DAILY JOURNAL.

FRIDAY, OCT. 14, 1892.

An Untoward Circumstance.

Again has Mr. William Bennett stepped to the front and commanded public attention for a brief space. Mr. Bennett and his charming wife have been in the background now for some time and accordingly it is nothing more than proper that we should lay aside the cares of life for awhile and consider the affairs of this truly romantic pair. Mr. Bennett, who is better known among the north end's 400 as "Bill," was to have assisted at the Democratic pole raising "out beyond the Monon station" Monday evening but the prospects now are that he will not. Mr. Bill has changed his hotel and is now receiving his meals through the iron slats of Bible's Probationary Penitentiary Chop House, the famous health resort of north Washington street, "where the worm dieth not." The reason of Mr. Bill's incarceration and retention is somewhat after this manner.

Some months ago he made the acquaintance of honest Andrew Gray, a sturdy yeoman of Russellville, who occasionally sheds the light of his countenance and the color of his money on the Hoosier Athens. Mr. Bill at once conceived a great affection and regard for Mr. Gray and invited him down to meet Mrs. Bennett and the family dog. Mr. Gray declined on several on several visits but finally about two months ago when he inhaled the soft atmosphere of the summer and felt the soothing influence of Crawfordville dust to say nothing of the seductive words of Mr. Bill, he yielded and went down. A very pleasant evening was passed in the manner in which most of the Bennett family's evenings are passed, and when the hour for retiring came Mr. Gray turned in on the floor, if his memory serves him aright, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill occupied the bed the curled maple bed posts of which are the wonder and delight of the neighborhood. When Mr. Gray opened his eyes just as rosy fingered morn stood tiptoe on the misty tops of the fair ground sheds, he put his hands down in his pocket. He occupied a position analogous to that of the young gentleman in the ballad who upon starting out had "Sixteen dollars on his inside pocket but not a cent did he have left on Sunday morning." Mr. Gray, however, was even worse off. He had lost not only the $16 but two of his wife's best bed quilts. The Bennetts would not disgorge so after laboring religiously with them for a long time Mr. Gray filed an affidavit charging Mr. Bill with larceny. Mr. Bill waived examination this morning and was bound over to the circuit court in the sum of $200. It would be a great pity if a jury should send this good man away up north among the sand hills of Michigan City.

Democratic Pole Raising.
Eli Jones is a very enthusiastic young Democrat who lives out beyond the Monon station, and he has got a 90 foot ash Cleveland pole ready to raise. On Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock the pole will be raised at Mr. Jones' home. There will be speakers, music and all that sort of things, to which all are invited. Every Democrat should go.—The Swallowtail.

"Out beyond the Monon station" has a sort of a vague, delightful air which just borders on the romantic. To state that the affair will be under the auspices of the cultured and foxy Mr. Eli Jones, gives it a high and aristocratic tone not to be sneezed at. Eli has always stood for high morality and public progress and not infrequently contributes to the school fund and persuades others to do. Only yesterday in the Mayor's court he was instrumental in getting Mr. Mike Sullivan in trouble. Eli will doubtless have rare speakers and rare music. "Every Democrat should go," (well armed.)

Special Meeting of McPherson Post.
A special meeting of McPherson Post will be held on Saturday evening, Oct. 15, at 7:30 o'clock to take action and to make arrangements for participating in the ceremonies of celebrating Columbus Day. Every comrade is requested to be present.

Wild Horses Subdued.

Prof. Boery entertained all the people his tent would hold last night for two hours. His methods of subduing unmanageable horses and curing them of their faults is not only amusing but eminently instructive. Kindness is a thing he emphasizes and he says that many of a horse's worst habits are the result of brutal treatment. Last evening he brought a vicious horse to perfect gentleness and cured a kicking colt of F. M. Dice of his bad habit. This evening he will work on a wild mustang belonging to Tom Kerr, an animal that will not allow a man in the same stall. Other vicious horses will also be trained. The entertainment is such that ladies can attend and several were out last night.

Hon. W. S. Carpenter in This County.

Hon. W. S. Carpenter, Republican candidate for Congress, will make a canvass of this county beginning Monday, Oct. 24. He will be accompanied by Hon. M. D. White and meetings have been arranged to be held at Darlington, Linden, New Richmond, Waynetown, Alamo, Waveland, New Market, Ladoga and Mace. He expects to be in every township in the county and meet personally as many people as possible. Mr. Carpenter is a pleasant gentleman and the Republicans should endeavor to see him and take him by the hand. The dates of his appointments with Mr. White will be found elsewhere in today's paper.

Sweeping Change.
The Central Telephone Union which owns the plant here is going to do away with its exchange and vacate its present office. The new patent switch which will be attached to every telephone will enable patrons to do their own exchange work about the city. For the long lines an agent will have to be employed with quarters yet to be selected. Under the new regime the union will have but 22 subscribers here as they are obliged now to sign for a year and some are not satisfied that the automatic switch will be a success.

Sam's Manifesto.
Sam Grant thus blossoms out in the Lafayette Courier:

In last evening's issue of your paper I noticed an article relating to a match with me and Cory. Now allow me to say that I don't believe in so much paper talk and if Cory wants to fight me he knows there is no trouble to arrange a match. I have been willing and ready to make a match at any time. I am ready to sign articles.

Private Opinion Made Public.

W. H. Durham: "Well I'll declare, here I am going away from town at the same time Ben Wasson is leaving. Now this is the first time in 28 years that such a thing has occurred. I'm sure I don't know what such an incident portends but I think it will bring rain. Yes, I rather think it will bring rain."

Well No. 13.

The People's Natural Gas Company completed its thirteenth well in the Sheridan gas fields. Each one of the thirteen are gushers and the people need have no fears as to the supply. Two more wells are to be drilled at once, making fifteen in all which the Company think will be ample for a long time.

The Reception To-night.

The reception of Dr. Burroughs at Yandes hall this evening is not in any sense a formal invitation affair but the general public is cordially and earnestly invited to attend and meet the new head of the college.

THE BRITISH PRESS WANTS CLEVELAND BAD.

(From the London Times.)

"In spite of his scurvy treatment of Sir Sackville West, we should, for economic reasons, prefer to see Mr. Cleveland again installed in the Presidency."

(From the Liverpool Journal of Commerce.)

"There are few of us in England who would go further than this, and the Democratic party in the States may rest assured that if the English sympathy could carry the election of Grover Cleveland in November, the White House would be theirs. We shall watch the development of the struggle with the keenest interest, and even if the triumph be not attained all at once, there is indeed reason for congratulation that one of the great American parties has made Free-Trade, pure and simple, the battle cry of the future."

(From the London Times.)

"Undoubtedly our interests as a trading community must make us wish success to the Democrats, who now, for the first time, go to the polls as the avowed champions of free trade."

(From the London Times.)

"The United States do not approach the question from the same point of view as ourselves. The object of their statesmen is not to secure the largest amount of wealth for the country generally, but to keep up, by whatever means, the standard of comfort among the laboring classes."

These sample extracts from English free trade papers show the spirit of that policy without sham, and will give the reader an idea how much the English free traders desire the election of Mr. Cleveland again. They know that it would be greatly to English interests to make him President. This is a good time to stand by American interests, and while we have prosperity to let well enough alone.

Presidents Madison and Monroe on Protection.

The National Democratic Convention at Chicago, declared that protection was a fraud and unconstitutional. James Madison, the fourth President of the United States, has always been recognized as the "Father of the Constitution."

Ramsey & Goltra.

said in his special message to Congress, in 1890:

"It will be worthy of the just and provident care of Congress to make such further alterations in the laws as will more especially protect and foster the several branches of manufacture which have been recently instituted or extended by the inaudible exertions of our citizens."

Then again in a special message to Congress on Feb. 20, 1915, President Madison said:

"But there is no subject that can enter with greater force and merit into the deliberations of Congress than a consideration of the means to preserve and promote the manufactures which have sprung into existence and obtained an unparalleled maturity throughout the United States during the period of the European wars. This source of national independence and wealth, I anxiously recommend therefore to the prompt and constant guardianship of Congress."

Never since the days of John Calhoun, the South Carolina nullifier, has any public body before declared such legislation unconstitutional. James Monroe, the fifth President of the United States, in his inaugural address said:

"Our manufactures will likewise require the systematic and fostering care of the Government. Possessing as we do all the raw material, the fruit of our own soil and industry, we ought not to depend in the degree we have done on supplies from other countries. Equally important is it to provide at home a market for our raw materials, as by extending competition, it will enhance the price and protect the cultivator against the casualties incident to foreign markets."

Principle of the New Tariff Law.

The great wisdom of the present tariff law is seen in the fact that it adjusts the tariff duty on the articles which we have the raw material to produce. This builds up competition in the United States, and reduces prices to consumers. And it puts on the free list the articles for which we have no raw material to produce. In these there could be no competition here, and it would be taxing consumers to put a duty on them. Hence the present law puts more articles on the free list than any tariff law ever before enacted by Congress.

This young man stayed out too late, serenading his lady love. He caught a cold, which developed into catarrh, but he cured it with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, a sovereign specific for chronic cases, "Cold in the Head," Catarrhal Headache. It corrects the tainted breath, stops the offensive discharges, heals the irritated throat and nose, leaving the head clear, and smell and taste unimpaired.
