

Republican Progress

Printed each Tuesday Morning, by
WILLIAM A. GARE, Editor and Publisher.

A war between England and Russia would cause a business boom in the United States. Let it come.

The solid South gets three Cabinet positions for her 153 electoral votes. Mr. Cleveland pays his debts liberally—at the public expense.

Commenting on President Cleveland's cabinet the New York Tribune says it is "purely English in sympathy and southern in selection."

If Abraham Lincoln had received the treatment and encouragement from Democrats that Cleveland is now receiving from Republicans, the unfounded hatred that culminated in his cowardly assassination might have been averted.

Twenty-five hundred of the female employees of the carpet mills in Yonkers, New York, struck recently, but when interviewed by a newspaper reporter not one could be found who could tell what they had struck for, or what their grievances were, if any. "The Union ordered us to strike and we did so, and that's all we know about it," was all the explanation the reporter could get. The girls were having a jolly time, and seemed to think it great fun to go out on a strike "like the men do."

The Weather in Southern California.

Rev. Stephen Bowers, a preacher of the M. E. church who was at one time stationed at Bedford, is editing a newspaper in Ventura, Cal., and in the last edition of his paper has this to say of the weather:

We receive frequent inquiries from the east concerning this section of the country, but our time is so occupied that we find it impossible to answer each inquiry separately. The cold weather has been so severe east of the Rocky Mountains that it has caused many to turn their thoughts to this climate. To such as have inquired of us in relation to our weather and climate we will say that it is generally conceded that more lovely weather could not be desired than that which has characterized our winter months. We can not now call to mind a single disagreeable day. Flowers bloom continuously and birds remain with us in all seasons.

You can have strawberries and nearly all kinds of vegetables any day in the year. Something over eight inches of rain has fallen this season. It is now becoming somewhat dry and if no more rain should fall crops would be light. But we expect the "later rain" next month and that will bring on the crops of wheat, barley, corn, beans, etc. Our days are never sultry, and our nights are always cool and induce refreshing sleep. If you want to know what the writer would add to this climate to make it more complete, we answer that we have nothing to add. The climate is all we can ask and desire in this life. To us it is paradise in every respect. It is no paradise next to it. Yet we have heard people grumble and complain even here. If it rains, they say we will have a flood; if it does not rain frequently they say we will have a drought; if the mercury gets down to fifty degrees above zero they complain of the cold; if it gets up to seventy-five degrees they complain of the heat, and the great surprise is that the Maker permits them to live in as fine a climate. The man who is not satisfied with the climate of Southern California will not be pleased with any climate on this earth. But come and try it for yourself.

After a man gets elected to a great office, and the chances of his being a success or a failure therein confront him, it is noticed that he tones down his partisan zeal considerably, and bestows some thought to the general welfare. Cleveland's inaugural address is especially suggestive of this point. His reference to polygamy in the Territories is much more outspoken and emphatic than any utterance of his on that question during the campaign. Likewise his declaration about the civil service is in advance of anything he said while a candidate. The people of all parties can cheerfully subscribe to the following from his address, if there shall be any pretense of observing it on the part of the new administration:

"Our citizens have the right to protection from the incompetency of public employees who hold their places solely as the reward of party service, and from the corruption and influence of those who promise and the vicious methods of those who expect such rewards, and those who worthily seek public employment have the right to insist that merit and competency shall be recognized, instead of party subservience or the surrender of honest principles."

—Orange raising in California has not been successful this year, prices having fallen as low as 35 cents a box in some instances. The fruit is not so large as usual, but excellent in flavor, and, though now ripe, will be better if left on the trees till May. The lemons are large and fine.

—It is said that the only living sister of Stonewall Jackson is Mrs. Laura J. Arnold, now an inmate of Dr. Shepard's Sanitarium at Columbus, Ohio, where she has been for years. She is well cared for by her sons, and never has been the recipient of charity.

—Miss Cleveland, the sister of the President, who is installed as "Mistress of the White House," is somewhat of a character. She is a woman of ideas; a teacher and a lecturer, and belongs to the class called strong minded. She is thirty-eight years old, and wears her hair short; is bright and well educated, and is said to be smarter than her brother, the President. We presume this is the first time in the history of the country that the President has been a bachelor and the chief lady of his household an "old maid." The White House is a veritable bachelor's hall indeed.

—The New Age enters a protest against smoking in public meetings, lodges, etc., where non-smokers are annoyed or compelled to absent themselves. It is surprising that men who have a proper regard for their fellowmen will deliberately smoke in stages, or steamers, in court rooms and other places where those whom it makes sick cannot escape them. It is ungentlemanly, although persons who make pretensions to being gentlemen are guilty of this conduct.

—Columbus Republican: The large Democratic majority in Brown county is made to do good service in the late gerrymander of the State. Bartholomew, Brown and Monroe constitute a senatorial district, the Republican majority in Monroe being nullified by the arrangement; Brown Morgan and Johnson form another and the Republican majority in Morgan being wiped out. Then it is asked to Monroe to form a representative district, and the Republican majority in that county is again crushed. Thus the vote of the five counties of Bartholomew, Johnson, Morgan, Monroe and Brown are controlled by the latter. With a Republican vote in the five counties of 9,415 they cannot possibly elect more than one representative while the Democrats with a vote only a little larger, will elect two senators and three representatives. This is the way it has been managed all over the State and is the means by which they expect to elect 110 members of the Legislature out of a total of 150. Yet this is a reform Legislature and they have the gall to declare that this is a fair apportionment.

—Ind. Journal: Isaac P. Gray is Governor of Indiana; Isaac P. Gray's son, Pierre, is private secretary of the Governor of Indiana; Bayard Gray, the brother of Isaac P. Gray's private secretary is to have the postmastership of Portland. If there are any other members of the Governor's family who want places, it is to be hoped they may be provided for before the dreadful cry of nepotism is raised.

—On and after July 1 next a 2-cent stamp will carry a letter of one ounce weight, instead of a half ounce, as at present. In other words, people may write letters of double the length and weight that they now do.

New Orleans and the Exposition.

The following, from the Green-Castle Banner, gives a pretty fair estimate, it is said, of affairs at the Crescent City:

E. T. Williamson arrived here Sunday on his way to Kansas from the New Orleans Exposition. He left there on Friday. He and his party came back thoroughly disgusted with New Orleans and the South. He says that they act like a herd of hogs grubbing everything in the dirt. The so-called fruit and hotels were particularly marked by the absence of that courtesy usually extended to visitors. One county in Kansas, he maintains, afforded more of the men of spirit and enjoyment than he saw all the way from the Ohio River to New Orleans. There are evidences of decay everywhere and they are behind the times on everything. The southern forerunner of the South. Mr. Williamson for some time was entirely cured. He learned from prominent Democrats of New Orleans that the condition of that city is fifty per cent worse than it was under carpet rule, and that the people are being constantly robbed by the officials. City orders are worth only 60 cents on the dollar, and only those in the ring can draw the cash from the banks for aid after having wasted the condition of the streets is horrible and they are now praying for Butler's return. The Exposition is very fine, but it is mostly furnished and patronized by the North, and for enjoyment lasting but an hour. The management seems to be utterly incompetent every way. The Mardi Gras, however, proved a great success. It was the one object of interest to everybody, and many thousands went to New Orleans from the neighboring country and cities to see it who did not go near the Exposition. Some of the uniforms worn in the Mardi Gras procession cost as high as $2,500. It cost some of the secret societies $10,000 each, to participate in this grotesque foolishness. He never saw so much money spent foolishly, and for enjoyment lasting but an hour. His sanitary condition is such as to invite yellow fever, and when it comes next summer they will again appeal to the North for aid after having wasted their own substance in riotous living.

—Orange raising in California has not been successful this year, prices having fallen as low as 35 cents a box in some instances. The fruit is not so large as usual, but excellent in flavor, and, though now ripe, will be better if left on the trees till May. The lemons are large and fine.

Farmers' Fatal Feud!

Allen's Accurate Aim.

Death in "The Abstract"

DESPERATE, DEADLY DUEL.

Fighting Fiercely After Being Fatally Shot.

Four miles west of Ellettsville, this county, resides David Allen, a farmer who has been known during the past fifteen years as one of the most energetic and progressive men of the neighborhood. He owns about 600 acres of land in one body, and resides upon the farm it comprises. He also at different times purchased adjoining farms, among others one known as the Dave Woods farm. This farm he sold some three years ago to W. W. Pitts, who came from a locality near Indianapolis. Pitts and Allen have been doing business together from time to time, and recently disagreements have arisen, and finding himself unable to pay the $9,000 he contracted to give Allen for the farm, Pitts had the land revert to the original owner, losing as it is said he claimed, some $3,000 in the transaction. Pitts recently visited Kansas, and while there bargained for a farm and came home to dispose of his personal property preparatory to removing. The sale took place on Tuesday of last week, and it was observed that the men, who were hardly on speaking terms, studiously avoided each other during the entire day. Deputy sheriff Payne approached Pitts with reference to an unsettled execution, and deputy treasurer Gilbert was inquiring about some unpaid taxes, in all aggregating $200. The matter was arranged, but Pitts said Allen had a note and some money belonging to him, amounting to $760, and that he must settle the claims. Payne asked Allen and he denied having the money, but said he held the note to secure himself against some claims that Pitts had made him liable for. Payne asked Pitts to talk the matter over with Allen but he refused to do so—both men were evidently on their guard over some misunderstanding. Between 5 and 6 o'clock Pitts sent one of his children to Allen's house with a request that he come and settle their accounts. Allen came and they then began to talk over their business. The real cause of the trouble was the dispute over payment for an abstract of title furnished for the Dave Woods farm. Allen insisted that Pitts had agreed to pay for the abstract, while Pitts just as emphatically denied it, and the talk came in fast and furious in the way of—liars, &c. Allen held an account book in the left hand and had his right hand in his pocket; Pitts began drawing his overcoat from his shoulders, and Allen, holding his hand down level with his own hips, fired his revolver at Pitts, the ball entering the body about one inch above and two inches to the right of the navel, passing through the intestines on its way. Allen walked hurriedly to the door and passed out; Pitts got his revolver stood in the door, and opened fire on Allen who stepped behind a tree and promptly returned Pitts' fire; Pitts came dashing back into the house again, secured his shot gun and fired at Allen who was then in the road about fifty paces away. Pitts came back into the room, and began to grow faint, realizing for the first time that he had been shot. Dr. Whitted was sent for and pronounced the wound fatal. He lingered till Thursday night at 11:30 when death relieved him from his sufferings.

Allen and Pitts were both over fifty years of age. Allen gave bond for his appearance in circuit court for the sum of $5,000, with Nolan Thomas, Alfred N. Layman, Wm. Hedrick and T. J. Allen as sureties. Buskirk & Dunham have been retained by Allen to conduct his defense.

On Friday afternoon a post mortem examination was held on the body of Pitts by Coroner Maxwell, and before he had concluded his examination of witnesses, or made his report, an affidavit was filed by I. C. Smith before the Mayor of this place, charging Allen with murder, and a warrant was issued. Smith went to Ellettsville on Saturday, arrested Allen and brought him to Bloomington on the evening train. He was taken before the Mayor who set the preliminary examination for Tuesday (to-day), and Allen was placed in custody of the sheriff. It was at first intended to take the remains of Pitts to Rush county for interment, but owing to a wreck on the railroad the trains were delayed, and that plan was abandoned. The burial took place in Richland township.

Louden & Miers have also been retained to defend David Allen. Allen is fifty-nine years of age. Pitts leaves a wife and six children. Some of the shot from Pitts' gun found lodgment in Allen's heavy overcoat, and a few penetrated the skin of one leg, but did no material damage.

There were four persons in the room beside Pitts and Allen, when the shooting occurred, viz: Frank E. Worley, Wm. Miller, and Allen's two grown sons, Bart. Acuff was in the adjoining room when Allen fired, but came in soon afterwards.

Some of the "eye witnesses" state that Pitts' overcoat was lying on a chair; that after a threat he stooped over, and with his right hand reached into a pocket, and that he had his revolver in his hand when he raised up.

The prosecution of Allen will be conducted by Henley & Rogers. There is considerable variance in the statements of "eye witnesses," which is easily understood when the excitement under which all must have labored is taken into account. It is reasonable to suppose that the spectators were too busy dodging anticipated bullets to notice the motions of the combatants closely.

The Kansas Whisky Traffic. There seems to be an exodus to Kansas from the southern part of the state. Within the past month twenty families have moved from Floyd county. Last week fifteen Germans from Romney, Maryland county, left on the Air-line for Greenville, Kansas. A correspondent inquired of a number going why they selected Kansas. The universal response was: "Well, we have boys growing up who are selling into drug stores and saloons in the cities and small towns, and we are going to Kansas where they will be relieved of this temptation."

This sounds well, but unfortunately there is no truth in it. Several Bloomington gentlemen who spent a portion of the past year in Wichita, Kansas, say that the saloons have increased rapidly in number, and that regularly once a month each saloon keeper is fined $50, which he promptly pays, and everything is lovely. It beats the license system, say the whisky men.

College Affairs.

Many of the College students regret the withdrawal of Mr. Will Rogers from the race for Mayor. Will has a host of friends in college who will take great pleasure in voting for him, whenever opportunity offers. They believe that success should follow merit, and therefore should follow him. But the voters in college can vote for as good a man in the other candidate, which they will very cheerfully do.

A special car is talked of to the State Court next term. The usual Senior Car will probably stay at home.

W. C. Mason, J. Z. McCaughan, and N. R. Spencer, will represent Indiana University at the State Oratorical Association.

College items will be few next week.

No lecture in College Chapel last Sabbath.

The editor of the Indianapolis Journal is a progressive man, and has broad, liberal views upon the subjects of education and scientific research. In the Journal of Saturday occurs the following paragraph:

What the State of Indiana should do, if it could stop its infamous partisan legislation long enough, would be to equip the State University with an astronomical department and observatory worthy the name, and put it in charge of Prof. Daniel Kirkwood, whose name sheds lustre upon that science the world over. It is a shame that this has not been done years ago. More than once has the Journal called the attention of former Legislatures to the manifest duty and propriety of such a movement. It would not hurt the State of Indiana to be known for something else than its "gerrymandering" villanies and its petty political squabbles between Democratic "leaders."

Prof. Newkirk will move this week from extreme east 3d street to North College Avenue, from pole to pole of the city. He has purchased the property of Rev. W. P. McNary for $3,000. Of course he will find the change of location much to his liking, moving from this out-of-the-way suburb to the choice location in the city. [This item is suggested by a 3d street loafer, or a country correspondent, and the editor is in no wise responsible.]

The term closed Friday, 20th, for one week's vacation. Most of the students will remain in town during the time, recreating, reading, loafing, or making up back work. Some of them, who reside near, were sent home on reduced rate tickets, to spend a pleasant week with their home folks, and some were sent to stay.

The next term begins Monday, March 30. Several former students who have been out during the year, as well as several new ones are expected.

Examinations have been the order of the day for the last week. The boys and girls, from Seniors to 1st Preps, have been on the anxious seat. The term closed very successfully.

Miss Hattie Freeman, of Winamac, will return to college next term.

Misses Eva and Lulu Phillips have returned to Bloomington, and one, or both of them, will attend college next term. Their father's family will occupy the Bowers property, on North College Ave.

Miss Widdie Fouts, of Carroll co., will be in next term, after an absence of a year.

Mr. Crockett, of Solberry, one of Greene County's good teachers, is among the first of the new students to report for next term.

Says the Indianapolis Journal: "Probably very few residents of Indiana are aware of the original work done in mathematical astronomy by Professor Kirkwood, in the thirty years he has been im-mured among the hills of Bloomington, and in the quiet cloisters of the State University. He is the author of a work, 'Comets and Meteors; Their Phenomena in All Ages, and Their Mutual Relations, and the Theory of Their Origin,' published in 1873, in Philadelphia. It has been said that this gentleman, learned, but modest scientist is far better known abroad than in his own State. He is one of the most ardent and vigorous teachers of mathematics, and curiously enough, has never taught the astronomical classes in the university, making his researches among the stars a avocation rather than a vocation."

Bell's French Electro-Magnet.
[From the Dublin Medical Journal.]
The merit of Bell's French Electro-Magnet consists in its combining in one machine every advantage one could possibly derive from a room full of all the electrical apparatus. Combining with all the best features of the early dynamo machine for generating electricity, electro-magnetism, besides possessing some peculiarities of its own, it has the passage of the electric current through the body without change, it can be used in an immense stock of ready reference placed among the triumphs of science. Our French medical practitioners are as loud in its praise for the treatment of rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, etc., as it is for the treatment of the most delicate cases of hysteria, and for the cure of the most obstinate cases of toothache treated by him in the month of June, only three days of immediate relief from Bell's French Electro-Magnet. Dr. M. J. Bell's French Electro-Magnet is a most valuable addition to the stock of every physician, and is sold in France for francs.
