

ALL GOODS MUST BE AS REPRESENTED

"The Corner" CLOTHING HOUSE

SUMMER SUITS, Latest Styles. Choicest Fabrics.

The finest of Underwear in Endless Variety.

CORNER EXXX WEXXER HATS.

SPECIALTY: HOT WEATHER CLOTHES.

This is the "Corner" Store, Remember. H.T. SIMMONS & CO. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUNDED

Republican Progress

$1.50 Per Annun.

WE A NAME, Editor and Publisher.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1860:
THE MAN NOMINATED
BY THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

President Harrison not only knows how to say the right thing at the right time, but he is equally wise in the way of letting somebody else say the wrong things at all times.

Ten years ago a self-binding paper cost $15, and now the price is only $10. This illustrates the value of protection in the way of developing the agricultural machinery industry and protecting the interests of the farmers.

Secretary Rank estimated that the removal of the foreign embargo on the American hog will add $50,000 to our trade. It will also add a good many thousands of votes to the strength of the Republican party.

George Washington was the first President who never told a lie. There have been several since then—all Republicans. Indiana has furnished the best example of a truthful President. Harrison will be appreciated more fully in years to come, in comparison with men who are not conscientious and truthful as he.

While the United States is extending her 4% per cent. bonds at 2 per cent. Germany has failed to float her 3 per cent. bonds at par. In this connection it may not be improper to state that the Republican party has charge of American finance.

The Indianapolis News says that Rev. Jos. S. Jenkins, who has predicted the end of the world in ten years, is building a house! Won't have long to stay in it, according to his own theory.

M. E. Ingalls, president of the Big Four railway, and who is a prominent Democrat, has come back from England, and is outspoken in his denunciation of free silver. He wants to see the McKinley bill given a fair chance.

Dr. Farr of Hindostan, this country, is creating considerable excitement through the papers by the published statement that his whisker, which have been growing some fifteen years, at present have reached the length of 3 ft. four inches. Nothing remarkable about that, however, when you reflect that this has all been done on the Monroe county, Indiana soil, the most healthy and productive in North America, or the known world.

Col. Elliot F. Shepard publicly declares that if the World's Fair is kept open on Sundays the Lord will send a curse upon the whole nation. It is not always possible to tell what the Lord will do in certain cases. He sent Elliot F. Shepard to us when, as a nation, we were behaving remarkably well, and, to outward appearance, were not deserving of anything worse than one of the plagues of Egypt in a mitigated form.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The sixteenth annual Indiana conference of the Methodist Episcopal church met in Washington, Ind., on Tuesday of last week with 150 ministerial and 140 lay delegates in attendance. Bishop L. W. Joyce of Chattanooga, Tenn., presided. The conference elected delegates to the general conference to be held at Omaha next May, besides attending to the stationing of ministers and the financial interests of the church. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor Thorp in a short address, to which Bishop Joyce responded. The conference session was delivered by Rev. Dr. Zacing.

Texas promises great things in wheat growing. Ten years ago that State grew only 2,500,000 bushels of wheat. In 1856 it grew 5,450,000 bushels, and this year it has grown 7,500,000 bushels of fine grain. The whole end of Texas, heretofore thought fit for grazing only, is proving to be fine wheat land.

A Great Cattle Sale.

Greenwood Baner.

On Monday Mense, A. M. Lockridge & Sons, stock dealers, sold their large herds of fine cattle to Eastman & Co., of New York City.

Several parties were figuring for the lot but Eastman's agents, Messrs. Ladd & Corwin, of Indianapolis, captured the prize.

The sale includes nearly all the cattle of the Messrs. Lockridge, and is the largest of many large ones made in Putnam county.

The herd comprises over eight hundred head, sold at an average price of $6.75 per hundred pounds, delivered in Indianapolis. They will be sent to Indianapolis, filling over sixty cars, making in all three heavy train loads.

The animals averaged about 1550 pounds, making the money value of the shipment nearly $75,000.

Rev. Eller preached his farewell sermon here last Sunday to a well filled house. Rev. Eller has had unbounded success in his work here in the past year, and the members of his congregation are sorry to see him leave but wish him the same success wherever his lot may fall.—Orleans Progress.

The death of Kidder Huff, supposed to be deaf and dumb and badly deformed by a hump on his back, has opened the eyes of the local prohibitionists to the deceitfulness of human nature. After his death the villagers found that Huff's deformity was a padded sack, inside of which was found bottles containing various kinds of liquor, and in his pocket was found $197, mostly in dimes and nickels. The old man had been a walking bar-room, and the mystery of how he supported himself was thus solved. The town is a no-liquor place, and cold water drinkers have flattered themselves that there, at least, no drinking was done.

Rev. Plink Plunk of Ancony—Dee man dat takes great pride in his ancestors, deah bidders, an' expects people to honor him on account makes a great big mistake. Many a man causes de greatest amusement to de rest ob de world by de way in which he ratles 'round in de shoes ob a dead father or grandfather who was one ob de great men ob his day, but who took all his abilities wif him wen he set sail for de golden shore.

ENDORSES THE CRACKER.—The World's Fair Directory is considering the question as to whether the Fair shall be kept closed on Sunday. We recommend that it be closed because if it is kept open on that day the workingmen who labor all the balance of the week, will visit it and squander their money instead of saving it and investing in United States bonds.

By all means close the Fair on Sunday and reduce the number of visitors by at least several hundred thousand. If we, individually, go to the Fair we will want to go to church on Sunday and stay in Chicago a day or two longer than we otherwise would in order to see everything worth seeing in the exposition. Closing the Fair on Sunday will be a great accommodation to the visitors from the Pacific States and other distant sections and it will be hailed with delight by Seventh Day Adventists.—Los Angeles (Calif.) Porcupine.

No law can pay a man's private debts or put money in his pockets. These statements, as self-evident as they are, need to be repeated occasionally to those men who have an idea that it is possible to be idle and at the same time be prosperous, by means of legislation.

The citizens support the State and it is only the paupers who are or who can be supported by the State.

Two widows of revolutionary soldiers are living in Pennsylvania and drawing pensions for service rendered in the field by their husbands. One, who was the third wife of a soldier of 75 summers and bore him three children, is now 97 years old, up and down stairs with the liveliness of a cricket, and declares her willingness to marry again, pauper or no pauper, if the right sort of a man presents himself.

The friends of the Mechanics' Band were proud of their music during Fair week.

IMPORTANT.—The street that leads from the public square to the University (Kirkwood Avenue) is now the most important thoroughfare at their late session, will be found below. This levy of 1890 given for comparison:

Township. 1000. 1891.
Bear Creek, 50 50
Washington, 40 50
Marion, 61 40
Benton, 72 54
Bloomington, 62 40
Cass, 45 40
Van Buren, 38 44
Perry, 19 26
Salt Creek, 56 60
Folk, 65 82
Cloud Creek, 60 60
Indian Creek, 56 56

In addition to the township, there is 55 cents for county, 10 cents for pike repair and 35 cents for State purposes, or a total of $1. Add to this the levy for township purposes as above, which will give the rate on each $100.

Miss Edna Fields left on Saturday for Notre Dame.

Chas. Mitchell has taken an option on John McCall's north lot, (66 feet front) at $1,200. The lot is on North Walnut st. Mr. Mitchell pays $50, and is to take the lot at $1,200 cash on or before the 1st of April.

Ida Waldron returned on Monday to school at St. Marys, after her summer vacation.

While in Detroit, Mich., recently, Judge Duncan met Jeremiah F. Pittman. Jere says he will make Detroit his home.

Dr. Van Noy's two sons are attending school at St. Marys, Kansas.

John B. Weir of Washington, Pa., a cousin of Dr. A. J. Axtell, is on a visit to the Doctor's family.

Robert Northcott has been elected Principal of the Stinesville schools.

The position of Deputy U. S. Marshal has been bestowed upon Capt. N. E. Mathers of this city, an accomplished and courteous gentleman, a gallant soldier and a lifelong Republican. Capt. Mathers will honor the position and will reflect credit upon the judgment of Marshal Dualap, who selected him.

There are said to be fourteen cases of fever on west 7th, 8th and 9th streets.

The burning of a barn on Prospect Hill, Monday afternoon, had a tendency to cool the atmosphere for half an hour.

Dr. Weir is waiting on the family of a man in Salt Creek tp, five of whom are sick with typhoid fever.

Miss Emma Davis, formerly of Smithville, lately in Hall Bros. store, has been elected a teacher in the Bloomington public schools.

A small dwelling house on College Hill, owned by Joe Kirby and occupied by man named Durrall, caught fire at 4 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning, and was entirely destroyed.

Mrs. Chas. Hurst died at her home just south of the depot, on Monday night.

The State Fair is catching a number of Bloomington people.

Bert. Cole is at home after several months absence.

Go to Joe M. Smith for your school books and stationery.

A concert will be given in the College Avenue M. E. church the last of next week, announced next week, Vocal and instrumental music. The services of Mr. Charles Hansen, the great organist of Meridian street church, Indianapolis, have been secured.

A Dubois county school teacher offered a prize to the scholar who would come to school with the cleanest face, and the indignant trustees gave her the bounte on suspicion that she was an agent for a soap manufacturer.

A YEARLING FOR $8,600.—At the sale of the Pleasanton farm (M. Salisbury, California) stock in New York last Wednesday, Robert Bonner paid $8,600 for Margarita, a bay filly by Director, dam by Ballard's Cassius M. Clay. Margarita is nominated in the Terre Haute $11,000 purse. Among the Californians sold this month are thirty of the nominees of this purse.

The friends of the Mechanics' Band were proud of their music during Fair week.

The Ladies of Walnut Street Pres. Church cleared $66.40 at their Fair lunch stand.

SAVINGS BANK.

BLOOMINGTON, Sept. 21, 1881.
MR. EDITOR:—Permit me to endorse the article on above subject in the "Town Talk" of last week's Courier. It is the fact in a nut shell. It is a scheme of no importance and is far from educational. It requires extra labor on the teacher and the teacher that should be devoted to the scholar to a matter that will create strife amongst the scholar, and of no benefit in the end.

JONES.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette.

—The sad death of George G. Dunn at Bedford offers a golden opportunity for moralizing on the dreadful uncertainty of life. In the economy of nature what an atom is a man! A breath from the destroying angel and the strongest, wittiest and fairest like the asp leaves before an autumn blast. Few men have been so fortunate as to live a happy, useful life as George Dunn. A fine, strong person, with a physique that women admire and men envy, the action of an athlete, the picture of health. In the prime of life, prosperous, a gentleman of learning and intelligence, an appreciative mind and a popular disposition. Yet a trifle wiped all this away and leaves but a shadow of what once was, over which, for brief instant, friends used to drop a tear before it is put right forever!—Washington Gazette