Two sons of Mr. George Colclaz, of Bass Mills, Shelby county, got into a quarrel one day last week. Their father attempted to part them, when one of them drew a knife and cut the old gentleman in the neck severely, if not fatally.

Little Dick Hollis, of New Albany, never was a catcher of a base ball nine, and so was not sufficiently skillful to catch the bowler his little playmate wafted at him, and wears one eye in a sling and two front teeth in his pocket, in consequence.

The infant child of Mr. J. W. Young, of Monticello, fell against a red hot stove on last Thursday morning, and was nearly burned to death. It seems that the child had been in the habit of climbing into a high chair, and while its mother was absent in some other part of the house, the little fellow crawled to the chair, which was sitting near the stove and while climbing up, fell over against the stove.

A young man named Good, while engaged in adjusting a belt on the fly wheel of a saw mill, at Milton Station, ten miles east of Terre Haute, on the Indianapolis and St. Louis Railroad yesterday morning, was caught by the arm and revolved about the wheel at a rapid rate until he was literally torn to pieces, suffering instant death.

Among the incidents of the late conflagration in Spencer, it is related that a barrel of whiskey was rolled out of a drug store when a citizen knocked in the head and with a bucket commenced throwing the contents on the fire. It is said that the fluid acted as well as the best Croton in extinguishing the conflagration.

The spring floods in the Ohio, if they ever come, will, it is believed, sweep away the last vestige of that old land-mark of the falls of the Ohio, Corn Island. Less than a quarter of an acre now remains. When General George Rogers Clark was on his expedition for the capture of Vincennes and Kaskaskia, Corn Island furnished him an encampment for his entire army of 2,500 men.

A dentist in this city has introduced a novel method of extracting teeth. He fastens his forceps firmly on the offending cussed or bicuspoid acher, soldiers it tight, then attaches the forceps to a chain securely hitched to the stove leg; then with force and dexterity hurls a brick at the victim—we mean the patient's head. The dodge that follows brings the tooth. We don't say positively that this is strictly so. There may be some mistake in details, but the principle is correct.—T. H. Express.

The supreme court of the state has decided that the fee and salary act as a whole is not invalid, but that so much of said act that required sheriffs and clerks to pay over to the county treasurer their fee, or any part thereof, is unconstitutional and void. Under this decision the clerks and sheriffs are entitled to and will retain all the fees they earn. The court has also decided that part of the act allowing witnesses $1.50 per day, is valid, and also the charges of 25 cents for indexing $5.00 for jury fee and $2.00 for docket fee, are legal under said act.

The remains of Jonathan Jennings, the first Governor of Indiana, are resting in an old grave yard at Charlestown, without even a poor headstone to mark his burial place. His grave, to-day, would be on the commons and entirely lost sight of, but for the kind care of a private citizen, the editor of the Clark County Record, who keeps it enclosed and cared for. Politicians in Clark county have often tried to make capital by advocating the erection of a monument to Gov. Jennings. Efforts have been made to obtain Legislative appropriations for the same purpose. But all these efforts have failed, and the Governor sleeps on in an unknown and unmarked grave.

The State Board of Agriculture at their meeting at Indianapolis, resolved to sell their present ground, and adopt the migratory plan. But it was resolved to hold the Fair at Indianapolis this year.

Hon. D. W. Voorhees, is now in favor of paying the public debt in greenbacks, we see. Time indeed, does "set all things right." We hope Daniel will yet denounce that spread-eagle, rebel persuasion decaying before the young lion of the University of Virginia.

In the United States no official, however faithful, pure and patriotic, is out of the reach of partisan rancor. No man was more villainously maligned than Washington during and even after his official career. A Democratic paper published in Philadelphia said, just at the close of Washington's second term, "If ever a Nation was debauched by a man the American Nation was debauched by Washington." It ever a Nation was deceived by a man it was deceived by Washington." Lincoln that pure-minded, unselfish and spotless man, whose soul abhorred the slightest semblance of wrong, was defiantly charged with every crime known to man, and maligned as a monster, a murderer and a gorilla. And so far did Democratic rancor go that his cowardly assassination by a Democratic traitor met the sanction and applause of a very large portion of his political opponents. Can we wonder then, that Gen. Grant, the quiet, unobtrusive, incorruptible business-like President, has encountered the furious assaults of a treasonable, demented and demoralized Democracy. But what of this? The world regards Washington and Lincoln as among the greatest, purest and best men that ever lived. And Gen. Grant will be honored and his memory be cherished by a grateful Nation when his defamers are among the politically damned and doze for, and when their bones are being dug up by coming generations as rebellious—as despised relics of a rough and rude race of country-hating heathen.

James Whitcomb once carried the State of Indiana for the Democracy by a plea for the removal of the tariff on tea and coffee, the poor man's luxuries. He showed that the duty on these articles made an equal distribution of expenses between the rich banker and the poor laborer, instead of taxing them according to wealth. Now the Democratic party ranges itself on the side of the rich, and although the House the other day passed a bill admitting these articles free of duty, the leading Democrats voted against it. The boast that the party is the "poor man's party" has given place to the fact that it is any man's poor party.

Good occasionally comes out of evil. A young man employed in the Xenia powder mills, was in Springfield to spend the Sunday, got drunk, overslept himself and missed the train Monday morning. Had he kept sober and been at his work Monday morning, his fragmentary remains might have been gathered up in a market basket after the explosion. It is not safe to take this as a precedent for getting drunk on Sundays. All drunkards do not work in powder mills, though all deserve a good blowing up of some kind.

In a speech at the first grand rally of the Republicans in the New Hampshire canvass, at Concord, Ex-Governor Harriman said: "If General Grant had come up from the South, and gone with fire and sword through Pennsylvania, the Democrats would have remembered and told of his great exploits. The trouble with the Democrats is that Grant fought on the wrong side. The finances of the nation are around. Its bonds stand high in the world. Its securities are eagerly taken by all nations at low rates. Over one hundred millions a year are paid on the public debt, and at this rate the nation's liabilities would be extinguished in fifteen years.

The Supreme Court of Indiana, by opinion filed last week, declares that National Bank stock shares are not exempt from taxation levied for school, railroad and township purposes, the law exempting such shares of stock from taxation only for strictly municipal purposes.

The Indianapolis Commercial has been changed from an evening to a morning paper, in order to meet the demand throughout the State for a cheap, reliable, Republican paper. It will contain all the latest telegraphic and home news, and be an independent and radical advocate of the distinctive measures of the Republican party. It is amusing to notice with what frequency some people call at the postoffice for letters, though they are unable to remember the time when they last received a postal communication. Walker says one individual in particular, who has not received a letter since Adam was a baby, calls regularly three or four times a day, and in the interim sends his children, ten in number, to the office, one at a time. Gen. Beauregard is criticizing, in a Southern newspaper, the military plans and movements of General Grant. Southerners generally disliked Grant's movements as much as Beauregard does.

In a divorce case pending in Ohio the grounds of the husband's application are that his wife insists that he shall kill the old cat that has been with them for ten years. He says "it is not because he hates to part with the animal, but the job is too much to ask of him while he is in feeble health, as at present." He has drowned her twice, shot fourteen rifle balls through her vitals, given her half a pound of strychnine committed hari-kari on her with a pitch fork, and the only effect perceptible is a trifle more tone to her voice and a lay window over one eye. This is one of the most singular concatenations on record.

Indianapolis Business Intelligence. Removal of the Wholesale House of Vinnedge, Jones & Co., from 68 to 93 and 95 South Meridian St. To the vast increasing wholesale trade of Meridian street during the last ten years, Indianapolis greatly indebted for her popularity abroad. Passing down Meridian street from Washington to the Depot, one can not but admire the many large and beautiful business blocks lately erected. It is also plainly discernible that while these buildings have been in a great measure built in ornamental style, they have been put up with an eye to the interest of the parties who occupy them. Judging from the manner in which the building at 93 and 95 has been erected, the present firm spared neither pains nor expense to have these rooms suited to meet the wants of their customers. Some seven years ago Messrs. Vinnedge, Jones & Co. started in the wholesale boot and shoe trade at 66 south Meridian street. Commencing with the determination to do and to conquer, they have built up a trade which has at last compelled them to seek larger and more commodious quarters, and candor compels us to say that in their removal to Nos. 93 and 95, they now occupy rooms that for adaptability to the boot and shoe business, are without equal in the State of Indiana. Plenty of room here enables the merchant to select his season's stock with the greatest of care, and, as for light, no house on Meridian street is equal to it. Parties, if they desired, could not examine goods out of doors with any more satisfaction than they can in any part of this building. Meridian street is taking high rank in the commercial interests of the West, and it will be a matter of great surprise to us if the sales of the wholesale boot and shoe house of Vinnedge, Jones & Co. do not increase during the year the snug sum of $100,000. Indianapolis, with her railroad facilities, is without doubt the equal of Cincinnati, Chicago, or any point in the West, as a market for any class of goods, and it will be a great mistake with merchants generally, if in visiting the city they do not call on Vinnedge, Jones & Co., at 93 and 95 South Meridian street, and examine their first class stock of boots and shoes. We remind the merchants throughout the State that this firm are now receiving and opening their spring stock, and that they merit at least an inspection of their goods, for a more desirable assortment to select from cannot be found in Indianapolis.

From the Morgan Co. Republican. The Spencer Case. The case of the State against Daniel O. Spencer, for homicide, is now being tried in the Circuit Court. W. R. Harrison is, by agreement, sitting as Judge, pro tem. Quite a novel and nice law point was presented in the case, in which several hours were consumed in arguing. The defendant was indicted and tried in Owen county some three years ago, upon a charge of murder in the second degree, but was acquitted by the jury, of the charge of murder, and found guilty of manslaughter only—at his own instance a new trial was granted, and the case sent to this county. Upon the case being called for trial on Tuesday morning, the defendant moved to be discharged upon the ground that he had been acquitted at the former trial of the charge of murder, and could not, under the constitution, be again put in jeopardy for that offense, but for manslaughter only, and as the indictment did not charge him with the last mentioned offense, there was nothing on paper to which the State could compel him to plead. The point was ably argued by counsel, pro and con, but the Court, without assigning any reasons, overruled the defendant's motion, and held him to answer to the charge—after which a jury was impaneled, without much delay, and the trial proceeded.

There is much sickness in Clinton and vicinity. Mr. Wiley, the Clinton undertaker, informed us last Saturday, that he had buried some twelve grown persons in the ten days just preceding and we hear of a number of very dangerous cases there at this writing. The disease is called spotted fever, and is unusually fatal, sometimes carrying off its victims in a few hours.—Newport Transcript.

The Indianapolis Journal says: "There is a shaking among the dry bones of one of our uptown Methodist Churches. Yesterday morning the Pastor read the discipline to his congregation, and enforced it by the remark that he intended to have 'churched' every member of the flock who did not hereafter strictly observe requirements." Put 'em through.

Citizens! If you are not cowards, turn out en masse, and say to a corrupt Judge and purchased jurors that the people shall rule. MANY CITIZENS." "Do you allow any reduction to ministers?" said a young lady to a salesman in a well known sewing agency on Washington street, Boston, the other day, where she had been trying to drive a bargain. "Oh, yes, always. Are you a minister's wife?" "Oh, no, I'm not married," said the lady blushing. "Daughter, then?" "No," the salesman looked puzzled. "I'm engaged to a theological student." The reduction was made.
