NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

Public Threatened With Destruction.
Fatal Explosion in New York City—Indiana Miners Laugh at the Governor's Proclamation—Myrtle Beach Cremation.

WORKS AND WORSE.

Public at the Mercy of a Raging Torrent.

Pueblo special: The cloudburst which sent a vast torrent of water down the valley and into this city, caused many deaths and widespread destruction. The work of rescue had just begun, when a recurrence of the flood caused a suspension of the work, and it is feared that the bodies which were washed away and under debris will never be recovered. Seventy-five feet of the east approach to the Fourth street viaduct has caved in. The west bank of the Arkansas at this point is being rapidly eaten away by the angry waters. The hundred men who were put there to fortify the bank thus far proved unequal to the task.

Grave fears are expressed for twelve families of squatters on an island down the river, from having come of reaching these people at present. The catastrophe, similar to the Johnston horror of four years ago, is remembered from having occurred on the same day, and has paralyzed the citizens and paralyzed business. The property loss will be about $50,000. Both the Arkansas and the river are rising rapidly and rain is falling in torrents.

EXPLOSION.

A Young Child Perishes in the Flames.

The whole front of a liquor store on the ground floor of the double tenement, 125 Suffolk street, New York, was blown across the street. Flames shot up from the store and spread through every one of the five stories of the building, and scared tenants unable to escape through the blazing hall, scrambled on the fire escapes in their night clothing in a wild attempt to escape. Meyer Deitcher, a poor Jewish tailor, made a bold dash for safety down the stairs and through the blazing hall. He staggered into the street with his hair burned off his head, his clothes burned to a cinder and the skin of his arms and legs scorched. He was white with shock. He was taken to the New York Hospital in an ambulance. A little later, when the fireman had arrived and cleared the escapes of their shrieking occupants, Fire Chief O'Hearn while fighting his way through the smoke on the third floor found in bed a 5-year-old child named Lizzie Yager, who was not found in the mad rush for safety. She was suffocated by death.

IT IS A LOTTERY.

The decision of the lower court that the company was an investment company and not a lottery company, affirmed and the sentences imposed on the officers by Judge Grosscup approved. George M. McDonald, the president of the company, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000 and to serve the Government for eleven months in jail. F. W. Swearingin, the secretary, and W. H. Stevenson, the treasurer, were each fined $200, but the two latter paid their fines long ago and are not concerned in the decision rendered.

A meeting of the heirs of Jacob de Haven, who claim that the Government owes them about $4,000,000 and who have a claim on the Congress for the payment of the claim, began at the Sherman House, Chicago.

The meeting was called by Judge Joseph W. O'Neill, of Washington, who is the attorney for the claimants. The De Haven claim dates back to the revolutionary war. Jacob de Haven was a patriot who lived at Sherman House, Pa., and had amassed wealth in the trading business. In the winter of 1777 and 1778, when Washington and his army were at Valley Forge, the Continental Congress called upon the wealthy colonists for financial aid. De Haven loaned the Government $450,000. A few years later Congress paid back some of the loans. Payment was offered to De Haven, but he refused to accept the depreciated Continental currency which was offered. In 1783 De Haven died and the loan was never repaid. He left no heirs, but his three brothers—Samuel, who lived and died at Germantown; Edmund, who settled in Kentucky; and Peter, whose home was in Philadelphia—survived. These three brothers claim that the heirs now bring their claims for $4,000,000, which is the original loan of the accumulated interest. One of the Chicago heirs is Miss Carrie E. De Haven. A celebration of the Fourth of July is being arranged for by De Haven to show her gratefulness to the United States for support during the recent civil war.
