FRIDAY, AUGUST 4, 1893.

The "Immortal J. N." has written over his own signature a denial of his recent alleged death at Columbus, Ohio, and says the reporter who wrote his obituary is entitled to an increase of salary.

Last fall many a farmer voted for Cleveland in order that he might, according to promise, get $1.25 a bushel for his wheat. Democratic demagogues may fool the farmers a part of the time, but they can't fool them all the time.

The Charleston News and Courier is a Democratic paper and yet it advocates good Republican doctrine. McKinley himself could not do better than this:

"Every mill and factory that we build and operate successfully is a big helper in the cause of our independence. Every shop that gives employment to one or more efficient workmen is a smaller but important help. Every wheel that turns. In town or country, does its part of the great work. What we need more than all else, as a people, is to make what we need, instead of depending on the other people to make it for us."

Part Republican.—Mary H. Kroul, of the Chicago Inter Ocean, is one of the former Indianians who does not go back on her native State. Most of the Chicago ridicule of the Hoosier State comes from youths from Tail Holt and Weed Patch Hill who have taken service on Chicago journals and are fond of perpetrating their circumscribed view of Indiana from a wayback standpoint in order to demonstrate their own metropolitan contempt of things rural.

The Congress which is about to assemble will be larger in point of numbers than any of its predecessors. The Fifty-second Congress had 420 members, while the Fifty-third will have 444. This increase of twenty-four members is made altogether in the House. In the Senate the members will number eighty-eight, as in the last Congress, but the House, which had 332 members in the Congress which expired last March, will have 356 in the one which meets next week.

With wheat protected 20 cents a bushel by the McKinley bill, and selling at 50 cents, the most obtuse Republican farmer can't see any beauties in protection.—Frankfort Crescent.

But hold. Did not the Chicago plat form denounce the tariff as "a robbery of the great majority of the American people for the benefit of the few?" And did not President Cleveland say in his famous free trade message that "the price of an article is increased by precisely the amount of the tariff?" According to Democratic logic had not wheat been protected by a 20 cent tariff the price now instead of being 50 cents a bushel would have been 30 cents.

The Republican position on tariff questions is concisely and clearly set forth by the New York Sun, a staunch Administration organ, as follows:

Tariff duties, say the Republicans, should not be levied for the mere purpose of revenue, but largely with a view of promoting and protecting American manufactures and labor, and relieving farmers and mechanics from unfavorable foreign competition. The Republicans say that it is one of the powers and duties of a Government to protect the people who maintain it from unfair foreign competition as well as from hostile foreign invasion. The people, through their representatives, impose the taxes on goods entering into American ports from other countries, and they have the right (and it is natural that they should exercise it) so to impose those duties that the interests of Americans will be favored and the interests of foreign rivals in the same industries or pursuits discriminated against. That is the Republican doctrine.

The threat made in the Chicago platform to smash and rip up the Republican tariff policy is what is playing havoc with the banks, factories and commercial houses. If the mere threat will cause such a panic as we are now passing through, what will the reality be?

To the Editor Journal:
What is a "bull," and a "bear," a "corner," a "put and call," a "short" and "long"? What does all this lingo mean as we see in connection with the Chicago Board of Trade reports? Inquirer.

A "bull" is one who operates to raise the value of stock, that he may buy for a rise. A "bear" is one who sells stocks for future delivery, which he does not own at time of sale. A "corner" is when the bears cannot buy or borrow the stock to deliver in fulfillment of their contracts. A "put and call" is when a person gives so much per cent. for the option of buying or selling so much stock on a certain fixed day, at a price fixed the day the option is given. "Short" is when a person sells stocks when they have none and expect to buy or borrow in time to deliver. "Long" is when a person has a plentiful supply of stocks. A "pool" is a combination formed to control the price of stocks. A "broker" is said to carry stocks for his customer when he has bought and is holding it for his account. A "wash" is a pretended sale by special agreement between buyer and seller for the purpose of getting a quotation reported.

Morning.

In this new day is found the last night's sun That told of starry glory just begun; Not lost, but hidden in God's mighty hand, As hides some thought we cannot understand, As hides some joy in sorrow's deepest stress To blossom as the rose in wilderness! The day's heart of gold, its perfume shed, Lies brown and sore, and yet it is not dead; Its life is set in roots as firm and fine As faith o'er death blooms with a bloom divine! Last night its hidden eye was dark and dim; This morn the radiance of the sun shines in! —S. L. Thompson.

Sometimes.

Sometimes we feel that thoughts are not worth thinking;
Sometimes that laurels are not worth the wreathing;
Sometimes it seems that wine is not worth drinking;
Sometimes that air is scarcely worth the breathing;
Sometimes no friend seems worthy to be trusted;
Sometimes no pessimism deepens our borders;
Sometimes with life we're very much disgusted;
Sometimes our liver's badly out of order.
—Kansas City Journal.

Good Night.

"Good night!"—the little lips touch oars,
The little arms unfold us,
And, oh, that thus through coming years
They might forever hold us.
"Good night!" we answer back and smile
And kiss the drooping eyes,
But in our trembling hearts the while
The wistful queries rise.

Who, in the weary years to come,
When we are hid from sight,
Will clasp these little hands and kiss
These little lips "Good night?"

TO MAKE HENS LAY.

A Few Simple Rules for Getting and Keeping Eggs.

It is one thing to keep eggs, but it is much harder to get them.
At least so it used to seem to me till I learned the secret. It is easy enough to make hens lay, once you know how. Here is the rule. A little soft food, hot for breakfast, as early as you can get about it, for hens are early risers and want their breakfast the first thing.

For dinner, wheat, barley, oats or buckwheat. Scatter where they may scramble for it, and if they have to scratch half the afternoon to make sure that they have not overlooked a single kernel, so much the better. And a dash of corn, hot in cold weather, to go to roost on. They should not be overfed and must have clean water always.

If they can run at large in the summer, they will eat grass and get exercise while scratching for worms.
In winter, chop them all the cabbage and onion refuse, apple cores and even bits of potatoes. In fact, any green thing and a dash of cayenne pepper in the morning feed will stimulate laying. Plenty of dust for bathing, pounded bones for shell making and a dust of sulphur in the nests will make the hens comfortable and insure eggs.

Now, having them, they are not hard to preserve. Bring them in fresh, set in salt, small end down, fill the box, fasten the cover tight and turn the box over, once in a week or so.

Keep the boxes in a cool dry place.
The secret of this is, that an egg will keep if the temperature is cool, and the continual turning keeps the yolk where it ought to be.—Home.

As a miser counts his gold, night and day,
So I count the minutes told in the glass;
My eye is dim, my hair is thin and gray,
And I know I am growing old as they pass.
When we approach "the acre and yellow leaf" of our days, we are prone to look back regretfully. A clear conscience and sound health will lighten our gloomy reflections. It has again become our sad duty to chronicle another sad event. The participants of the two fights which recently took place now prowl for gore and the lingering rays of the setting sun lights up the blood specked horizon and tells us that consternation and pandemonium reigned in the camp of the combatants. As a result one has taken to drink and the other has been living on grass hoppers and wild oats. It is too bad to have such events to happen in our quiet town and we hope we will never have to call the public to grieve over such a thing again.
