless unquestionably a fact that such prosperity is temporary, and therefore does not justify increases in wages. Furthermore, while of course, we all sincerely hope the United States will not become involved in the terrible conflict abroad or in war with our neighbor at the south of us, we are not by any means free from the menace of either. While even a possibility of such a calamity remains, newspaper publishers must, if they consider future safety, avoid increasing their permanent overhead.

Wages and Profits.

"The foregoing is based on the generally accepted theory that wages should bear a direct relation to profits. The wage earner should, of course, be fairly compensated for his labor, but I have yet to discover a labor union that has, or will, accept the theory that wage scales are to be determined by balance sheets of employers, nor do I know many employers who will approve that program. If this were the case, wages in any community would need to vary according to the profits or losses of the individual business units affected, and to be amended whenever these factors changed. In my opinion it will be a long time before that plan is put in effect. As before explained, circumstances now confronting newspapers and the uncertainty of the future make it absolutely essential for publishers to avoid increasing their expenses.

"It will be necessary for you, at this meeting, to consider whether or not the International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union wishes to continue its arbitration arrangements with the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, because the contract under which we have been co-operating for a little over four years will expire prior to your next meeting. When considering that matter, I wish you also to thoroughly realize that the terms of the present arbitration contract are decidely one-sided. I mean by that, you have refused to meet us half way.

As to Restrictions.

"Now, I submit that a contract which places special restrictions on one of the parties to it, can not be mutually advantageous as an agreement with equal terms. Of course, we fully understood this when we made the contract and have respected it to the uttermost, but we hold you should not ask us to again make a "jug-handled" agreement. We can not believe you will seriously expect us to do this.

"You no doubt appreciate wherein the agreement is one-sided, but so that there may be no misunderstanding I will state it is because it puts restrictions on arbitration. You gentlemen convene each year and adopt resolutions which you are pleased to term 'laws.' I consider that term a slight misnomer, and think the result of your deliberations would be much more properly labeled if you called them your 'rules,' because you have come to us with certain stipulations which you have said you would not submit to arbitration. It would be equally proper for our association to say there are certain working conditions we will not arbitrate, but that has not been done. The American Newspaper Publishers' Association has a set of rules which it mails for 'Code of Principles,' some of which differ radically from some of yours."

In Spirit of Fairness.

"If it is the desire of your union to continue arbitration relations with our association, and your representatives lay your rules upon the table and say 'these can not be arbitrated,' and our representatives put our 'code of principles' beside your rules and say 'these can not be arbitrated,' what sort of an agreement will result? Now, gentlemen, we say to your frankly that we believe in our rules just as much as you believe in yours, yet we are willing to submit to arbitration any and all questions that relate to hours, wages and working conditions, and we ask you to meet us in the same spirit of fairness and agree that all differences regarding wages, hours and working conditions shall be subject to arbitration, if agreement regarding them is otherwise impossible.

Comments on Editorial.

"In this connection I read, a few days ago, a short editorial in one of the official journals of an international union of the printing trades, which said:

"'If labor and capital are to work harmoniously there must be mutuality in their relations. When one side dictates and determines the working conditions, it is bound to work to the disadvantage of the other. But, by meeting face to face on equal ground and with equal rights, practically all differences can, in the main, be satisfactorily adjusted.'

"I wish to impress strongly upon your minds the fact that a very large proportion of the members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association have become convinced they would prefer to have no arbitration contract with your union than to have another one so one-sided as the present agreement. There can, therefore, be no doubt it will be to your great advantage to subscribe to the principle of arbitration without restriction.

"This is a very important and very serious matter; in fact, I believe it to be the most momentous question that you will have before you at this meeting. I sincerely trust you will meet it in a fair and liberal spirit. You must certainly realize that that policy always brings the largest measure of success."

A request made by Miss Elsie Hill, of Washington, who is making street speeches in Indianapolis for the Congressional Union, that she be permitted to address the convention of the stereotypers and electrotypers on woman suffrage, was granted today by the delegates of the organization. Miss Hill was to address the body this afternoon.

Laws Committee at Work.

The laws committee began its usual routine work today, and will consider fourteen propositions that have been submitted to them by the delegates. The old age pension system, which is a part of a number of labor organizations, will be discussed by the delegates. A levy of 25 cents to be made on each member to provide a fund for the purpose has been proposed.

A report of the committee which sought the co-operation of the Methodist Episcopal Book Concern at the Methodist general conference held recently at Saratoga, N. Y., was read to the delegates. Evry delegate will have an opportunity to talk on the subject.

The annual banquet of the labor body will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Riley room of the hotel. J. Fremont Frey, chairman of the joint entertainment committee, will preside. Speeches will be made by officials of the union.

ENTERTAINED AT ENGLISH'S.

Delegates Witness Minstrel and Vaudeville by The News Glee Club.

Funny end men, pleasing solos and rousing choruses entertained the delegates and visitors to the fifteenth annual convention of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union, and the fifteenth biennial convention of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, at a minstrel and vaudeville show given at English's theater last night by The Indianapolis News Glee Club, J. Fremont Frey, director.

As soon as Ed A. Snyder, the interlocutor, had pronounced the time honored "gentlemen, be seated," Thomas Keesey and W. J. Berry started the fun with their idea of "Indiana Avenue in the Old Days." Then Ed M. Broden took a fall out of the interlocutor with his "Bucktown Badinage." Robert Childers introduced his "Coentown Chocolate Chatter." and J. L. Turner gave his version of the experiences of John Corrigan, former police lieutenant, in Norwood. William N. Benson stopped the show, while he responded to encores on his comic song, "Lordy, Let Me Live Till Spring," and James E. Twyman was called back until he had sung all the verses he knew of his song, "The Torpedo and the Whale."

Little Miss Helen Wahler, of Chicago, sang "Memories," Ed. A. Snyder sang a bass solo, "Roll On, Thou Deep and Dark Blue Ocean," and C. C. Lloyd rendered the "Gypsy Love Song," effectively. Walter Reddick was accompanied in his song "I'm Longing for You," by J. Fremont Frey on a zither and C. W. Conger on a cello, and was forced to respond to an encore. Plantation melodies and patriotic songs by the chorus also were features.

A series of exhibition dances, including a fox trot and a balloon dance, in which toy balloons were fastened to their arms and hats, by Mary Elizabeth Reddick, age twelve, and Walter Cochran Reddick, age ten, son and daughter of Walter Reddick, was the most applauded feature of the vaudeville bill, which included the acts presented the first half of the week at English's. The theater was crowded.

BOARD ISSUES SUBPENA IN TAX APPRAISAL CASE

ASKS JULIUS AND LOUIS HAAG TO APPEAR BEFORE IT.

VALUE OF SIX DRUG STORES

The only subpena issued this year by the Marion county board of review was sent out today, calling Julius and Louis Haag, druggists, to testify before the board June 20. Haag's six drug stores are appraised at a total of $3,210, the board says, while those of some corporations, seemingly no larger, run much higher. John W. Holtzman, attorney, appeared before the board for the Haags yesterday but he was unable to give the information sought and the subpena was sent out today.

MISSING VICE WITNESS IS ARRESTED IN MUNCIE

THOMAS V. MILLER HELD UNDER CHARGE OF CONTEMPT.

SAYS WILLIAMS PAID HIM

[Special to The Indianapolis News]

MUNCIE, Ind., June 15.—Thomas V. Miller, a young attorney, who had been subpenaed by the state in the case of Gene Williams, former deputy prosecuting attorney, convicted last week of conspiracy to solicit bribery, and who appeared at the beginning of the Williams trial, reappeared in Muncie today after a trip into California and Mexico, and was promptly placed under arrest by W. Albert O'Harra, sheriff.

Judge Fred Gause was notified, and said he would come to Muncie tomorrow or Saturday to dispose of Miller's case, and ordered him held under $500 bond on a charge of contempt of court. A special statute covering the same offense may be invoked by the grand jury, making failure to obey a summons punishable with a fine and imprisonment in jail. Miller probably will be able to obtain bond.

Was Important Witness.

Miller was regarded as one of the most important witnesses for the prosecution, which was considerably handicapped by his absence in completing its evidence against Williams. Miller testified before the grand jury that indicted Williams, and his testimony is said to have been of great importance affecting Williams and other city officers now under indictment.

Miller said he arrived in Muncie last midnight without being aware that he was wanted here, and came down town in the morning, when he was arrested in the office of an acquaintance.

Explaining his absence, Miller said:

"I went away from Muncie Thursday, May 25, during the first week of the Williams trial when they were trying to get a jury. Williams gave me $175, and told me he was giving me the money to take a nice trip to California. I was given to understand that the Williams trial would not go on for the present, and for that reason the judge and jury would be dismissed at the proper time, or that something would happen to the case to cause it not to come to trial at that time, therefore making my presence unnecessary.

Even Went to Mexico.

"So, taking the money, I went west, and have been sight-seeing since. I was in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Oakland, Cal.; in El Paso, and, for a while, was in Mexico, but in Mexico I did not go inland far enough to get hurt."

Miller displayed a large quantity of Mexican money which, he said, he picked up for almost nothing in Mexico for souvenirs. Miller said he did not intend to run away from the Williams trial.

Williams is not in the city to give his version of the affair.

Await Grand Jury Report.

The law-abiding citizens of Muncie are eagerly awaiting a report by the grand jury, which has been meeting at intervals all this month, and is said to be investigating conditions connected with the other conspiracy cases against Mayor Bunch and other city officials, in which Gene Williams was convicted, last week.

That there has been a new mixup between the prosecuting attorney, J. Frank Mann, and Judge Ellis and other persons connected with the prosecution of cases growing out of vice conditions is rumored. The methods by which certain men obtained liquor licenses recently are under investigation, it is asserted, and the assault on Frank Whitney, prominent "dry" leader, by "wet" rioters at the police station, last spring, also is before the grand jury, it is believed.

Expect "Blind Tiger" Charges.

Several operators of "blind tigers" admitted their guilt when testifying in the trial of Gene Williams, formerly deputy prosecutor, and it is said operators of gambling houses and "blind tigers" still are running more or less openly.

The nature of reported difficulties between Prosecutor Mann and Judge Frank Ellis is uncertain, but the right of the court to remove the prosecuting attorney from the investigation of a criminal case is said to be involved. Wilbur Ryman, a lawyer for the Civic League, is acting as special prosecutor before the present grand jury, and it is said he is doing so over the strenuous objections of Mr. Mann.

LISTEN TO BOSTON PROGRAM BY USE OF THE TELEPHONE

Members of Indiana Association of Massachusetts Tech Take Part in a Novel Event Wednesday Night.

Members of the Indiana Association of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and their guests at the University Club, last night, listened to the addresses at a banquet at Boston that marked the close of an elaborate dedication program for the new home of the Technology institute, which was completed recently at a cost of $7,000,000.

Thirty-four other cities in the United States, where alumni of the institute live, were connected by telephone with the banquet hall. It was estimated that 2,000 alumni and guests in all parts of the United States listened to the speakers at Boston. Approximately 3,000 alumni attended the banquet in person.

A remarkable feature of the evening's entertainment was the roll call of the thirty-five cities. Joseph W. Stickney, general manager of the Central Union Telephone Company, responded for Indianapolis. There was an exchange of greetings between Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, in New York, and Orville Wright, in Boston, and Thomas A. Edison, in Menlo Park, N. J.

Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, made a short address. Messages passed between Professor Charles Cross, in Boston, and Professor Ryan, in San Francisco, and between Frank Vanderlip, in Boston, and Thomas Burke, president of the Pacific Coast Chamber of Commerce, in Seattle, Wash.

The "Stein Song" was sung by a Tech man from Milwaukee and "The Star-Spangled Banner" was played at Washington, D. C. President MacLaurin, of the institute, told each of the thirty-five cities "Good Night."

MANN DENOUNCES ATTACKS

Assails Democrats for Criticism of Hughes's Course

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Republican Leader Mann made a speech in the house today, denouncing Democratic attacks on former Justice Hughes, for resigning from the United States supreme court bench to accept the Republican nomination for President and declaring the Democrats had supplied precedents in 1904 by nominating Alton B. Parker, chief justice of the New York state court of appeals, and by voting on Federal Judge George Gray, at the same convention. Representative Gordon, of Ohio, replied that Judge Parker's situation was different because he was holding a state elective office.

The house adjourned at 1:57 p. m., until noon, Friday.

ARRESTED ON RETURN TO CITY

Marcus Packard, Former Indianapolis Man, Accused of Check Frauds.

Marcus Packard, a former local bond dealer, who for the last year has been in the bonding business in New York, was arrested by detectives last night soon after he arrived in Indianapolis. He is held under high bond on charges of forgery and issuing fraudulent checks.

Before going to New York, Packard is alleged to have given worthless checks to Harry B. Gates, president of the Severin Hotel Company, and to Homer Cutsinger, of the Hotel English. Both checks were for $50. The police say Packard admitted the charges.

H. Cornwell Wilson Dead.

BOSTON, June 15.—H. Cornwell Wilson, first reader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, died today at the former home of Mrs. Mary G. Baker Eddy. Before coming here two years ago, he was chairman of the Christian Science committee on publication in New York.
