THE RIOT CASES.

The Defense Opens—The Disappearance of John Riley Seems to Confirm His Death.

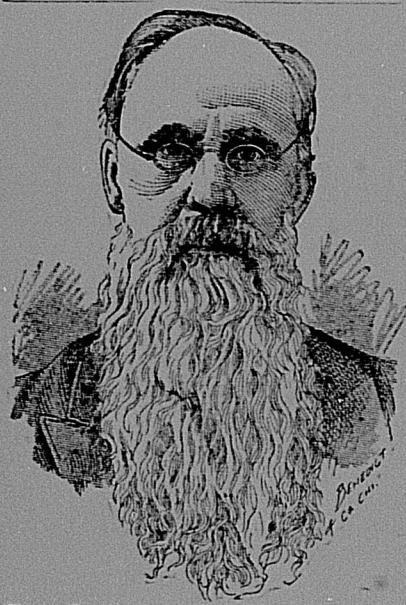

The defense of Murphy, the rioter, began yesterday but up to last night no important evidence had been introduced. Several testified that they did not see him fire at Rudolph. The one great question that is now being agitated is "Where is John Riley?" Speaking on this point the Courier says:

■Mysterious are the whereabouts of John Riley, who, during the trial of Bart J. Murphy, has been identified by a large number of witnesses as the man with the pole on the stage of the opera house, the night of the riot. Since that night Riley has not been seen or heard of, and it is rumored that he is peacefully sleeping beneath the sod. Those who listened to the evidence of Whitney Thompson will remember that he stated that when he saw Rudolph fall he thought the ex-priest was overpowered, and leaving his seat advanced to the stage and resting his hand on the frame of the foot-lights, aimed well at the man with the pole and fired. Mr. Thompson is a member of the Lafayette Gun Club and a good shot, one of the best in the city. He further testified that immediately after his shot Riley disappeared. On the night of the riot there were a number of people going about stating that a man had been shot and that he had been carried down the side alley and placed in the old stable. Some even went so far as to say that he was dead at that time. Since the riot several have contended and circulated the report that one of the rioters had been shot, had died of his wounds, and had been buried. To the Courier reporter last evening one of the deputy sheriffs, remarked that Riley could only not be found, but no tidings could be heard of him. If he had left the city some one would probably have seen him. No one has been able to find anybody that saw Riley after the riot that night. Riley was about 50 years old and was a common laborer. It is understood that he had no relatives and was pretty much alone in the world. Some who have undertaken to reason out the matter, are of the opinion that Riley was given the most dangerous part in the conspiracy to take the life of Rudolph, and being fatally wounded he was kept secretly until he died, and was then buried at the dead hour of night, thus leaving no clue to his fate. It would be next to an impossibility to determine who shot him. Some of the witnesses for the State have sworn that Rudolph fired at the man with the pole. The ex-priest's bullet might have found lodgment in his body. Then again, Riley may be alive and well, a fugitive from justice, making good his escape. However, the rumors are that his ears are forever dumb, and that his body lies moulder in the grave. Only Time, the great revealer, will disclose the fate of John Riley.

SOUTH COAL CREEK.

Frank Allen has returned home on legal business.

Mrs. Belle Simms, of Sullivan, visited Coal Creek last Saturday.

Mrs. Dave Hathamen, of Frankfort, returned home last Monday.

Albert Vail has purchased the entire homestead. He says all he needs now is a better half.

After the neighbors donated a supply of provisions to the deserted family of John Bell the wanderer returned.

Lillie Evans has returned from an extended visit in Lafayette, bringing with her a beautiful pair of white doves.

Last Friday Mike Foley, the boy orator, closed his school with a big dinner and refreshments. High carnival held the sway.

Will the pencil pusher of Linden please tell the many readers what kind of birds are the most frequent visitors to his little village.

Those wishing the services of an auctioneer will do well to see John Hathaman. Leave orders at The Journal office. Satisfaction guaranteed.

There was a crank medicine peddler passed through here enroute to Lafayette claiming to have in his possession a cholera cure and looking for a location for a hospital.

Frank Taylor and Alex Johnson spent last Saturday night on Lye Creek swamps looking for ducks. Frank is one of our best marksmen. They both returned without bagging a single duck or snipe.

There are numerous hedge fences in south Coal Creek along the highways that have not been trimmed for years. Others were cut and the brush still remains in the highways. This should be looked after.

Word has been received here that Catharine Simms, wife of Lang Simms, one of the first settlers in this county, died at her home in Clark county, Ills., where she has resided for the past 30 years. She had attained the remarkable age of 111 years.

On last Sunday there were four well known young men of Crawfordsville, after going to New Richmond and filling up on bad whisky, passed through here yelling and cursing everyone in sight and shooting their revolvers. They will be looked after by the grand jury.

Marcus Guley tells us of the success of his son-in-law, Mack Gallagher, who is still well known here. He of late has been connected with the electric light plant of Lincoln, Ills., but at present is receiving one thousand dollars per year as engineer at the feeble minded institute of that city.
