On Friday last, the day set for the examination of Wm. Wright, accused of being the express car robber, the town rapidly filled with people from the southern part of the county, where Wright resides. He came to town early in the forenoon and was walking around seemingly indifferent to the result.

When the Louisville express train arrived at 12 o'clock a large crowd was at the depot, drawn thither by the report that Webster, the wounded baggageman, would be on the train, as he was coming to Bloomington to identify the accused. His appearance as he stepped from the car created something of a sensation, as his head was bandaged and his countenance appeared pale.

At 1 p. m. Mayor Mulky took his place in the Judge's chair in the court room, and the court house was soon crowded with an eager throng of people.

Almost an hour was consumed in consultation and mysterious movements upon the part of the officers, Wright being the center of all eyes. After a while Capt. Friedley arose, and after saying that the prosecution had become satisfied that Wm. Wright was not guilty of the crime with which he was charged, asked that the case be dismissed. "We arrested another man, however, and he has been identified by the baggageman." This statement of course created intense excitement, and just then Marshal Smith was seen struggling through the crowd, having in custody Chesley Chambers, a single man of 30 years, who resides with his father, some four miles northwest of the point on the railroad at which the robbery was committed.

Chambers is a man a little over the medium height, has whitish blue eyes, a very white monstache, and is a pronounced strawberry blonde. Prominent on the left side of his face were scars not yet healed, as also were scratches on the back of his left hand. He seemed to be unmanned by the terrible accusation, as well he might.

Chambers' bail was placed at $5,000 and the preliminary examination set for Wednesday of this week. At a late hour in the evening Matt Snoddy and Chesley Woodward placed their names on the bond and the prisoner was released. Chambers' attorneys are Buskirk & Duncan, East & East and Jas. Morgan.

Chambers had been working for a neighbor farmer named Chapp. May, and was expected Thursday morning (day after the robbery) to husk corn. He did not come in the morning, and only put in an appearance at 2 p. m. His hands were bruised and scratched, and a long, deep scratch was on the left side of his face. When asked how he had been hurt he briefly replied that he had fallen down on a snag. While talking to May, later in the afternoon, he fell asleep. His conduct and condition excited May's suspicions, and he communicated with Frank Dobson, keeping him posted as to Chambers' movements during the past two weeks. Capt. Friedley had also been informed of the circumstances pointing to Chambers, and a detective was put on Thursday evening, ed. Two suits of clothes were found, but nothing in their condition that would indicate a bloody struggle. In a desk was a new long pocket book, containing $133 in bills, all of them with holes made by express company's needles. It is said that four out of every five bills now in circulation are pierced in this way, so that this by itself is but weak evidence.

To a reporter, Col. Friedley, attorney for the railroad company, said: "We have succeeded in getting hold of the right man. Wm. Wright is innocent. The guilty party is a fellow by the name of Chambers. He has been fully and promptly identified by Mr. Weber, the wounded baggageman. We have had Chambers shadowed very closely, and have developed enough evidence to convict him, independent of the identification of Weber. To make the identification complete and freeing it from the appearance of collusion, Weber was kept in ignorance of the evidence against Chambers, and was led to believe that the prosecution was being made against Wright. And yet on sight of Wright Mr. Weber promptly said: 'He is not the man.'"

"We had Chambers subpoenaed here as a witness, and we made him believe that his evidence would be of importance touching a matter or two. I had him brought to my room at the National House, ostensibly for consultation. Meantime Mr. Miller and Deputy Prosecutor W. P. Rogers had taken Mr. Weber there. I talked to Chambers in the presence of Weber for some fifteen minutes, as though he was our main witness. When I got through questioning the fellow, Mr. Weber took me out into an adjoining room, and with great excitement said to me: 'Colonel that's the man! That's the man who shot me! That's his voice; that's his eye; and I know he's the man!'"

Chambers has heretofore borne a good reputation, is a member of one of the best families in southern Monroe county, and is a member of good standing in the Christian church in his father's neighborhood. He is thirty years old, and physically answers the description given by Weber and others heretofore of the express robber. He has been a stock-driver, but of late has been considerably involved. Has been needing money of late. On the day following the robbery he was to help H. C. May plant corn all day. He did not come, however, till 2 p. m., worked an hour or so, and while talking to Mr. May a few moments suddenly fell asleep. His face and hands were bloody from recent wounding, which he explained by saying he had fallen on a snag on the evening previous. Weber said as he embarked on the train in the afternoon for New Albany, that he is sure Chambers is the man who shot him and robbed the train, and if he had met him on the street he would have shot him down. An additional circumstance against Chambers is furnished by Taylor Voss, barber, who says he cut his hair the day before yesterday, and to-day shaved him, and that Chambers had trimmed his monstache, thus changing his appearance to some extent. Chambers has been financially embarrassed for months. The prosecution is keeping back some strong proofs of guilt.

On Saturday morning attorneys for the prosecution, Miller, Rogers and Henley, with Mr. Spencer the stenographer, went down to the neighborhood and instituted a court of inquiry before Justice Henry Dillman. Just what the facts are which they secured has not been fully divulged, but they assert that sufficient evidence has been adduced to destroy any attempt to prove an alibi upon the part of Chambers.

A great many unfounded rumors are in circulation, such as the finding of express packages, the discovery of blood-stained clothing, etc. The prosecution claim that Chambers has paid out over six hundred dollars since the date of the robbery, and that he had no money before that time, thus pointing to him as the robber, while the defense say that he has recently been paid sums of money by Indian Creek farmers.

On Sunday morning another warrant was issued on an affidavit charging Chambers with assaulting Davis with intent, etc., and an officer was sent to his father's house to make the arrest. Chambers was in services in South Union as a member he was then brought to Bloomington and lodged in jail. He stated to Rev. Mr. Philpott that after breakfast on Thursday, April 30, he was engaged in burning brush on his father's farm, and while carrying an arm-load of brush he fell and smugged his face and hands as heretofore mentioned.

EXAMINATION WAIVED AND A BOND GIVEN FOR $20,000.
On Monday afternoon the attorneys of Chambers had the prisoner brought to the Mayor's office, and after some tedious preliminaries, a proposition was made to waive examination, destroy the bond of last Thursday, and give a new bond for $20,000 for Chesley Chambers' appearance at the September term of circuit court. The following named gentlemen signed the bond, and accused was released: Paris Koons, Ezekiah Chambers, Simp. Chambers, Chesley Woodward, Homer Chambers, Wm. Butcher, Jacob Carmichael and Wm. Weimer.

—Indianapolis News: Report from Bloomington, Ind., concerning the arrest of a man supposed to be the train robber, says violence will not be attempted until he is identified. A more cold blooded announcement of savagery and lawlessness than this can not well be imagined. It was a shame to the State that such a robbery as this was possible, but it will be an indelible disgrace if a community is allowed to turn itself into a mob and add crime to crime by committing murder. Every man who encourages such an infamous sentiment should be apprehended as an accessory before the fact. The chief duty of the officers of the law at Bloomington now is to prevent murder, and save that community and the State from the criminal shame which these threats promise.

—T. H. O'Meara, a resident of the eastern part of the city, who came here while quite young, was fatally shot by some person, as yet unknown, one morning recently. The report of a gun was heard by most of the residents of the east side, but no one understood the meaning of it until the mutilated body of the victim was found some hours later. It is supposed that the murder was committed on account of the polygamous propensities of the deceased. The coroner has not yet investigated the affair, and the probability is that the murderer will go unhung.

—While Alice Le Favre, a performer in O'Brien's circus, was hanging by her feet to some ropes at the top of the tent at Trenton, N. J. last night, preparatory to doing a swinging act, one of the ropes broke and she fell to the ground. There was intense excitement among the 5,000 persons present, but the injured woman was borne hurriedly through the crowd and taken to her hotel, while the rest of the program was completed. Surgeons found that Miss Le Favre had smashed her nose to a jelly, had broken three ribs, and had received internal injuries that may result fatally.

—A German went into a restaurant, and as he took his seat an Irish waiter came up and bowed politely. "Wie geht's?" said the German, also bowing politely. "What cakes?" shouted the waiter, mistaking the salutation for an order. "Nein, nein!" said the German. "Nine?" said the waiter. "You'll be lucky if you get three."

College Affairs.

HOSPITALITY is a great virtue. Citizens of Bloomington should make it a rule to entertain visitors during Commencement week. Everybody should invite somebody to Commencement. Our town should be full of strangers who come to see the University, and who, after the treatment which the people of Bloomington know how to give them, will go to their home warmly attached to Indiana University, and our hospitable people. Especially should the parents and friends of the young graduates be made welcome.

DE PAUW made us a visit with her base ball club last Saturday. About fifty students came down on a special train to witness a match game of ball. The game was called at 2 o'clock sharp. Our boys were so badly "waxed" they were not aware afterwards that they knew how to play ball. The score stood 34 to 5 in favor of Greenstock. The boys lack the organization which they had last year, and a few of the players. Rabb's catching was of professional order, and Wiley's hot liners was worthy of applause; otherwise the boys seemed to play in childish excitement, as no good player will ever do. A continued series of errors reminded us of a few fresh hands trying to play base ball with boxing gloves and stoga boots. There are some excellent ball players among our present nine. But it is futile to attempt a match game without a thorough organization, and without having a thorough drill with the same unbroken nine. Inferior players who play together, will defeat every time nine superior men picked up in a day or two. An average set of fellows who are used to their places and who know each other on the field will never get "rattled" like our boys did the other day. Two years ago Ashury beat us; we beat them last year; and next year it may be our turn again.

THE Catalogue and Commencement programs are out. Send them to your friends. The Catalogue is of unusual interest.

THE next Sabbath lecture will be by Prof. Jones, Supt. of Indianapolis Schools.

THEY say the Seniors are talking of another serenade. What have we done?

'70 WAS a small class of eight members, but two of them are now members of the Honorable Board of Trustees,—Miers and Younce.

PROF. BECK delivered the last Sabbath lecture discussing the subject of "Arctic Explorations."

THE Baccalaureate sermon, two weeks from next Sabbath, will be preached by Prof. Ballentine, the late President of the University.

THE graduating Prep. Class is talking up a picnic. The class seems to have a large capacity for enjoyment and fun after they had earned it by hard work.

SOME of the Freshmen "sniped" a Senior the other night,—left him with the bag to hold. They say he held it till 2 o'clock in the morning. Is higher education a failure?

PROF. WOODFORD, a specialist and teacher in Yale, will probably be called to the chair of Political Economy and Metaphysics, next year. He would come with the highest recommendations.

PROF. JORDAN will lecture in Franklin next Thursday night, going through the country with the Seniors on their tramp. The boys and girls began to tramp yesterday, going toward Unionville.

THE Literary work of Prep. will close next Friday afternoon. Some good declamations, and a good exercise in general, are the usual custom of Preps. last day. We suppose next Friday will be no exception, and visitors may expect something good.

J. WHITCOMB RILEY, the Hoosier Poet, gave a remarkable entertainment in Mendelssohn Hall last Tuesday night. Those who did not go are bored. It is pronounced one of the best things of the year. Bring him back.

THE following are the officers elect for the lecture Association:
President, B. W. Evermann, Supt. Carroll Co.; Vice President, W. J. McCormick; Treasurer, Albert Rabb; Rec. Sec'y, E. B. Stewart; Cor. Sec'y, E. P. Bicknell.

HON. JULIUS W. YOUNCE, State Senator from Crown Point, Lake County, was last week elected a Trustee of Indiana University, to succeed Rev. Stetson of Logansport. Senator Younce is an alumnus of the University, graduating with the valedictory honor in 1870. He has been an ardent friend of his Alma Mater since his graduation, and is a man of influence in the northwestern part of the State. His presence in the last two Legislatures has been felt for good by the friends of the University. This is another fitting recognition of the Alumni upon the Board.

of the University, than any other member. He is a graduate from one of the earliest classes, 1833, and for more than fifty years his devotion to the old Indiana University has never flagged. It is safe to say it never will. More such men, whether officials or private citizens, who are ready to give unselfish service, is the need of our State Institution.

THE Athenian Spring Exhibition occurred last Friday night. The dulcet strains of that wonderful orchestra supplied the usual feast for the soul. The young orators fed the minds of their hearers. The following was the program:
Tom D. Long, Columbus, "A Dependence."
N. L. Bunnell, Green's Fork, "Injurious Elements in Politics."
G. A. Raitt, Salem, "The Nineteenth Century."
L. Van Buskirk, Bloomington, "The Other Side."
A. H. Beldon, Tampico, "America's Obligations to England."
F. T. Hunter, Bloomington, "Our Martyred Presidents."

Mr. Buskirk was absent on account of sickness, and Mr. Bunnell read his production as an essay. In other respects the performance was up to the usual high standard. Van Buskirk's sickness was much regretted by those who know his ability as a speaker.

THE CLASS of 1885 is the second largest in the history of Indiana University. It numbers 26, the largest class was that of '74, numbering 29.

Following are the names and addresses of the class of '85:
Charles F. Bain, Martinsville, Ind.
Mabel Bates, Franklin, Ind.
Ira C. Bateman, Bedford, Ind.
Minnie B. Bryan, Bloomington, Ind.

Edward C. Fitch, Albion, Illinois.
Rufus I. Green, Rushville, Ind.
Elmer E. Griffith, Vevay, Ind.
Markus Luther Hoffman, Auburn, Ind.
Mary E. Long, Columbus, Ind.
William C. Mason, Grand View, Ind.
J. Z. A. McCaughan, Morning Sun, Iowa.
Susan L. McCaughan, Morning Sun, Iowa.
Dora B. Merrill, Valparaiso, Ind.
Wesley W. Norman, Heltonville, Ind.
Lucian R. Oakes, Valparaiso, Ind.
Kate M. Philpott, Salem, Ind.

Robert E. Scott, Connersville, Ind.
Newton B. Spencer, Portland Mills, Ind.
John E. Wiley, Vevay, Ind.
Ella M. Wilson, Bloomington, Ind.
Grace H. Woodburn, Bloomington, Ind.

There are eight girls in the class the largest number since '74, which also had eight. Politically, they stand 19 republicans, 7 democrats; they are all for prohibition. The oldest member of the class is Mr. Day, 29; the youngest Miss Pearson, 18; four live outside of the State, four live in Monroe county; two-thirds are in favor of woman's suffrage. Seven expect to teach next year. All are stars of the first magnitude. Three have been with the class since it started from Number 1, Bloomington Graded School: Misses Bryan, Pearson, and Woodburn. Those three and Miss Ella Wilson and Messrs. Bain and Spencer are the only ones who graduated from the Preparatory Department. The class has a musician, a mathematician, two preachers, an orator, a poet, an editor, a social philosopher, a beauty, and a snipe catcher. All the world, and the rest of mankind, are invited to their Class Day.

THREE weeks and it will be over. Commencement season will begin two weeks from the coming Thursday, with an exercise from the Scientific Association.

Mortgages to the School Fund.
The Attorney General Holds That When They are Unpaid the Land May be Sold at Any Time.

In reply to a question by Superintendent J. W. Holcombe as to whether the County Auditor can proceed to sell mortgaged lands under mortgages given to the school fund at any time after proper notice, on failure to pay any installment of interest, when the same is due, or must he make all sales on the fourth Monday of March in each year, Attorney General Hord says that under the statute, when the interest or principal of any such loan becomes due and remains unpaid, the County Auditor can sell the mortgaged premises any time after lawful notice. He thinks it was intended that the county Auditor should possess a speedy and summary remedy to enforce collections, and continue as follows: "If he was required to sell on the fourth Monday in March only, then in many instances the officers could not enforce collections for a year after the delinquency, and default. It is my opinion that on failure to pay any installment of interest, when the same becomes due, the County Auditor is authorized to sell the land at any time, after sufficient and proper notice. The duty imposed on him by Statute, 'to offer for sale on the fourth Monday in March, annually, all mortgaged lands on which payments of interest are due on or the 1st day of January and unpaid on the day of sale,' is intended to be mandatory. He may sell at any time after default and notice thereof, but must offer for sale on the fourth Monday in March, annually, all mortgaged lands on which payments of interest are due on or the 1st day of January and unpaid on the day of sale."
