IN THE VALLEY OF THE SHADOW.

The Wabash Foot Ball Team Goes Down Before the Merry Men of Purdue.

"I knowed it!"

So spoke coacher Donnelly of the Purdue eleven as the game closed.

In describing that game words would be but barren sounds. We can but melancholy stand and in the hush and silence feel what tongue has never said. The Wabash team was clearly outclassed at all points and the score of 72 to 0 proves it. Wabash was within six feet of scoring in the second half but as far as results were concerned she might as well have been chewing glue in Kalamazoo, 10,000 miles away. Purdue scored a touch down within three minutes after the game opened and kept up her lick through the first half. She fought more listlessly in the second half and Wabash more pluckily as was evidenced by the points scored. For Wabash, Blair, Fry, Little and Meteer did some excellent work while for Purdue, Thompson, Finney, Stevenson and Jameson excelled. Thompson scored nearly every touchdown for Purdue and Studebaker kicked every goal but the goal kicking was dead easy and the old brindle cow that kicked over the lamp which started the Chicago fire could have done the same and kept on chewing her end with as much grace as "me lawd" Studebaker chewed his gum.

NOTES.

Purdue plays a much swifter game than last year but is not nearly so strong in her push. In fact Wabash held her line easily.

The game was a quiet one and barring the woolly actions of a few Purdue men who were full up to the neck there was no unpleasantness on the grounds.

The saloons did a big business with the Purdue men after the game and at 6:30 about 50 of them assembled in Steve Allen's Main street place and gave the college yell.

Some of the Wabash players think Purdue's team much better than last year and some worse. All the Purdue players pronounce Wabash's team better than that of last year.

A number of business rooms were displaying Wabash colors. This should be done on all such occasions. The success of Purdue lies in the fact that she has the substantial backing of every business house in LaFayette. Backing is what counts.

Coacher Donnelly hates Malley cordially and during the progress of the game went through the crowd roasting his work. Mr. Donnelly wished to be conspicuous and wore a red and black blazer which could be heard by his anxious parents in Chicago.

A gang of young men and women sporting Purdue colors were out in a yellow park wagon with a team of white horses and for their rude, coarse and insulting language were spotted by the police. They came from LaFayette but were evidently not connected with an institution of learning.

Amusements.

Henshaw and Ten Broeck, supported by an excellent company, presented their amusing musical extravaganza, "The Nabobs," for the fourth time in this city on last Tuesday evening to a good audience who enjoyed it as much as if they had never seen the piece before. Mr. Henshaw, the bright particular star, around whom the others played, was as great as ever and the audience went wild over his songs and witticisms. Mr. Henshaw is an artist in every sense of the word and is one of the most popular actors on the stage to-day. Sixteen years ago he joined hands with May Ten Broeck, and since then they have appeared in their specialties in all the principal cities. Miss Ten Broeck has given herself but little opportunity for work in "The Nabobs," but she sings a little in her sweet way, dances as gracefully as ever and wears several beautiful costumes.—Brooklyn Eagle.

ALL FOR LOVE.

Walter Layne Deliberately Shoots Himself In His Father's Presence.

A tragedy with a romance connected with it occurred Saturday night about 10 o'clock at the residence of George Layne, just beyond the Monon fill. Walter Layne, aged 19 years, is the son of George Layne, and previous to Saturday had been working at Darlington in the timber. Although Walter was in Darlington his heart was in Crawfordsville and on all possible occasions he brought it to pass that his whole physical and spiritual anatomy was here. Walter, it seems, was desperately in love with Miss Maude Brooks, a 16 year old morsel of femininity with large melting brown eyes, who resides in his father's immediate neighborhood. But Miss Maude like others of her sex, was not prepared to be taken without a struggle, it, indeed, at all, so the course of true love did not run exactly smooth. George, it is said, attempted to make engagements with Maude last Sunday and last Wednesday, but on each occasion suffered the mortification of seeing her whisked off by an impudent rival. When he arrived in town Saturday, he went to Thompson & Cates' second hand store and purchased a revolver, and then at another place secured cartridges to fit it. The weapon was a heavy 32 calibre but when he purchased it he gave no intimation of his awful purpose. Walter loaded about town in the evening and, it is reported, saw the object of his affection mender along the street with another young man. About nine o'clock he met Charley Britton, a neighbor's son, and had a short conversation. They took a beer apiece at the Mand S saloon on north Green street, and then passed out. To Britton, Walter gave no hint of his intention to take his life, but a short time later he turned up at the Monon station and engaged a Till Hampton in conversation. Mr. Hampton states that he appeared perfectly sober, but looked quite sad and melancholy. He declared to Mr. Hampton that he was tired of living and had purchased a revolver to blow his brains out. To give currency to this somewhat startling assertion he drew the weapon from his pocket and fondly patted it a few times with his hand. Even then Mr. Hampton would not believe him but advised him to go on home and throw the revolver in the fill on his way. The boy stood a few moments as though struggling with doubt and then thrusting the murderous revolver in his hip pocket started for home. It was a quarter of an hour later, perhaps, that his father was aroused by hearing a neighbor's dog barking furiously. He opened the door and stepped out into the yard to investigate the disturbance. Under a cherry tree about 12 feet from the house, he perceived a dark form lying prone upon the ground. He walked up to it and found his son Walter lying with his face hidden in his hands. He gave no response to inquiries as to what affected him, and for a minute the father stood irresolute above the evidently suffering boy. Even while he did so the lad suddenly started half up and in an instant jerked the revolver from his pocket, placed it to his head and fired. He then staggered to his feet and fell against his father who placed out his arms to support him. Mr. Layne carried the senseless body into the house and soon the whole excited neighborhood was on the scene. El Hampton and others undressed the lad and he was in bed when Dr. Ensminger arrived. It was found that the ball had entered the right temple, destroyed the vision of the right eye and lodged somewhere about the nose. The wounded lad called several times to those about him to help blow that member and also exhorted those present to "stay with Cleveland," a piece of advice, by the way, which was not bent on observing himself. The wound had not been intensely fatal because the weapon had been held at too high an angle, but the purpose of self destruction is indisputable. Eli Jones and Bert Ezra stayed with the boy all night and after he became conscious endeavored to learn from him his reason for the rash deed but could get no satisfaction. Yesterday a JOURNAL representative called at the home and found the young man resting easily. Miss Brooks was there, with just a suspicion of a tear in her large brown eyes, and an interesting coterie of ladies of the neighborhood occupied seats about the premises, enlightened by the presence of Mr. Eli Jones. The boy's father with his shirt all stained with his son's blood stood in the doorway and stated that he intended to prosecute the firm selling the revolver. During the morning Walter had asked for his clothes and when handed him he had searched the pockets. When asked what he was hunting he said the revolver was the object he desired and he wanted to know what had become of it. It was evident that he wanted to finish what he considered a bad job, so his father stated that the weapon was where he would never see it again. Young Layne is reported to-day as thriving on his dose of lead and he will probably recover.

"The Good Old Times."

"Then times were good, Merchants cared not a rush For any other fare, Than Johnny cake and mush."

But now times have changed, and the plain and simple fare of the forefathers is done away with. Patent food, and high seasoned food, and strong drinks, have taken its place, and, as a result, dyspepsia, impure blood, and diseases of the stomach, liver and lungs are numerous. This great change has led of the most skillful physicians of the age to study out a remedy for these modern diseases, which he has named his "Golden Medical Discovery." Dr. Pierce in this remedy has found a cure for Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption, in its early stages, and "Liver Complaints."

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely, it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.
