REDUCTIONS OF THE WAR TARIFFS.
In the New York Press Senator Aldrich gives the following condensed statement of Republican tariff reductions, which will be a perfect knock-down to the average free trader:

Four important reductions on our tariff have taken place since 1870, namely, by the acts of 1870, 1872, 1882 and 1890. By the provisions of the act of July 14, 1870, there were added to the free list 178 dutiable articles. The rates of duty were reduced upon forty-nine other articles. By the act of June 6, 1872, 213 items were added to the free list, and duties were lowered on forty-two articles. By the act of March 3, 1883, a further addition of seventy-two articles was made to the free list, and rates were reduced on 427 others, embracing every schedule and almost every article on the dutiable list. The actual percentage of reduction made in rates by that act was 38 1/2 per cent. The tariff reformers claim that the Republican Tariff Commissioner of 1883 promised to reduce rates 20 to 25 per cent., and that a Republican Congress failed to keep this promise; but instead of a reduction of 20 to 25 per cent. a much greater reduction was made. To demonstrate the magnitude of these several reductions it is only necessary for me to say that if the rates of duty imposed prior to 1870 had been collected on the importations of 1887 the amount of duties collected in the latter year would have been $359,000,000, or $129,000,000 more than were actually collected at our custom houses.

By the act of 1890 the rate of duty collected on all imports in 1891, dutiable and free, was a fraction over 21 per cent.; if upon these importations the war tariff rates had been levied the average rate would have been 51 per cent. of their value.

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that during the campaign it was claimed by the Democratic press and speakers that the tax law was perfect, petitions are going up to the Legislature praying that the office of county assessor shall be abolished. For a Republican to suggest any change in either the tax law or the election law is regarded as treason against the State.

The South Bend Times, a high toned Democratic paper, comments as follows on "forty per cent." Baldwin:

"Such harangues as the one recently delivered by Judge Baldwin, in Indianapolis, are mischievous in the extreme. If headed by those to whom it was addressed, it must inevitably lead to trouble. He talked more like a madman than anything else."

The old table used to go, "ten cents make one drink, ten drinks make one drunk." If the growler continues to be sold as cheaply as some of the local dealers are selling it the table will have to be revised to read, "ten cents make one drunk, one drunk makes ten dollars or ten days."

REPRESENTATIVE BROOKSHIRE has yielded to Senator Voorhes the right to name the Terre Haute postmaster, and the Senator will name Harry Dunham, chairman of the Vigo county Democratic committee.

ISAAC P. GRAY expects a cabinet position but every one else can see that he is marching through a slaughter house to an open grave.

The Democratic brethren should cultivate an intimate acquaintance with the beautiful hymn commencing, "Come, ye discolorates."

St. Bernard's Catholic Church to be treated to a Revival Shortly.

Father Dinnen has arranged with two learned Jesuit priests to conduct a mission, which corresponds to a revival in non-Catholic churches. The plan of the mission is given in the circular printed below:

The following is the order of exercises of the mission to be given by Fathers Moeller and Finnegan, of the Society of Jesus, at St. Bernard's church, Crawfordville, Ind., commencing Sunday, Jan. 15, 1893, at 10 a. m., High Mass; 7:30 p. m., Rosary, Sermon and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament DURING THE WEEK.

6:30 a. m. Mass and Instruction
9:00 a. m. Mass and Sermon
2:30 p. m. Stations of the Cross
7:30 p. m. Rosary, Sermon, Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament

Confessions will be heard from 5 o'clock in the morning until 12 m., and from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 10 p. m.

Those who attend the Mission are requested to abstain from all vain amusements, and earnestly employ themselves in the great affair of their salvation.

Let us pray for the conversion of sinners.

"Behold now is the acceptable time, behold these are the days of salvation." St. Paul, 2nd Cor., vi, 2.

"Seek ye the Lord while He may be found; call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his ways, and the unjust man his thoughts; and let him turn to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him, and to our God, for He is bountiful to forgive."—Isaiah 55.

CONDITIONS FOR GAINING THE PENALTY INDULGENCE OF THE MISSION.

- 1—to assist at five exercises of the Mission.
- 2—to make a good confession.
- 3—to receive the Holy Communion at this Church.
- 4—to pray for the intention of our Holy Mother Church.

The Song of Work.
Work! Work! Work!
With brain, with heart and hand,
Till plenty fills the land.
For every stroke which labor gives
Increases that wherein it lives.
All wealth is made by labor's power.
Labor's the root and wealth the flower.

Work! Work! Work!
And be a nobleman.
Work! Work! Work!
As long as e'er you can.
The man who works enjoys his food;
And that he eats, it does him good.
With plenty of food and little toil
Muscles will rot and brain will spoil.

Work! Work! Work!
On that which yields return.
Work! Work! Work!
No honest labor spins.
It matters not what you may do—
To make a nation or a shoe—
For he who works an honest thing
In God's pure sight ranks as a king.

Work! Work! Work!
The planets in their spheres
Work! Work! Work!
Through days and months and years.
They never stop, but onward go—
A lesson of steady work they show.
The hand that made them never tires
Replenishing their inward fires.

Work! Work! Work!
And never idle stand.
Work! Work! Work!
Be one of Nature's band.
She always works that things may grow,
Sometimes fast and sometimes slow.
Her work is never done in haste,
She works all up and leaves no waste.

—John Parrell.

Michigan's New Attorney General.
Hon. Adolphus A. Ellis, on the Democratic and Populist ticket, was elected attorney general of Michigan by a plurality of less than 1,000 in a total vote of 400,000.

He was born in Eaton county, Mich., and was reared on a farm. He gained a college education by hard work, and located in law practice in Ionia. He served two terms as prosecuting attorney of his county and was a candidate for attorney general in 1888, but was defeated.

MAB.

Continued.

We stand and chat quietly about many things. For the last few weeks he has been from home; and he asks me about the small events that have happened in his absence; and I ask him about the visit he has paid.

"I am not sorry to get back again," he says; but he says it in that sober, matter-of-fact tone which admits of no flattering personal interpretations.

"You are tired at last of traveling?"

"Not of traveling—but of country house visits," he replies, with a grave yet humorous smile. "Yes, I believe you are right," he admits, after a moment, smiling quickly but gravely again, "I am tired of wandering."

"The African explorer is settling down into a stay-at-home country squire," I answer.

"For awhile."

"You do not expect the jog-trot life to suit you?"

"Not for long." He does not sigh, and yet there is a suggestion of a sigh in the voice in which he answers.

"Whilst there are worlds to explore you will never be content!"

His gray eyes rest on me. They do not exactly smile; it would be difficult to correctly describe the expression in their depths. They rest on me with a long look, then he glances slowly away at the slender rain-laden branches of the laburnum, which sway lightly in the breeze and shake down showers of rain-drops which sparkle in the sunlight as they fall.

"While life lasts, Mab, I shall never be content," is all he says; but his tone has a little thrill of deep meaning, and for a moment my heart stands still, then bounds forward at a passionate speed that keeps me silent whether I will or no.

For nine long years the record of our talk with one another has been a record of safe commonplaces, impersonal, unemotional. Only at rare intervals across that desert of years have I caught a glance, a tone, that has made me wonder whether the love I refused to take is dead? Nine years ago I put happiness away from me proudly, impetuously. For nine years I have known regret, loneliness, bitter heartache. To-day I have perhaps, too little pride, as nine years ago I had too much. If I thought he still cared for me, his silence should not stand between us; I would let no ceremonies, no conventionalities spoil our lives.

"Why are you—not content?" I asked. My tone is steady with an effort.

He turns his head and half smiles at me again. "In another week," he says, as one who has answered my question and changes his tone, "the laburnum and lilac will both be in bloom."

"Yes."

And then we are both silent.

"Ned, we have been friends so many years," I plead, trying to speak easily, frankly, pleasantly, in friendly fashion;—"friends are useless if they can not grumble to one another! Twenty years ago—fifteen years ago—we used to pour out to one another all our causes of discontent."

He looks before him for nearly a minute before he answers.

"Since then—" he says and pauses.

"Yes."

"We have been both more and less than friends."

"Does that prevent our speaking of our troubles to each other?"

"It prevents my speaking of one trouble to you," he answered, simply.

"How my hands tremble! I clasp my fingers together. My heart is beating so fast and furiously that I can scarcely draw my breath; my thoughts leap forward to a bold resolve—a resolve too bold to be womanly—a resolve so bold that I dare not pause before I speak.

"Ned, once you said you loved me. You have got over it—your love?"

The reserve, the silence of nine years is broken. It is I who have torn down the barriers! And yet I have only partly

"Is it prosaic to you?" I asked. "Oh, Ned, why have we thrown away so many years of happiness?"

"Perhaps the discipline has been good for us," he whispers quietly. "Every thing happens for the best to those who do not take their lives into their own hands. And you, Mab, are dearer, sweeter to me than ever."

He gently lays my head upon his shoulder and folds me in his arms. My heart is at rest at last. I would wait another thirteen years for this happiness.
