A Narrow Escape.

The Rev. Johnson, Methodist Episcopal minister, stationed at Rolling Prairie, LaPorte county, in conversation with some friends gave the following account of a narrow escape he once made from being buried alive. He was located at Lafayette some twenty years ago when he was taken very sick. He lingered for a time but his life was despaired of by his friends, and finally to all appearances he died. Preparations were made for the funeral and in due time the body was placed in a casket and was awaiting burial. At this time the Rev. Joyce (now Bishop Joyce) came into the room to look at the remains. He failed to close the door after him and shortly after his entrance a gust of wind blew in, blowing the casket lid off and blowing the body out of the casket. The Rev. Joyce saw the body and was so shocked that he ran out of the room. The body was found by the neighbors and was taken to the hospital. The Rev. Joyce was so shocked that he ran out of the room. More Canneries Needed.

Millions of dollars will be lost to the people of the United States this year through the lack of a sufficient number of canneries to pack the surplus small fruits, sweet corn, tomatoes and other vegetables, all of which will command more than usual prices next winter and spring in consequence of the scanty supplies of foodstuffs throughout the world. Exceeding $500,000 worth of blackberries, at ten cents per gallon, perished on the bushes in Tennessee and Kentucky this year for lack of demand and utilization. At least an equal amount will be lost in Iowa this year on neglected small fruits, and the low on vegetables allowed to rot on the ground that could be saved at good profits by canning will be still larger. Every county in the State should have a canning factory, and there is no industry that can be secured with so little capital or operated with more certain profit. Factories are to be the life and strength of Iowa, and it is time that every town and city was beginning to avail itself of the great benefits to be derived from industries that work up the raw material and employ the labor of the regions in which they are located. Build up the home markets of the State by working up all its raw material into finished products, and unequaled prosperity will come to bless all the people who labor faithfully and intelligently. —Iowa State Register.

Atchison Globe: What a foolish thing an introduction is!

You know a woman by sight, and have known her for years, but you can not speak to her until some one else has done so. We have met a certain woman on a certain street once a day for thirteen years, but we cannot say "good morning" to her because we have not been "introduced."

There is a woman in this city, the Indianapolis Sun, who is just now the sole topic of gossip and criticism in one of the prominent churches. The lady had been a member of the congregation for twenty years and early in the spring was taken sick and remained in bed for some months. She had slightly recovered from her illness, but during all those dreary days no one of the church members called upon her. She often complained of the unsociability in church circles and declared that if she ever again entered the edifice where she had been a regular attendant for years it would be merely for the purpose of worship. One day, however, a lady called who was no other than her next neighbor. Upon the door being opened the visitor asked if Mrs. — was in. "I am Mrs. —," was the reply. The lady expressed her surprise, said that she understood she had been ill, and then began: "I came to see if you couldn't give me some money for a new carpet for the mission. The old —"

A New Swindle.

The police have discovered a new swindle that shows great ingenuity among the criminals practicing it, and is entirely novel, says the St. Louis Republic. It is another evidence of the deepening of thieves, which has been rendered keen and daring by the intense competition among the class who live on the confidence of others. The newspapers generally keep people posted regarding current swindles, and it does not take long to render it dangerous and difficult to practice swindles that are not entirely original. Some swindles, such as forged checks, are as old as the hills and will never become obsolete. The new swindle takes in the cunning pawn brokers and the astute police detectives, and is a marvel of artifice. The scheme is as follows: A man who bears a good reputation, but whose morality is below the average, buys a fine gold watch, which is distinctly marked, so that it can be easily identified. He is in league with the swindler who takes the watch and pawn it, then skips out with the money. The owner of the watch goes to the police, tells a plausible tale of how he was robbed and leaves a description of his property. It is soon found in the pawnshop and recovered; if not practiced too often it is a very good swindle. Confidence men, without local habitation, travel around the country practicing this swindle. It is perfectly safe. One represents himself as a traveling man, a railroad man or some other bird of passage, and the other is the unknown thief. It is believed that this swindle has been practiced successfully for some time, but the police are now "watching" for suspicious "cases."

How Tin Plate is Made.

How it is being done at "One Works in Pennsylvania." In view of the present crisis in the South Wales plate trade, the following particulars of the Morrow process of tinning plates, now in use at the works of the United States Iron and Tin Plate Company, Limited, Duquesne, Pa., may be of interest. The plates are rolled in the ordinary manner into black sheets, eight of these sheets being rolled at one time, and after being sheared to size are put in the black pickle bath of sulphuric acid, where all oxidation is removed. They are then placed in an annealing furnace for thirty-six hours, after which they are passed through the cold coating process consisting in passing the sheets through rollers running in palm oil, whereby the tin is evenly distributed and a smooth surface obtained. There are five of these rolls used, three running on top of two, and the plates make two passes through them, in the first place being led through the first and second of the upper set, and by a cradle arrangement passing through the second and third. This completes the tinning operation proper, and the plates are obtained by rapid movements of the plates through rollers and maddings, respectively, and the polishing with abrasives. The result obtained at the Duquesne works is a very excellent article of bright tinplate.

Remembrance of the Dillman and Rhorer Families.

The third annual reunion of the above named families was held at the Christian church, in Clear Creek, Aug. 27th, 1891. Arrangements had been made to hold the reunion in Gordon's Grove, about one mile from the church, but owing to rain, it was decided best to hold it in the church. To say that this reunion was a success but feebly expresses it. As to numbers, it was a decided success, and for enthusiasm it not only cropped out but ran over all day. It was impossible to count the persons present, but the crowd was estimated at 250. Nine States were represented at this meeting. Those present from a distance were: John H. Rhorer and wife of Kentucky; Mr. Allen Grace and lady of Louisiana; Mr. Elias C. Dillman of Mississippi; Mr. Homer and family of Louisville, Ky.; David Dillman, and daughter of Kansas; Henry Rhorer and wife of St. Louis, Mo.; Geo. Rhorer, Panoma, California; A. D. Gray, Charleston, Iowa; Geo. Dillman, Farmington, Ind.; J. A. Dillman and wife, Wayneburg, Ind.; Sim Rhorer and wife, Hartsville, Ind.; Geo. Cooper and family, Columbus, Ind.; Mrs. Julia A. Finley, Sargent, Neb.; Mrs. Jennie Hutchinson, Crawfordville, Ind.; Mrs. Julia Sanders and daughters, Gosport, Ind.; Lewis Dillman and family, Bedford, Ind.; G. B. Campbell and wife, Bloomfield, Ind.; Tom Mattox and wife, Bloomfield, Ind.; Miss Ella J. Dillman, Indianapolis, Ind.; Mrs. Florence Worsham, Henderson, Ky.; Mr. David Rhorer, Indianapolis, Ind.; Phoebe Oakes, South Bend, Ind.

After the audience had been seated and order was restored,

Ed. Ross of the Christian church of Bloomington, Ind. in prayer, after which Miss Katie Blakeley, of Bloomington, aged ten years, made the address of welcome. This little lady will long be remembered by all who heard her—her sweet voice and eloquent gestures will live in the memory of all whose good fortune it was to hear her. This was followed by a poem from A. G. Dillman. The rain, which had been falling, ceased about noon, and the good lady folks spread one of the old fashioned reunion dinners on the green sward, in front of the church, and all were filled and more than twenty baskets full were taken up. This was no miracle. At 1:30 o'clock order was restored and after a song by the choir, Mr. Cooper delivered an address of welcome. This should have been delivered in the morning. Then followed the "History of our Ancestors," by Jacob A. Dillman, of Wayneburg, Ind. The family of Dillmans to which we belong came from Prussia, in the 17th century, landing in the east, and finally settling after the Revolutionary war in eastern Pennsylvania, afterwards turning their faces westward, until today some of them have reached the Pacific coast, still facing westward, and wishing for more lands to populate. Our number today is legion, and in looking over the families we remember of none who were criminals—jails were not built for us—if they were they were built in vain. School houses and churches are our places of resort. None of us ever became illiterate, none very rich, neither has any ever found a home in a poor house. None ever bought or sold human flesh, and very nearly all vote the Republican ticket. We only take of these private matters when in REUNION ASSEMBLED, and the world can overlook our imperfections while we boast a little. The writer cannot close this article without making mention of the declaration recited by Miss Daisy Woodward of Harrodsburg. Daisy is the orator of our tribes, and will ever be remembered by all who heard her. Before closing the exercises there was an opportunity given to all who wished to talk a few moments to do so. A number of short speeches were made by the older members present. These talks were very interesting and encouraging. But the sun was sinking in the west, reminding us that we must again separate, and after singing a song entitled: "God, be with you till we meet again," the benediction was pronounced by Elias C. Dillman of Shaw, Miss. D. F. H.

Are You Going to the Fair?

It is only a few weeks now till the opening of the Monroe county Fair. Are you preparing, not only to visit it with your family, but to make a display of your own products? If not, begin to get ready.

An admirable program and prize list for this fair has been arranged, and committees are hard at work to secure the best of the county to exhibit. The fair is the largest of the kind ever seen at a Monroe county Fair will be there on September 16th.

If you have been successful in one branch of your business more than another, let your friends, neighbors and strangers witness the full measure of your success by the extent and quality of the display of the Fair. This is the time of opportunity ever before offered in this county to show the outside world what we can do in the way of a display of home products.

Board of Health Notice.

It is a well established fact that most of the diseases prevailing during the summer months are due to the entrance into the system of germs, parasites or microbes and insects. These parasites which gain entrance into the human organism, are, many of them, due to fermentation or decay of vegetable matter from the combination of moisture and high solar temperature. The cheapest and most effective prevention being safer and better than cure, every property holder should remove from his premises all accumulations of garbage, dirt and other decaying matter which may prove detrimental to the public health, or in any manner interfere with the comfort of the people. Disinfectants, as lime, copperas, etc., are cheap, and should be used liberally. Chlorine is next to Godliness, and "one ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Town Health Officers of the county should see that everything is placed in sanitary condition in their respective municipalities.

Notice of Application for License.

The undersigned, a male citizen over the age of twenty-one years, and an inhabitant of the town of Smithville, and the County of Monroe in the State of Indiana, hereby gives notice to the citizens of Smithville, Indiana, Clear Creek township, in said county of Monroe and State of Indiana, that he will at the September term, 1891, of the Board of Commissioners of the County of Monroe, State of Indiana, apply to said Board for a license to sell intoxicating liquors to wit: quinine, wine, and malt liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, for a period of one year, with the privilege of allowing the same to be drunk on the premises upon which he desires to sell said spirituous, vinous and malt liquors, and the premises being situated in the town of Smithville, township of Clear Creek, county of Monroe and State of Indiana, and described as follows, to-wit: Part of Lot No. 2, in Smithville, Indiana, containing 2 1/2 acres of land in the town of Smithville, Indiana, thence east thirty (30) feet, thence south thirty (30) feet, thence west thirty (30) feet, thence north thirty (30) feet, to the place of beginning.
