DAILY JOURNAL.

THURSDAY, JAN. 7, 1892.

THE DAILY JOURNAL is for sale by Robinson & Wallace.

Attention, P. O. S. of A. Members.
There will be a meeting at my office on Friday evening, Jan. 8, to see about going to Darlington next Monday evening. It is desired that a large number go.
Wm. M. REEVES.

Music Hall Last Night.

A very fair sized audience assembled at Music Hall last night to witness Ezra Kendall in the "Pair of Kids." A very creditable performance was given and although many of the witticisms were ancient, the songs were all excellent and the audience was kept in a constant roar of laughter.

Old Maids Paradise.

Our old fellow townsman, A. J. Norris, in renewing his subscription to THE JOURNAL, writes the following information from his home in Hepler, Kansas.

"I see by THE JOURNAL that you do not employ very many female clerks in your court house. If you would visit our western country you would find the majority of clerks employed in the court house are women. Even in our city, the entire council, five in number, are women. Our mayor is a woman and she is the daughter of Thomas Neely, who used to live north of Crawfordville. I myself am a police judge."

The School Apportionment.

Supt. Zuck is in receipt of the statement of the school apportionment for the ensuing year. The several counties of the State paid in $972,371.75. This sum was levied upon them according to their wealth and then apportioned out again according to the number of children of a school age in the counties. Montgomery county paid in $18,011.24 and took out $14,485.71. This shows then we have more money than children, a very desirable state of affairs surely. There are in this county 11,777 children between the ages of six and twenty-one. The apportionment per capita is therefore $1.23. There are only eight counties in the State that pay more money into the treasury than Montgomery and no one makes a better comparative showing. The two counties making the worst comparative showing are Brown and LaPorte, the latter because although having two good sized cities in it draws out as much as it puts in.

Educating the Blind.

The forty-fifth annual report of the Indiana Institute for the Education of the Blind has just been issued and shows an enrollment for the past year of 131. After meeting all expenses the trustees turned back into the State treasury the sum of $1,684.43.

During the past year a large addition was completed and furnished, and a larger number of pupils can now be accommodated. The institute is a school where the blind are given a thorough training in the common school course of studies, including music, and are taught useful trades. Heretofore, the pupils have been limited to the ages from 9 to 21 years, but they are now received at 6 years of age, and men and women of good character, desirous of learning a trade or otherwise improving their condition, will be admitted who are over 21 years of age, at the discretion of the management.

Many of the pupils trained in the institute have made creditable records in the ministry, literature, commerce and the several manual trades which they have mastered. The female pupils learn general housework, sewing, knitting and all fancy work, while the males learn to make brooms, hammocks, mattresses, cane chairs and tune pianos and organs. Their physical development is promoted by a course of gymnastics. There is no charge for board or tuition in the institute. Information regarding eligible blind people will be thankfully received by the superintendent who will promptly answer all communications. Address Prof. E. E. Griffith, Institute for the Blind, Indianapolis, Ind.

LITERARY NOTES.

"A Fair Blockade-Breaker," in the December number of Lippincott's Magazine, gives the thrilling and wholly novel experience of one of those women blockade-runners, described by its author in his "Four Years in Rebel Capitals." Carolyn Clay, only daughter of an ancient Virginian house, is impelled by love and patriotism to essay the carefully-guarded Potomac line, in mid-winter of 1863. This gives a midnight ride through the snow, the chase and capture of Miss Clay and her escort, the latter a type of Stuart's scouts. She escapes through devotion of an old lover an F. F. V., now serving the Federals. These scenes are declared by expert critics to be the most graphic and exciting of any yet written by Mr. DeLeon, exceeding even his much-copied "Race for the Flag," in a former novel for this Magazine, "Oricle and Puritan."

The Most Pleasant Way

Of preventing the grippe, colds, headaches, and fevers is to use the liquid laxative remedy Syrup of Figs, whenever the system needs a gentle, yet effective cleansing. To be benefited one must get the true remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only. For sale by all druggists in 50c. and $1 bottles.

Lillian Lewis.
The bright and clever woman who is so well and favorably known to Crawfordville theatre goers will make her annual appearance in this city, on Friday, in Lawrence Marston's version of Phil-lips much discussed and famous novel, "As In a Looking Glass." Miss Lewis will appear as Lena Despard, a character in which she seems to have made a lasting success. At all events it is a play that has made a snip little fortune for Miss Lewis, and from an actress of limited means a few years ago, Miss Lewis now enjoys the distinction of being one of the wealthy women of the stage with a still brighter future before her. An enthusiastic critic in writing of her performance of Lena Despard, says:

"The story of the restless and daring 'Lena Despard' is well known to the fiction readers of the present day. This difficult role, as portrayed by Miss Lewis has a magnetism about it that is bewitching. She works her scenes up to a climax with a correctness and a touch of feeling that is commanded only by our greater 'queens of tragedy.' Her death scene was truly grand. Taking the character as a whole the 'Lena Despard' of Miss Lewis is far superior to that of Clara Morris, and it is only a question of time before Miss Lewis will be a rival of the 'queen of tragedy' and peer of emotional actresses 'our Mary.'"

Beautiful Tributes.

THE JOURNAL is in receipt of the Evansville papers containing accounts of the demise of Mrs. O. A. Smith. It is seldom, indeed that it has been our lot to read more glowing eulogies than those passed by the Evansville press to the memory of the excellent lady whose death both shocked and saddened the several communities in which she had lived during her short but useful life.

"In this present epidemic of universal sickness and frequent and unexpected visits of the grim destroyer" say the Evansville Journal, "no bereavement in this vicinity has cast a deeper gloom or called forth more expressions of sympathy than the death of the estimable wife of Rev. O. A. Smith."

The lengthy notices of both the Journal and Courier continue in the same sympathetic strain and are in themselves beautiful witnesses of the people's estimate of the lady, and the good she has done, in the community where she had lived so short a time, but in which she was held in love and friendship.

Death of John Hamilton.

It is necessary to record the death of another one of Montgomery county's early settlers and most honored citizens. John Hamilton died Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 at his home near Bowers, of paralysis. About six months ago he was paralyzed on one side and last Monday he received a stroke on the other side. The funeral occurred today at Bethel church near his home. He was 65 years old and leaves a wife and six children. Among them are Gil Hamilton, editor of the Thorntown Argus, and Ed Hamilton, a merchant at Bowers. The deceased has been a Republican ever since the birth of the party and also a member of the Methodist church. He settled in this county when quite young, and has always been distinguished as an energetic and shrewd farmer. He has for many years lived on the present homestead, a valuable place of 300 acres.

Twice a Day.

Weather telegrams are now received twice a day. The telegrams received here at 8 a. m. is prepared from the 8 p. m. observations of the evening before and ending at midnight of the following day. The telegram received here at noon is prepared from the observations made at 8 a. m. of the same day, and ending at 8 p. m. of the following day. The forecasts, therefore, are issued twice a day, based upon the telegraphic reports of observations taken at 8 p. m. and a. m. (75th meridian time.)

Belated Trains.

This morning east bound Big Four train was half an hour late, caused by a freight train which stalled between here and Troutman's Station. The passenger had to help the freight, and both engines were taxed to their full capacity in getting the freight cars up and over the grade in this city.

The trucks on the tender of the north bound Monon passenger last night broke on horseshoe bend, near Bedford, and the train was six hours late in reaching this city. No special damage was done.

A Surprise Wedding.

Last evening just at the close of the services at the Baptist church Rev. G. P. Fuson united in marriage John W. Clemson and Miss Lizzie Luman. After the benediction the congregation went forward and congratulated Mr. Clemson and wife and wished them a peaceful journey together through life.

CHIPS.

—Seats for Lillian Lewis are now on sale at the corner book store.

—J. S. McFaddin entered S. D. Puett's law office, Monday morning, where he will prepare himself for admission to the bar.—Rockville Tribune.

—The Frankfort Crescent publishes the sermon delivered by Dr. Cunningham at the funeral of Mrs. O. A. Smith. It is a most piece of English and replete with beautiful thought and sentiment.

—A movement is on foot to consolidate the Monon system, the Kentucky and Indiana bridge, the Louisville Southern and the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia railways. This will then make a through line from Chicago to the southern seaboard.

Benson-Alexander.

Last evening at eight o'clock, the Christian church was packed by a well dressed audience, to witness the marriage of Charles Benson and Miss Myrtle Alexander. Miss Taylor, of Darlington, played the wedding march and the contracting parties accompanied by their attendants, joined at the altar when the ceremony was performed in a beautiful and impressive manner, by Rev. S. W. Brown. Immediately after the marriage service, the newly married couple adjourned to their future home on east College street, where they received in a most hospitable manner, a large number of invited guests. Elegant refreshments were served and the evening passed most pleasantly away. Many beautiful and useful presents were presented to them by their friends. Mr. and Mrs. Benson begin life under most favorable circumstances. Both are deservedly popular and have hundreds of friends in the city who unite in wishing them long and happy lives together. They will begin housekeeping at once in their new home with the best wishes of all that know them.

A Card to the Public.

To the Editor of THE JOURNAL.
I wish to correct the item I saw in your paper last night where Arthur H. Dickerson notifies the public not to credit his wife, Kate Dickerson. I want to say to the public that he brought his wife, Kate Dickerson, back to my house on Dec. 8, 1890, and from that time on she has supported herself by cooking in a boarding house, and he left her on Dec. 1, 1891, in a helpless condition without a dollar on earth and not a mouthful to eat and without fuel to keep her warm, and as for her buying on his name and on his credit I don't think he has any credit in this city.
