THE OLD FIGHT OVER AGAIN.

We have heretofore shown that the Democratic platform on the tariff question, is taken substantially from the Confederate constitution of 1861. Going further back we find in the notorious South Carolina "Protest" of 1828, adopted by the Nullifiers of that State, the identical language used in the platform, and no doubt the platform was drawn from this "Protest." In that document, written by Mr. Calhoun it was stated thus: "It is true, the third section of the first article of the constitution of the United States authorizes Congress to lay and collect an impost duty, but it is granted as a tax power for the sole purpose of revenue." It will be observed that the words in italics above are in the platform with the change of but a single word. The Nullifiers' Protest contains the words "for the sole purpose of revenue," while the platform has it, "for the purpose of revenue only." In the platform the word "only" is substituted for the word "sole" in the Protest. Such is the pedigree of the Democratic free trade platform of 1892. Its original ancestors were John C. Calhoun and the Nullification Legislature of South Carolina; thence it became the inheritance of the Southern Confederacy, and finally, after having eschewed to the United States thirty years ago, is now claimed by a National Convention as the property of the Democratic party. But the absurdity of this doctrine was exposed by one of the fathers of the constitution, who was able and fully equipped for the work.

The very day before this doctrine was formally promulgated by South Carolina's nullification Legislature, the venerable James Madison, at his home in Montpelier, Va., wrote a long letter to Joseph C. Cabell, in which he combated and completely overthrew the doctrine that had long been espoused in South Carolina, that a tariff for the protection and encouragement of manufactures, was unconstitutional. He submitted eight separate and independent arguments against the "tariff for revenue only" doctrine, the last of which is as follows: (See Appendix to Elliot's Debates, p. 347.)

8. That the encouragement of manufactures was an object of the power to regulate trade, is proved by the use made of the power for that object, in the first session of the first Congress under the constitution; when among the members present were so many who had been members of the Federal Convention which framed the constitution, and of the State conventions which ratified it; each of these classes consisting also of members who had opposed and who had espoused the constitution in its actual form. It does not appear from the printed proceedings of Congress on that occasion, that the power was denied by any of them. And it may be remarked that members from Virginia in particular, as well as the anti-Federal as the Federal party, the names disqualifying those who had opposed and those who had approved the constitution, did not hesitate to propose duties and suggest even prohibitions in favor of several articles of her productions. By one a duty was proposed on mineral coal, in favor of the Virginia pits; by another, a duty on hemp was proposed, to encourage the growth of that article; and by a third, a prohibition of foreign beet suggested as a measure of sound policy. A further evidence in support of the constituted power to protest and foster manufactures by regulations of trade, an evidence that ought of itself, to settle the question, is the uniform and practical sanction given to the power, by the General Government, for nearly forty years; with a concurrence or acquiescence of every State Government, throughout the same period. No novel construction, however ingeniously devised, or however respectable, and patriotic to patrons, can withstand the weight of such authorities, or the unbroken current of so prolonged and universal a practice.

We especially call the attention of the editor of the Frankfort Crescent to this extract as a specimen of "the wisdom of the constitution." Its perusal will convince him that his education in the political history of his country has been very sadly neglected; and that the doctrine of the Confederate Constitution and the Democratic platform of 1892 is not at all recognized by "the wisdom of the fathers," as anything better than flimsy pretext for treason against the National government.

ROADS.

The movement on foot to introduce into the World's Fair exhibition a systematic method of making good wagon roads is meeting the approbation of everyone to whom attention is called. That good roads through any section of country enhances the value of the adjacent land is not disputed by anyone. Good roads from the cultivated highway of civilization and the high moral and intellectual standing of any community is marked by the highways running through it. Not only are good roads convenient, but are ornate, healthy and elevating. A community endowed with enterprise will have not only churches, school houses and pleasant homes, but will have good roads leading thereto. Let everyone encourage the making of good roads everywhere and thus invite the best elements to settle in their midst. Good citizens, good churches, good school houses and good roads form the four corner stones of intelligence. Let the movement meet with the encouragement it deserves.

BURKE COCHRAN in his great speech in the Chicago convention protesting against the nomination of Grover Cleveland said there were 20,000 Democratic soldiers who would never vote for their enemy, whereupon that brave one-legged soldier, Gen. Dan Sickles, shouted out, "No, never, never." And so it will be all over the country. The Union soldiers regardless of party will place a "veto" on Mr. Cleveland's aspirations.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Canaan, Wis., was troubled with neuralgia and rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of electric bitters cured him. Edward Shepard, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years standing. Used three bottles of electric bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and his leg is now sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was curable. One bottle of electric bitters and one box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him. Sold by Nye & Co., Druggists.

These figures represent the number of bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which were sold in the United States from March, '91 to March, '92. Two million, two hundred and twenty-eight thousand, six hundred and seventy-two bottles sold in one year, and each and every bottle was sold on a positive guarantee that money would be refunded if satisfactory results did not follow its use. The secret of its success is plain. It never disappoints and can always be depended on as the very best remedy for Coughs, Colds, etc. Price 50c. and $1.00. At Nye & Co.'s drug store.

"Royal Ruby" Port Wine.

No good thing should be outlawed because here and there a graceless person treats it basely. It is just as necessary to administer stimulants to the aged and feeble as it is to strengthen a dwelling that is beginning to decay. Not only may life be greatly prolonged by artificial support, but the declining years of those near and dear to us be rendered more comfortable and age relieved of many of its usual pains and penalties by a judicious use of "Royal Ruby" Port Wine; each bottle is guaranteed by the undersigned to be absolutely pure and over five years old at bottling or money paid for it will be refunded. Quart bottles $1.00; pints 60 cts; never sold in bulk. See that you get "Royal Ruby." For sale by Nye & Co., Bottled by Royal Wine Co., Chicago.

I have been a great sufferer from dry catarrh for many years, and I tried many remedies, but none did me so much good as Ely's Cream Balm. It completely cured me.—M. J. Lally, 39 Woodward ave., Boston Highlands, Mass. I think Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for catarrh I ever saw. I never took anything that relieved me so quickly, and I never felt so well for a long time. I used to be troubled with severe headaches two or three times a week. J. A. Alcorn, Agt U. P. R. Co., Eaton, Colo.

The Modest Lover.

When Charles called on his love, one night, He found the maid engaged in weeping, And though engaging was the sight, He deemed it somewhat out of keeping Because she was engaged to him. And so he asked her why she cried, And she, with eyes both moist and dim, Drew forth her kerchief, and replied: "Dear Charles, I had to cry, you see, Because my mind was in a whirl; Suppose you've never had met me, And none and loved some other girl? Suppose, dear Charles, you'd married her Before our courtship had begun. Be just such a course you must prefer. But, darling, what would I have done? Charles stood and twined his mustache tips, And rose in his own estimation. Then bent and kissed her on the lips, The vainest lover in creation. "You've got me," said he, with a sigh, Then gave the tips another twist; "So, dearest, if you've got to cry, Just do it for that other girl!" —Brooklyn Life.

Reward for a Dream.

Lost, in the month of December, An exquisite Dream and Belief; It either was dropped on Life's highway, Or stolen! Time, the thief that fled, If found, please return to the owner— Its value is small save to her; As reward, all her cherished possessions She offers without a demur. 'Tis so small that the owner could hold it In one human heart's little space— So great, all earth shall own with its brightness And looked like a glorified place. If found and returned in good order The offered reward will be paid; But the finder is cautioned against delay— Dreams exposed to the air sometimes fade! —Kato Field's Washington.

A Successful Colored Man.

HON. JOHN P. GREEN.

Hon. John P. Green, of Cleveland, the first colored man to be elected to the upper house of the legislature in a northern state, was born in New Bern, N. C., April 2, 1815. His father was born a slave and purchased his freedom before marriage, but his mother was a free born quadroon. When John was three years old his father died and his mother had to rear three small children by her toil. She moved to Cleveland, where John got eighteen months schooling and then had to earn his own support, but after reaching manhood he acquired a classical education. He is an able lawyer and enjoys a lucrative practice.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

An average daily earning of an American locomotive is about $100.

A new rule on the Reading road prohibits the trainmen from passing cars from using tobacco in any form while on duty.

President Milton H. Smith, of the Louisville and Nashville, refused $35,000 a year from the Richmond and Danville, so he must get a handsome salary.

The Richmond Terminal would have given either Henry or Albert Pink $50,000 a year to take the presidency under the proposed reorganization scheme.

The increase of business relations between the north and south is shown by the necessity for a limited vestibule train between Cincinnati and Lexington, Ky., over the Cincinnati Southern railway Queen and Crescent route.

After the locomotive department of the Argentine Great Western railway had mastered the question of using petroleum as fuel and most excellent results had been attained, the supply of oil gave out, owing to the borings not going deep enough, and wood and coal are again being used.
