The fact is developed in Chicago that large quantities of a material which is called "butter," and sold as such in the market, is really made of lard by a process known only to a few. One establishment in that city has been doing a prosperous business for more than a year, and has a trade so extensive that shipments are made to England. No effort whatever is made at concealment. The manufacturer is frank about it, and says the compound is no more injurious than pork. A large number of restaurants are said to be using it as butter, and the report is that other manufacturers are to be opened soon.

Years ago the oyster did not figure to any extent in the finances of this country, but the time has arrived when that slippery, slimy little bivalve plays quite an important part in our business transactions. It is estimated that the oyster sales in New York this winter will reach $4,500,000, and that over three thousand five hundred persons are there employed in the trade. The exportation to European markets has also increased to such an extent that perhaps one hundred thousand barrels will be shipped this season.

VERY PROFOUND.—This is the easiest sort of outwitting and it cannot be contradicted nor proven. The Indianapolis Sentinel says: "If Mr. Kerr had lived and retained his place as speaker of the house, the Democratic party would now be in possession of every department of the government, and Hancock would be inaugurated President on the 4th of March instead of Garfield." This kind of assertion is somewhat like the proverb: "If the dog hadn't stopped to sleep he would have caught the rabbit." All the profound fools are not dead.—New York Dispatch.

An eccentric Berlin philosopher announces that he has discovered a way to make a trip around the world in twenty-four hours. He says that he is informed by the captains of ships that birds are seen at sea a thousand miles or more from land, and pronounces it self-evident that they must reach shore in a very short time, since they cannot find a resting place in mid-ocean. From this he conceived the idea that they merely raise themselves aloft, and with only enough motion to keep aloft, remain as nearly stationary as possible, while the earth revolves around under them. All they then have to do is to wait until the desired spot on the earth's surface comes along, and thereupon comfortably lower themselves to solid ground. This ingenious practice on the part of birds the Berlin man proposes to imitate for mankind, with the assistance of a balloon and passenger car of peculiar construction that he has invented, and with which he will soar aloft and remain stationary, while the restless earth rolls on below. It does not appear that he has successfully tried a trip with his balloon himself, but he has laid his theory before the Polytechnic Society of Berlin and given an elaborate exposition of it. The society received it apparently with levity, but the inventor is in dead earnest.

A New Orleans invalid bought six bottles of a patent medicine, warranted to cure the disease from which she was suffering. A notice was printed on the wrappers that the money would be refunded if, after following the directions implicitly, a complete cure was not wrought. The stuff did her no good. She demanded from the manufacturer, the $9 which she had paid him. He refused it. She has begun a suit, and her lawyer assures her that, as she obeyed directions in every particular, she has a clear case. Memphis also has some litigation growing out of the sale of a nostrum. In this instance a man bought of a barber a bottle of liquid to make the hair grow thicker on his head. He claims that it not only failed to do so, but it caused what hair he had to fall out. He wants $1,000 to cover the damage.

Forty years ago there were only three millionaires in Cincinnati.—Nicholas Longworth, who died leaving a fortune of nearly $10,000,000, Jacob Burnett and James Ferguson, who died each leaving about $2,000,000. The list is headed now with David Sinton, at $10,000,000, George H. Shoemaker, A. D. Breed, estate of James W. Goff, estate of Oliver Perin, R. K. Springer and Joseph Longworth, $5,000,000 each; over twenty persons are estimated to be worth at least $2,000,000, and a much larger number worth $1,000,000.

THE SKIN OF THE SKUNK SOLD UNDER ASSUMED NAMES.—While strolling along the streets of Indianapolis the other day, a reporter, in a dusty, cobwebby window, saw a piece of cardboard four or five inches square, on which was written, "Pure skunk oil and 'coon skin." A moth-eaten, weather-beaten 'coon skin hung above the door, which the reporter entered. "What do people buy skunk oil for?" said the proprietor in his answer, repeating the question. "Why they buy it for rheumatism, and I say, it never fails to cure." The reporter desired to see some pure skunk oil, having heard there were many worthless imitations abroad, and was shown a pint flask of an oily liquid of the color of linseed oil. The fluid had no more and no worse odor than lard oil. "We sell to all sorts of people, white, black, and yellow, the richest and the poorest," the proprietor continued. "This oil we get from the skins—that's as much of the skunk as I get—and the yield is usually about four ounces to the skin. Sometimes we get half a pint, and sometimes, though seldom, as much as a pint, to the pelt. There's no more than one skin in a thousand that'll yield a pint of oil. The animal is thin in flesh in summer, but very fat in winter. Skunk hides, last year, the best quality, were worth from $1.75 to $2 each. They will not be worth much more than half as much this year. I handled 2,000 skunk skins last year, nearly all of which were caught in Indiana. The animal abounds in southern and central Indiana. There are a few in this county, not many. The skins have been worth as much as $3.50, but they'll never see that price again—not very soon, at least.

"Is there any danger of the skunk crop in this State becoming exhausted?" "None at all. A skunk will have from three to seven young at a litter—usually about five. I've been a fur buyer for forty-two years, and there are more skunks in this State now than ever. There is a prejudice against the animal, which makes it necessary to sell the fur to ladies under several pretty aliases, among which are 'fitch' and 'American sable.' Besides being made into muffs and trimmings, the skins are largely used in making fine carriage robes."

The Kansas newspapers declare that a physician of La Cygne, in that State, narrowly escaped lynching, because he invented a compound that would instantly sober a drunken man. Public sentiment was against anything that tended to cause a waste of liquor.

Some time ago a number of gentlemen were discussing politics in a justice's office in this city and during the conversation became rather violent in their language.

"Order in the court!" thundered the squire, but order came not, and the men became more demonstrative than ever.

"Order," here I tell you, or I'll fine every one of you for contempt," yelled the dispenser of justice.

"How," replied the men; "court is not in session." "I don't give a d—," said the squire; "I want you to distinctly understand that this court is an object of contempt at all times."

—Hay is $300 a ton in San Juan county, Col.; but that is less than it was in 1860, when the price was twenty-five cents a pound. The Virginia City Enterprise says: "An old Frenchman made a snug little raise at packing grass up from Flowery District on an old horse. This grass grew in bunches about a rod apart, was about the thickness of a riding whip, and from six to eight feet long. Having no scales, the old man used to count his hay out, giving from three to five stalks for a pound. When this kind of hay was criticised by customers, the good old man, who did his moving with a hatchet, was wont to say: 'Ah, sure, I agree with you! Zee hay is a little coarse, but he is ver succulent. Besides, I give zee good weight. I nevaire cut one hay in two—nevaire, sare, nevaire!'"

The Great Hyde Estate.
Hopes of Sudden Wealth Dashed by a Careful Investigation.
An interesting story about the great Hyde estate, England, from the New York Sun, may have some value to Indiana readers, as many persons in this State have been basing visions of wealth upon it. The supposed value of the estate was estimated variously at from $60,000,000 to $350,000,000, and the idea was entertained to have it recovered by the lawful heirs of an ancestor named Hyde. Last summer the John Hyde Association, of Hamilton County, Ohio, composed of some of the supposed heirs to the vast estate, sent Hon. Thos. A. Logan to England in order to sift the claim to its foundation, if possible. The result of his investigation was that no such estate exists, and that it would be folly to dream of millions, where there never could be a reality of a farthing. Nearly all the Hydes in England and America were busy hunting up their pedigrees in order to lay claim to the estate. Mr. Logan's report to the John Hyde Association of Hamilton County, O., will bring bitter disappointment to hundreds in the United States who have been fondly living in many delusions of one day becoming suddenly wealthy.

In closing his report Mr. Logan says: "To show how successfully this business of claiming large estates is carried on, I would state that while I was in England, another American lawyer arrived there to claim another estate valued at about $3,000,000; there was also an English association existing to recover another equal amount, and upon my arrival here, in the first newspaper I saw, was an announcement concerning another supposed estate, about equal in amount and similar in circumstances to yours and the others. It is evident at once that the sums claimed for recovery in these cases would alone bankrupt any nation on earth. While my mission has not been productive of pecuniary profit, yet I think the result has been beneficial."

At a ball at Schwarzenberg, Saxony, a young man entered, having what appeared to be a cigar in his mouth. He went to the chandelier as if to light it, and a terrible explosion ensued. The lights were extinguished, the walls partly gave way, some of the dancers were covered with blood, and the young man was blown to pieces. He had killed himself by means of a dynamite cartridge.

The Terre Haute papers are laughing in their sleeves while they get off the original joke about Gov. Porter asking "for bread and they gave him a Stone." He, he; ha, ha. It is so funny.

We have several friends who drop into the office for a little reading matter. Recently one of these was in town, and being out of newspapers we carefully wrapped up a bundle of Congressional Records and sent him home rejoicing. Several days afterwards he sent the following note:

"Those Congressional Records I find very exciting reading—I may say, in some instances, very thrilling! Haven't you something milder—a little more soothing to the nerves? A few late exchanges, for instance? I find after reading fifteen or twenty speeches upon questions such as tariff on candlesticks, cork-legs, cross-eyed goggles, rattail files, tarred rope, etc., that my nerves are somewhat unstrung, and as I haven't any spiritus frumenti about me please spare a few late 'ex's' and send them to me by bearer."

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chills Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In malarial districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and limbs, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severe symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chills, do not cure, but leave the malarial and other drug poison in the system, producing quinsins, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure.

AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the several cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient, and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, Ayer's AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Each Tax-Payer may pay the full amount of his or her Taxes on or before the 3d Monday in April, 1881, or may, at their option, pay one-half thereof on or before said 3d Monday in April, and the remaining half on or before the 1st Monday in November following.

In all cases where as much as one-half of the amount of Taxes charged against a Tax-Payer (including all Road Tax) shall not be paid on or before the 3d Monday in April, 1880, the whole amount shall become due and returned delinquent with 10 per cent. damages and six per cent. interest, and collected as provided by law.

Bring your Road Receipts when you come to pay your 1st Installment, as they will not be received after the 3d Monday in April. If you are liable to pay Taxes in more than one Township, mention that fact to the Treasurer, as a separate receipt is given for each township. Examine your receipts before leaving the office, and see if they include all your property. No County Order will be endorsed or paid, when the party in whose name the order is drawn, owes delinquent taxes. Tax-Payers will find it greatly to their advantage not to put off tax paying until the last two or three days; and those that have their tax complicated, such as undivided Estates, &c., are especially requested to call when we are at leisure, as it requires considerable time to make the division and endorse receipts.
