Mr. Walkup's Pug.
 Some time ago Mr. R. C. Walkup came to the conclusion that a pug dog was essential to his happiness. He determined not to buy one bred in Crawfordville but to buy a regular dog fancier, a registered and aristocratic canine. After a long deliberation and a thorough investigation of the dog's family tree he purchased a pug which was warranted to be a direct descendant of the original pug dog. The blue blooded beast was duly transferred to the home of Mr. Walkup and in the course of time proved to be a greyhound. The pups were perhaps mixed in the shuffle by the fancier, and some searcher after greyhounds probably got the pug but at any rate Mr. Walkup's dog lived and grew space. As his nose and legs lengthened his bump of destructiveness became distinct and prominent until at length it seemed to incorporate the whole animal from the tip of his nose to the end of his tail. Yesterday morning, when Mr. Walkup and family went to church Adolphus was accidentally locked (his name was Adolphus) in the house. This was just what Adolphus had been waiting for since the day his eyes were opened to the light of the sun and the folly of this fleeting world. Mr. Walkup and family were barely out of the gate when Adolphus plunged headlong into a reckless extravagance and waste. He tore down all the lace curtains in the house and literally chewed and clawed them to shreds. One of Mrs. Walkup's dresses shared the same fate as did the breeches pertaining to Master Walkup. Bed clothes and bric-a-brac by the basketful went the way of all things earthly before the gusting, bubbling Adolphus. Adolphus had an elegant time and when the family returned he was completely worn out and gazing at them from the frame of a painting through which he had stuck his head in a last mad dash. Adolphus was sent to Goepport last night.

A Great Sensation.
 Waynetown is reeking with sensations again, and now comes nobly to the front with the reported recovery of long buried treasures. About 40 years ago, so the story goes, a band of counterfeits and robbers, under the leadership of an old vampire named Spray, held dominion over that section of the country and fairly rolled in their ill gotten gains. Finally most of them were wiped out and the others fled the county. The Spray cabin was destroyed but none of the stolen treasury was ever found. The very site of the old robbers' den had been forgotten until the other day when some hired men went into the field where the cabin once stood and found that during the night some persons had unearthed the old fireplace. A trench fourteen feet long had been dug and when the fire place had been reached by the searchers the stones of which it had been made were removed. It was evident from the appearance of the earth, that a large iron pot had been removed and carried off. What it contained is a question, but the whole neighborhood is fully satisfied that it was running over with gold. It is supposed that some one to whom the escaped robbers had communicated the whereabouts of the treasures returned and dug it up. The whole thing is a very pretty fairy tale, but no one exactly understands why the old fire-place was unearthed or what the box concealed beneath it contained.

All About a Woman.
 The shooting affray yesterday between Wm. Meadows and John Luster, was over the former's wife. The trouble began at Crawfordville, where Meadows resides. Luster and several Lafayette colored young men went to Crawfordville Thursday evening and attended the colored Odd Fellows' ball. Mrs. Meadows was there and did not return home that night. Meadows searched and tracked her to LaFayette. He found Luster, asked about his wife and a quarrel ensued. Meadows threatened to shoot but finally ran. Then Luster started out to find Meadows and they met on Salem street at the end of Twelfth. Meadows discovered that his wife had her hair cut, and about the same time that the police were after him, and he tried to make his escape, but Officer King captured him. Luster was fined $20 and costs, the total amounting to $38.55. He was arrested some time ago for shooting Charles Biggs, but was discharged. Meadows was discharged, and continuing to search for his wife found her on Main street, and demanded her to follow him. At midnight they returned to Crawfordville. —LaFayette Courier.

Mrs. Meadows was formerly Miss Platt, an elder sister of Miss "Milkshake" Platt of redolent reputation. Meadows had frequently had trouble with his wife and during the fair distinguished himself by tearing down the bed.

Disgraceful Row.
 A couple of drunken plumbers engaged in a beastly row at the Dale House on west Main street yesterday afternoon. Their loud mouthed profanity shocked the whole neighborhood and continued for a very lengthy time. They were finally driven off by mine host Dale, who issued from his domicile and fairly wiped up the earth with them.

Pure and Wholesome Quality.
 Commends to public approval the California liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs. It is pleasant to the taste and by acting gently on the kidneys, liver and bowels to cleanse the system effectually, it promotes the health and comfort of all who use it, and with millions it is the best and only remedy.

Entertained.
 On last Saturday afternoon Miss Anna Jackman at her home on east College street entertained quite a number of her schoolmates, it being the occasion of her twelfth birthday. Her presents were numerous and costly. Light refreshments were served and a general good time was had by the playing of various games.

Important Notice.
 Every member of Crawfordville Commandery, P. O. S. of A., is requested to be present at regular meeting to night in full uniform. There will be initiatory work.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Little Lee Benson Meets an Awful Death Under a Horse's Hoof.

Saturday evening about 6 o'clock, there occurred in the alley between Market street and Lafayette avenue an accident peculiarly shocking and sad, and which resulted in the almost instant death of Lee Benson, a bright little lad of 13 years. Lee, who was the son of Mrs. Ella Benson, of Lafayette avenue, had passed the holiday with some young companions in the woods and returning went to the residence of William Scott, on Market street, where all the youngsters of the neighborhood have been wont to assemble for the games. It has always been a favorite pastime with them to ride the horses of Mr. Scott to the drinking fountain near Goldeburg's junk shop, and as the animals are quite gentle Mr. Scott never interposed any objections. Saturday evening little Lee started astride an old horse and leading another. The fountain was reached in safety and the return up the alley to the stable begun. The lad, however, before starting on his return made what proved to be a fatal mistake. He made a slip knot in the halter of the horse he was leading and put the noose over his wrist. Just about the time he was in the rear of J. W. Cumberland's residence the horse Lee was leading shyed, dragging the poor boy off and under the startled animal's hoofs. The horse sprang forward in flight and planted its iron shod hoof squarely on the boy's head, crushing it like an egg shell. Then, before removing its foot it threw up its head, snapping the thick halter squarely off and ran for the barn in terror. Mr. Scott, who stood at the gate, suspected trouble on the horse's arrival and hurried down the alley to find the lad dead. Two or three persons who witnessed the accident were already on the spot, and it was evident that the poor child never knew what hurt him. His head was terribly crushed and the sight was a most sickening one. The remains were at once removed to the residence of his grief-stricken mother. Little Lee was one of twins, his sister Cora surviving him. He was a bright lad and a general favorite, whose sad death carries sorrow to many homes other than his own.

The Ethics of Foot Ball.
 Professor A. A. Stagg made a national reputation as Yale's greatest end rush, and has since proven himself the greatest physical trainer in America, shown by his election to the chair of physical culture in the new Chicago university. It will be remembered that last year an unimportant high school team with a few weeks of his coaching made some of the great Eastern teams work for the victory and actually scored against Yale's champions.

Professor Stagg believes that there is much more than physical culture in modern foot ball and that the discipline gained in the scrimmage is more valuable in practical business than that gained from the conjugation of the Greek verb, and maintains that successful foot ball playing is evidence of the most desirable mental traits as well as of physical strength. His lectures are illustrated by the stereoscopic and exhibit beautifully some of the star athletic achievements. Purdue foot ball men expect to get some pointers.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by J. F. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. THE COMING COMET.

It is fancied by a grateful patron that the next comet will appear in the form of a huge bottle having

Dr. Ridley's STOMACH RENOVATOR.

Inscribed on it in bold characters. Whether this conceit and high compliment will be verified remains to be seen, but PROF. RIDLEY will continue to send forth that wonderful vegetable compound and potent eradicator of diseases. It is the only medicine which will give a new lease of life. It is a positive cure for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Chronic Stomach Trouble, Kidney Trouble and Bright's Disease (in first stage) Catarrh and Neuritis of Stomach, Liver Complaint, Heart Trouble. Two table spoonful will stop hiccups or flux in 30 minutes. It is wholly vegetable. For sale by Nye & Booe, Crawfordville, Ind., who will wholesale and retail it. All leading druggists keep it.
