The supreme court has decided the appointment of trustees for the benevolent institutions by the legislature to be legal, but they have not decided the appointment of the supreme court commission. The result of this will be that the asylums will go into new hands right soon. Dr. Simpson of this place has an assured position as physician in the Indianapolis asylum for the insane, at a salary of $1,500 and all expenses.

The necessity for a liberal expenditure in building up a new navy is emphasized by the terrible disaster and loss of ships of war at Apia. Following such a loss with the necessity of repairing it staring the country in the face, there is considerable consolation in the fact that there is a surplus in the Treasury. Under such circumstances a surplus is an undoubted blessing.

Commissioner of Pensions Turner has issued an order holding that "whenever a pensioner is disabled in the hand or foot in a degree entitling him to $24 per month, under the act of March 3, 1883, such pensioner shall, by reason of that fact, be entitled to a rate of $30 per month under the act of August 4, 1894." This order will favorably affect the pensions of some 600 to 800 disabled veterans of the late war.

A work at about 2:30 p.m. today, a legged a woman train near Corona, when it was discovered that a bridge 30 feet long and 15 feet high was on fire. Train men put it out and replaced the timber. This is believed to be an attempt at train wrecking as it is the third time the bridge has burned. Plenty of strong ropes should be furnished the railroad men in that locality.

The constant increase of negroes in Mississippi, for they seem to be flocking to that state from all parts of the south, is causing some uneasiness down there. A newspaper of that state gives the negro majority in the population as 60,511 in 1870, 172,528 in 1880, and estimates that the census of 1890 will show 354,921 more colored than white persons within its borders.

A lady correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette says she has no story for the noble savage as seen along the railroad routes, and that she was more than displeased with those assembled on the platform at the Needles. Surely something ought to be done to prevent the disgusting exhibition made by Indian squaws every time an overland train passes this point. Double shame to the white men, falsely termed gentlemen, who lower themselves to bandy coarse jokes with these wretched creatures.

Greencastle Banner: A car on a freight train on the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago railway was broken into and robbed of five boxes of tobacco and some dress goods last Wednesday night. The theft was done about two miles this side of Gosport.

Bedford Mail: Supt. Woodward, of the Menon, has done all that he could to prevent Bedford from obtaining the furniture factory. Learning that several employees of the L. N. A. & C. were taking hints to aid the enterprise he forbade them to do so, saying that it was very poor policy for the road to assist in moving the factory from Bloomington, where there is no railroad competition, to Bedford, where there was likely to be a good deal of competition.

Dr. Judah has moved from Gathrin to Bedford, where he has gone into the hotel business.

John Radical of Prop. is a Phi Gamma Delta.

Prof. Woodward entertained Hon. Sam Cox while he was in the city.

Sunday afternoon lectures will be discontinued after Easter vacation begins.

Mr. Bishop, a former I. U. student, visited his Phi Gamma brothers last week.

James Cook, through Junior last year, spent a few days with old friends last week. He expects to graduate with '90.

The Senior alumni have arrived and are very nice. Mr. Tobie Smith purchased them for the class.

Prof. Bryan lectured at Gosport on Monday and Rev. Lyons lectured to his class in Elkhart.

Rev. Edwards of Greencastle conducted devotional exercises at chapel Monday.

W. W. Spangler took in Booth and Barrett, and is now visiting an aunt (?) at Muncie.

The Seniors made a display of their class colors and gave their class yell at chapel Tuesday morning.

Mr. Jones, Supt. of Indianapolis schools, lectured at college on Sunday afternoon.

The commencement speeches will be limited to nine minutes. The faculty will try by this means to save the public from certain death.

Dr. Jordan is off for a two weeks lecturing tour. He will visit the prominent eastern universities.

F. M. Gardner of Bedford, who attended college here last year, makes frequent visits to our city. Seems there is a great attraction.

Mr. F. B. Foster who has been visiting friends here for some time past, leaves this week to take his charge in Bethel.

He will preach to the congregations at Glenwood and Milroy.

The reception tendered the Skull by Mrs. C. E. Worrall has been postponed one week on account of so many students desiring to attend the Booth-Barrett engagement at Indianapolis.

The base ball clubs have been crossing bats. On Tuesday Higgins defeated Homan by a score of 23 to 21. On Thursday Homan defeated Botard, and on Friday Higgins defeated Higgins with the same medicine.

Among the new laws passed by the Legislature is one of particular importance to citizens. The law provides as follows: A city council has power to improve streets, alleys and sidewalks, regardless of the city's indebtedness. A petition signed by two-thirds the property owners along the street proposed to be improved, can be taken charge of by the council, the improvement made and paid for by bonding the city, and the owners of said property can pay for said improvements in regular installments as the taxes are paid, and have ten years to pay the improvements out. Each and every piece of property so improved stands good for all improvements made.

—A new thing in rucking is a two or three inch band of white or cream moire ribbons in the center of which rolled ruche of crepe lies. They are worn tightly around the neck, and the ends of the ribbon are to be tied in a neat bow.

—Indianapolis Sun: During the whole afternoon Monday a man sat in one corner of the Grand hotel office studiously working with a "Pigs-in-Clover" puzzle. Slight murmurings of swear words jibed in between gentle twists of the wrist, and the perspiration oozed from his reddened face. He was exerting every nerve to herd the pigs into the pen. Evening came and still he labored with the exasperating pigs. A drunken man came in, saw him there accosted him with, "Whizzer mazzar? Can't (hic) yer get 'em in?"

The man looked up sadly and said, "No, I've never done it. I've been trying all afternoon."

The drunken man looked at him pityingly and said:

"I'll show (hic) yer 'ow 't do it," and pulled one of the deceptive paste-board boxes out of his pocket. He balanced himself against a post and took the cover off. With a single rush he ran one pig around the box, through the gates and in to the pen.

"Yes, but there's only one pig," said the dejected man, becoming interested.

"Was at?" said the drunken man, giving a lurch, "ou'y one (hic) pig I o'n see four."

The unsuccessful individual looked at him a second and then suddenly turned around and went downstairs. An hour later a friend found him in the saloon with a tumbler of whisky half emptied in front of him.

"What the deuce are you doing, Jack?"

"Getting drunk," was the laconic answer.

"Great Caesar, I should think so. What for?"

"I get it onto the pigs."

SALTED ALMONDS.—Salted almonds, so largely eaten now among fashionable folks, as an appetizing relish, may be prepared as follows: Shell the almonds and blanch by throwing them into boiling water and leaving them there, covered for half an hour, or until the skins slip off easily. Skin and spread them out to dry for several hours. Put a good piece of butter into a hot dripping pan, and as it warms stir the almonds over and over in it to coat them with the butter. Set in oven and roast, stirring them often, until they begin to color faintly. Take them out, shake in a colander to rid of grease, spread on a dish and strew with a fine, dry salt, stirring them about that each nut may have its share. Eat cold. They are charmingly appetizing. Avoid the danger of getting the almonds too brown, and on the other hand of putting them into the oven before they are dry enough.

—The old citizens of Bloomington will remember John W. Harryman, who for some time kept a grocery store where Robertson Bros. now are. The Martineville Republican says: "Mr. and Mrs. John W. Harryman celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedded life, April 11. Among the guests were many of the friends and associates of their youth, the friends of their later years, relatives near and from a distance, and neighbors. There were two, Mrs. Nancy Hawthorne and Mr. Sherer, who were present half a century ago at their wedding. The occasion was indeed a feast for old and young, physically, intellectually, religiously. Rev. John Kiger, the oldest man and the oldest preacher in the Indiana Conference, was master of ceremonies. During his address to the aged couple many an eye was suffused with tears. They were the recipients of many handsome presents among which were a pair of gold spectacles for each, the gift of their four remaining children, Liza Ann Gray, Rebecca Williams, Alfred and Charles Harryman. Toward the close of the day there were songs and religious services, and none departed but with a softened heart and elevated sentiments."

—Ellettsville Citizen: Chas. Alexander and wife, of Bloomington, visited relatives at this place over Sunday. Monday morning the mare of Geo. W. Fletcher had a colt that was turned one-sided so much so that it could not suckle, so they were compelled to kill it. Last Saturday Del. Wilson, while spalling at the quarry, accidentally let his hammer slip, striking his foot, and mashing it badly. He is compelled to use crutches. After trying the foul air of Missouri for almost a year, our old shoe maker, Abner Kulp, with his family, has returned, as he says, to help build up Ellettsville. While Mr. Kulp was well settled with Sikeston and was doing well in his business, his health was poor, which necessitated a change of climate, and knowing of no purer air than that of old Monroe, he returned to this place, and the change is for the best, and that he will speedily regain his former health.
