SPRING GOODS are now arriving at Charley Mobley's "Golden Rule" store, on the south side of the square. No man in Monroe county knows better what the tastes of the people who buy goods demand than he, and no one more cheerfully responds to them. All the latest novelties may be found on his shelves, and at prices surprisingly low. Just how he manages to sell some goods so cheaply it is hard to understand, but he does it. People have been coming to his store from distant parts of the county for many years, and they always secure the best goods for the least money by doing so.

KILLED HIMSELF.

He Was Insanely Jealous.

Joseph Imhoff, one of the men who was employed at the Hunter quarry to run a chamber, was found dead in his home on Thursday morning. Imhoff was married and had a daughter aged nine years. It seems that Imhoff and his wife had been having considerable discord in the past year or two, and on Monday previous she had taken her child and had gone to the vicinity of Bedford where her parents reside. At 8 o'clock Imhoff's brother found a note under the steam gauge of the channelling machine that was operated by deceased, which read: "John, look for me at home. I can't stand the trouble. Good bye, brother." In company with several others the brother hurried to the house where they found Imhoff lying on the floor, dead. A breech-loading No. 12 shot gun had done the work. He had only his pants and socks on his body. A gaping wound in the left side under the heart, told the story. A note addressed "to friends" and found in an adjoining room, read as follows: "Now, friends, I am going to take my own life. I've got more trouble than I can carry. You will find $50 in my pocket book. I don't care where you bury me; I have been murdered by degrees, but this will be the last time."

An ordinance has been passed by the city council, providing voting places as follows: The north precinct of the 2d ward to vote at the house of S. K. Rhorer, east 7th street, occupied by Ned Taylor; the east precinct of the 3d ward being changed from the spoke factory ware room to S. C. Curry's carpenter shop, east 4th street, and the west precinct of the 3d ward to the new store of John Alexander, south Walnut street. The council appointed the following election inspectors:

South precinct, first ward; Ira C. Batman.

North precinct, first ward, Wm. H. Adams.

South precinct, second ward, John F. May.

North precinct, second ward, A. T. Massey.

East precinct, third ward, Samuel McWylie.

West precinct, third ward, W. A. Fulwider.

A man named Henry sued

Rice Harris of Elletsville for damages said to have been incurred by the setting of a broken collar bone. The case was hotly contested in circuit court last week and a jury brought in a verdict for Dr. Harris. It will be a difficult matter to secure surgical aid of a desirable character in the near future if a Doctor must stand a $2,000 suit every time he does ten dollars' worth of surgical work.

The young people spent an enjoyable evening at the home of

Mr. and Mrs. Crutcher, south

College Avenue, Thursday evening.

Those present were: Misses

Ruby Bollenbacher, Mattie Smith,

Gertrude Harbison, Blanche Pedigo, Bryce Showers, Alice McGee,

Ade Crutcher, Bessie Sear, Lizzie Ruby, Virgina Crutcher. Messrs.

Carl Breeden, Leon Whetell,

Bert Gregory, Hampton Durand,

Len Field, Jessie Field, Earl

Showers, Clarence Lowder, Wm.

Sutphin, Rodney Brandon.

Buy a whole lot of stamps

and run the postoffice receipts up

so we may have the benefit of free delivery. Then your duns will be brought to the front doors.

But come to think of it that would create double trouble. A business man was telling the Progress recently about a man in the second ward who got on his ear in a grateful way because he had sent him a statement of account by mail. Now if it should be delivered at the front door this one ideal ass might burst a blood-vesel in his rage.

HAVE you seen Lindley's stock

of wall paper? It is the most extensive one ever exhibited here—

occupies the full length of the store room, up-stairs.
