The time of holding the next National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held in St. Louis, is set for September 28.

The Dow liquor tax law has been sustained by the Ohio supreme court. Ohio has always been behind Indiana in that no local tax was charged for the sale of liquor.

Ex-Gov. Kirkwood, of Iowa, was defeated at the recent election in his candidacy for the House of Representatives. It was the first time in forty years that he was beaten at the polls.

Another terrible wreck occurred on the Monon last Sunday morning. The train that leaves here at 2 o'clock a. m. broke in two when nearing Wood River Station, four miles north of town, and the engineer, Daniel Heaphy of Lafayette, losing control of the train, his engine dashed into a freight from the north that was standing partly on the main and partly on the side track. The engineer and fireman jumped, the fireman escaping with a few bruises, but the engineer struck a trestle, and bounded back under the car wheels. His head was split and both legs crushed off. Death was instantaneous. The remains were brought to Bloomington and were prepared for burial by C. VanZandt, when they were taken to Lafayette where deceased had a wife and three children. Ten freight cars and the locomotive were a total wreck, entailing a loss of over $20,000.

As was foreseen in last week's paper, Dr. Jas. F. Dodge died on Wednesday night last, at his home in this city, with pneumonia. The "County History" says of him:

Dr. J. F. Dodge, second son and child in a family of eleven children, born Nov. 1, 1807, was reared in Lincoln county, Kentucky. His parents Samuel and Rachel (Blethen) Dodge, natives of Virginia and Kentucky respectively, came to Bloomington in 1819, where our subject received his education in the public schools. When twenty years of age he entered the State University, from which he graduated in 1824. He taught for several years in the University, and for one year in the Cumberland College, Kentucky. In 1830 he began reading Medicine, and soon after entered the Louisville Medical College. August, 1840, he entered into a partnership with Dr. Mitchell, and began the regular practice in Corydon, Indiana, where he remained for five years, constantly busy, in his lucrative practice. He has an older brother in the Presbyterian church, who remained in Corydon for several years. From 1845 to 1852, he was examining Surgeon in the Pension Department. On December 12, 1852, he was married to Mary A. Wylie, a daughter of Dr. Samuel Wylie, first President of the State University. They have eight children. Politically he was a Republican.

It will be seen that this is full of inaccuracies. The sketch on the third page is correct.

There can be but little doubt that a war is brewing in Europe. The growl of the Russian bear grows louder and uglier daily, and each day's dispatches bring news of some new demand made by the Czar of the great empire. All of the powers are showing a keen interest in every new development whether great or small, and each is endeavoring to make an alliance which will place her on the strongest side in case of war. It seems necessary that Europe should have trouble at regular periods, and her different powers have been at peace about as long as possible. Where such enormous standing armies are maintained something must be found for them to do.

Slipping of Leather Belts.

The slipping of belts is a great annoyance, not always remedied by tightening. The writer has known a slipping belt to be so shortened as to spring the shaft without preventing the slipping. The radical remedy is to keep the belt pliable, so as to hug the faces of the pulleys; but this is not always feasible. The belt may be softened by neat's foot oil or by castor oil. A siccative oil like linseed oil, is unfit for a leather belt, as it has an affinity for the oxygen of the atmosphere and reverts to its acid base, which is injurious to the leather.

When a ready remedy is demanded for a slipping belt, the powder known as whiting, sprinkled sparingly on the side of the belt, is least harmful of any similar application. Powdered resin is bad, as it soon dries the leather and cracks the belt, while it is difficult to get out of the leather; whereas whiting may be wiped off or washed off with water. The use of water on belts, preliminary to oiling is good. The belt should be washed on shutting down at night—or Saturday, after the close of work is better—and then the oil applied when the belt is partially dry. Never oil or wash the belt while stretched on the pulleys. If iron-faced pulleys were always lagged with leather, there would be little complaint of the slipping of belts. But often this slipping is due to too much strain on the belt; there is economy in running wide belts—wider than is the usual practice. Many a three inch belt has to do duty for a four inch belt, to the annoyance of the operator and the ruin of the belt.—Scientific American.
