SUBSCRIPTION, $1.50 PER YEAR.

WM. A. GARR, Editor and Proprietor.

THE BUSINESS OFFICE OF THE PROGRESS IS NOW IN THE FRAME BUILDING JUST WEST OF THE BURNED BLOCK.

There were 17 applications for teachers' license last month. Of these two were granted 24 months' license, six were given license for twelve months and nine failed to pass.

Meetings are being held every night in Walnut St. Pres. church. Rev. Frazer of Brazil assisting the pastor. Meetings are also being held each night in Kirkwood Ave. Christian church. M. J. Howe assisting the pastor.

The I. U. Glee club gave a highly appreciated concert on Thursday night last. The attendance was very large. J. A. Galloway, a member of the Galloway family of Ellettsville, has won renown as musician, assisted the club.

Breedon & Co. have secured the services of an expert window dresser and dress goods salesman, and we state on the authority of Doug. Field, (who is a commercial traveler, and hence a truthful man) that the new dress goods salesman is young, handsome and single.

There is a string of flat cars on the Monon side track from 1st street to the railroad yards—about a mile. They have been standing there till the wheels are heavily coated with rust. A railroad official of thirty years' experience says he has never known a time when there were so many cars standing on side tracks as at present. With some roads it is quite difficult to find side track room for surplus cars.

H. Clay Jacobs, a well known colored man of this place, died at his home on west 5th street last Friday night, with consumption, after an illness of several months. Jacobs will be missed by a number of persons for whom he had for years done odd jobs of work, and by whom he was highly prized and uniformly respected by reason of his faithfulness and integrity. He was a man of more than ordinary intelligence for one of his opportunities, and his equal in many respects will not soon be found. Deceased was 48 years of age. Funeral services were held on Sunday at the A. M. E. church of which he had for years been a faithful member. For many years Jacobs had been employed on publication days of each week in the Progress office, and we always found him prompt, obliging and reliable. That this was the verdict of the community generally was indicated Sunday by the large audience that listened to the funeral sermon—all could not gain admission that applied, and one-third of the number present were the white people who knew deceased and respected him, because, as Rev. Mr. Coleman summed it up in his sermon: "he was a good man."

It is said now that there are four telephone companies applying to the city council for a franchise. So there ought to be no trouble in securing something both good and cheap. The price should be brought within the means of all business men who may desire to use it. It will be a great scheme for "the unemployed"—they can "hello" all around town for a job of work without damage to shoe leather.

A meeting is to be held one night this week at the court house for the purpose of working up an interest in a book to be published giving a detailed statement of the resources of the Monon route and a history of the towns on the line, including the leading industries of each county. Mr. Dunne of the Monon was here one day last week working it up.

Mrs. Walter Lindley and children, accompanied by her sister, Miss Emily Edmunds, will go to Indianapolis this week to attend the wedding of a friend.

J. S. Woodward of Harrodsburg is announced in this impression of the Progress as a candidate for the office of County Treasurer. Mr. Woodward is one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of the southern part of the county, and has a strong following of ardent Republicans. His business qualifications are the equal of any man in Monroe county, and no one could fill the office of Treasurer in a more satisfactory manner.

The Republican State committee has voted, by letter, to change the date of the State convention by one day, setting it from April 26 to April 25. This is done in order that it may not conflict with the anniversary celebration of the Odd Fellows throughout the State. At the time the original date was set the fact that April 26 was the anniversary of Odd Fellowship escaped the committee's attention entirely, but the committee's notice was soon called to the fact by letters from prominent Odd Fellows throughout the State, and a week ago a delegation of prominent officers of the order called upon Chairman Gowdy at the Dennison and formally requested that the date be changed, so as not to conflict with the celebration usually held by the order. The chairman at once lay the matter before the members of the committee by letter, and suggested that the date be changed to April 25. Nearly all of the committee have replied favorably and the change has therefore been ordered.

Gray is generally the spring color. Merchants, however, who have had samples of the new goods say that browns ranging from light beige through castor, Sumatra and coffee to monk's brown, will be very prevalent.

The congressional convention for the 5th district is to be held at Martinsville, May 10. The basis of representation was fixed at one for every 100 or fraction over fifty votes cast for Harrison in 1892.

Gen. Supt. Lowell of the Monon lines, has issued an order to the effect that any employee who wishes to retire from the service of the company has only to be seen entering or emerging from a saloon or where intoxicating liquors are sold.

The Pennsylvania railroad company, on its various locomotives which haul the trains between Jersey City and Pittsburgh, consumes 1000 tons of coal a day. This one item costs the road an average of $40,000 a day the year round.

Good-bye to hunting on the Goose Pond. On Saturday afternoon the hunters' house was hauled by three yoke of oxen and five teams of horses across Bee Hunter marsh, on the township line, and was safely landed on a lot south of Lyons.—Bloomfield News.

Of Bud. Delap, who lived formerly up about Ellettsville and Stinesville, says the Martinsville Gazette: "Speaking about long mustaches, this city probably has the champion in that line, in the person of Bud. Delap, a mixologist in Alex. Lockhart's saloon. Bud. has a growth on his upper lip that measures two feet and one inch from point to point. If anybody can beat that he will 'set 'em up.'"

"This parrot, ma'am," said the dealer, "is one that I can recommend. It was in the family of a clergyman many years." "Well, gents, what'll ye have? Name your piece!" exclaimed the parrot, with startling emphasis. "He was obliged to part with it," continued the dealer, "and for the last year or two it has belonged to a saloon keeper."

The appellate court, in the case of Rachael (Ryan) Rogers, in her suit against the city says in its syllabus: "When one knows of the existence of a dangerous ditch in the street, and in the night time when it is dark that the exact location of said ditch can not be observed by persons traveling upon the streets, and such person proceeds upon the street without ascertaining its location, she is guilty of contributory negligence. One traveling upon a street known to be dangerous must use care commensurate with the known danger."

Talking of weddings, Rev. Bolton says that the queer stories told about minister's marriage fees are not exaggerated. He himself had been paid with a bushel of beans, the fee of an unsophisticated farmer who probably thought that all the service was worth. Sometimes the happy bridegroom takes the ceremony "on tick," as it were. "I'll come around and see you next week," he calls over his shoulder as he departs. That's the last of that fellow.

Occasionally, of course, the newly married man is so elated that he is generous to overflowing. "How much is the charge, thin?" says Pat.

"Oh," said the preacher, diffidently, "the law allows a dollar and a half."

"Och! thin here's fifty cents—that'll make two dollars!" says Pat, and goes off with his head in the air, leaving the preacher to meditate over a grimy half dollar and the folly of modesty.

Says a dispatch from Marion, Ind.: "A short time ago a few men came to this city and worked the crayon portrait fake industry. The game is an old one but it worked successfully nevertheless. The fellows pretended to represent Wilcox Bros. of Chicago. For 50 cents a photograph they promised to return a life-size crayon portrait, but suddenly they abandoned the city, leaving board bills unpaid. Two of the landladies are in possession, however, of over three hundred photographs, indicating that the number of people who still expect in one way or other to get something for nothing has not materially diminished. A more transparent scheme was probably never perpetrated upon an unsuspecting people."

Col. J. B. Black of Indiana, will deliver the oration Thursday night, on "The Life and Services of Washington." The Colonel is one of the most able and eloquent platform orators in the State, and will do the subject justice. When the civil war broke out Jas. B. Black was a member of the senior class of U. C., but was one of the first men to enlist, serving his country four years, and attained the position of "Colonel." He was afterwards elected Reporter of the Supreme Court on the Republican ticket, afterwards served on the bench of the supreme court, and later on the bench of appellate court, by appointment. Col. Black and Col. Alexander of this place have always been warm personal friends.

At Bedford, on last Wednesday, Mrs. Webb, who runs a restaurant, took occasion to say "Buddy" Cook because Cook had talked about her daughter. Cook swore vengeance against the Glover against whom he had a grudge, as he believed Glover was instrumental in the whipping episode. He armed himself with a hatchet, went to the Webb restaurant, and as Glover came out of the place Cook struck at him with the hatchet. Glover pulled a revolver and fired four shots at Cook, each ball taking effect. One cut across the top of Cook's head, one made a hole through his ear, one struck his watch breaking it, and the fourth passed through his thigh. Neither wound is very serious, but one of the balls after hitting Cook sped on down the street and struck Sam. Ellis on the breast bone, ranging up through the muscles into the left shoulder, where it lodged. Ellis is not badly hurt. While this is going on at Bedford the people in Bloomington are holding revival meetings. That is the difference in the two towns. See?

We can't all be millionaires, but all can live on the money they make. To those who possess a superabundance of this world's goods represented by six ciphers following a numeral, small or large, in "LIFE" is found by Millions, published in Demorest's Magazine for March, six well known multi-millionaires give their views, and as their portraits accompany their statements, a person of the article is almost equivalent to having a personal interview with each; so if you would like to know how it might seem to be a millionaire, be sure to read the article. Every woman will want to read "Society Fads" and "Chit" and there are over 700 illustrations. This is a fair sample of the free matter that is furnished twice a month, for only $2, by the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 E. 14th St., New York.

Col. W. M. Alexander went to Indianapolis last Sunday on business.

It is stated that the Bedford opera house managers are negotiating with O'Connell's men to introduce a performance in the near future.

J. F. Pittman and wife, passed through Bloomington on Monday morning. They had been at Paoli attending the funeral of Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. Pittman's mother.

Bedford Mail: A telegram has been received from Pleasant Hill, Mo., announcing the death on Thursday of Mrs. A. J. Simpson, of congenital of the brain and heart. Mrs. Simpson was a sister of Mrs. E. J. Mosley, who died at this place about six weeks ago and the wife of Judge Simpson, well known here. She was interred at her old home at Paoli, Sunday.

Democrats in Congress have cut down appropriation bills over $300,000,000. They call it Democratic economy. It will deprive 500,000 men of work during the next two years. Work on many public improvements will stop, and the buildings will fall into ruins.

A new law makes it obligatory upon township trustees to see that where one farmer builds a good lawful fence, that the other shall, after three days notice, do likewise. If he fails to do so, it is the duty of the township trustee to build the fence and file a lien against the land. The farmer pays off his lien when he pays his taxes.
