

March 19, 1894.
Art Portfolio Coupon.
6 Coupons of different dates and 10 cents secures a free number of Art Portfolios. See Advertisement.

THE DAILY JOURNAL.

Printed Every Afternoon Except Sunday.

THE JOURNAL COMPANY.
T. H. B. McCAIN, President.
J. A. GREENE, Secretary.
A. A. McCAIN, Treasurer.

DAILY
One year	$5.00
Six months	3.50
Three months	1.25
Per week by carrier or mail	10
WEEKLY	1.00
One year	50
Six months	25
Three months	10
Payable in advance.
Sample copies free.

Entered at the Postoffice at Crawfordsville Indiana, as second-class matter.

TUESDAY, MARCH 20, 1894.

REPUBLICAN CITY TICKET.

FOR MAYOR,
FRED C. BANDEL.
FOR TREASURER,
WILLIAM E. NICHOLSON.
FOR CLERK,
JOSEPH D. TRACY.
FOR MARSHAL,
JAMES P. GRIMES.
FOR COUNCILMAN.

First Ward—JOHN F. WILHITE.
Second Ward—GEORGE E. ROBINSON.
Third Ward—W.M. N. McCAMPBELL.

SENATOR VOORHEES AND TRUSTS.
The Indianapolis Sentinel is not happy over the situation in the Senate. The roasting that it gives Senator Voorhees would do credit that gentleman's most implacable political enemies. In fact anything that a Republican could say of him would pale into insignificance as compared with what the Sentinel says. In the course of a most bitter attack on the senior Senator yesterday, it says:

There is a widespread belief among Democrats that Mr. Crawford Fairbanks and his associates have had more influence with Mr. Voorhees than the masses of the Democratic party have had. There is a deep-rooted suspicion that the extension of time for paying taxes granted to the whisky trust by the Senate sub-committee's report was due to Mr. Voorhees, and that this concession to the whisky trust was secured by concessions to other trusts. It may not be true but the charge has been openly made by Republican papers. It can not be answered by denial. Nothing but proof positive will suffice to meet it, and Mr. Voorhees is the only person who can furnish that proof. If that concession to the whisky trust and the concessions to other trusts go out of the bill, or if Mr. Voorhees makes an earnest, open fight to put them out, and failing to do so fixes the responsibility for them on others, the proof will be made. It is plain to certainty that nothing less than that will suffice. The whole matter is in the hands of Mr. Voorhees. He may do as he sees fit, but we assure him that the people of Indiana have been brought to a state of exasperation by the action of the senate committee on the tariff question, that the very suspicion of disloyalty will be enough to defeat any man. The feeling is intensely bitter.

The Democratic members of the Senate Finance Committee will present to the Senate to-day their completed work on the tariff bill. It is understood that the bill is so amended as to make positive declaration for the abrogation of the reciprocity treaties under the McKinley law. Under these reciprocity treaties new markets of great importance were opened for our agricultural products. The most accurate statistical reports as to the value of this new market covers the period ending September 30, 1892. This shows an increase of $20,772,621 in the total value of our domestic exports to all the countries with which reciprocity treaties have been made as compared with the corresponding prior period. This increase of exports consisted mainly of wheat flour, meat, dairy products, bacon, hams, lard, iron and steel and lumber. The increase in value of our domestic exports to Germany and Austria-Hungary, amounting to $10,319,000, was accompanied by a decrease in the value of our imports from those countries of nearly $9,000,000. This increase in the balance of trade in our favor is an eloquent fact.

Despite the assertion of the Chicago platform there is no class legislation in the McKinley tariff. In that measure all wealth producers and all parts of the country have the benefits of a just application of the protective principle. This has always been the policy of the Republican party. It has perceived and acknowledged the equal rights of the wool grower and of other producers of raw materials with those of the manufacturers. It has protected and encouraged Southern industries while the whole force of Southern influence has been exerted for their destruction. It stood by the Louisiana sugar planters while the planters made war upon their own business and the general business of the country; and when the duties were removed from sugar, the Republican party actually gave to these enemies of the protective system compensation in the shape of a bounty. The Republican party in this matter has sacrificed everything to its convictions with respect to the needs of American industry. The Democratic party has no principles and no convictions. It is governed by sectional feeling and an irresistible propensity to destruction.

One year ago hogs were worth $7.10, cattle $4.50, sheep 50¢ per cwt., wheat 65 cents per bushel, corn 35 cents.

The New York Sun calls the tariff bill proposed by the Democrats "a bill to make Republicans."

THE OLD MILL MYSTERY

By Arthur W. Marchmont, B. A.
Author of "Miser Hodder's Secret," "Madeline Power," "By Whose Hand," "Isa," &c., &c.

[Copyright, 1894, by the Author.]

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

PINKHAM'S Vegetable Compound

Is a positive cure for all those painful

Aliments of Women.

I will entirely cure the worst forms of

Tumors, Complaints of the Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulcer,

Falling and Displacements of the

Womb, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life. Every time it will cure

• Backache.

It has cured more cases of Leucorrhia than any remedy the world has ever known. It is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels

Tumors, Complaints of the early stage of development, and checks tendency to cancerous humors. That

Bearing-down Feeling causing pain, weight, and backache, is instantly relieved and permanently removed. Ulcers, Tumors, and stomach-irritants in harmony with the laws that govern the female system, and is as harmless as water. It removes

Irregularity, •

Suppressed or painful menstruations,

Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion,

Boating, Flooding, Nervous Frustration,

Headache, General Debility. Also

Dizziness, Faintness,

Extreme Lassitude, don't care, and languor, which every woman managed or single, should know about herself. Send 2 two-cent stamps for it.

Kidney Complaints

and Backache see the Vegetable Compound is unequalled.

Always keep a small quantity of the Vegetable Compound, or send by mail in form of Lozenge, one cent, $1.00,

Correspondence freely answered.

You can address in strictest confidence,

LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., Lynn, MASS.

had placed themselves in her power. She knew nothing of the criminal law, but she could not but be aware that what they had been plotting to do amounted to a terrible crime. Thus she felt that probably she held their liberty in her hands. At first she had thought of nothing except that she would be able possibly to prevent them carrying out their plan—and this she had determined to do at any risk to herself; but her chief pleasure had been that she would certainly be able to say Tom was the author of all the mischief he had any share in the work.

Now, however, the exceeding gravity and danger of her position flashed upon her. Her peril would be great indeed if these desperate men, who had put themselves in her power believed she had played the spy in order to betray them.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he began to move a little of the earth flooring of the shed, and some of it actually lay upon her dress.

He rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he began to move a little of the earth flooring of the shed, and some of it actually lay upon her dress.

He rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.

She held her breath, and her heart beat so loud and so fast that she was afraid it might betray her as it throbbed and thumped against her ribs. She kept as motionless as death, in the hope that the man might be able to get what he wanted without noticing her presence.

He groped along, muttering something about the darkness, and feeling his way by the side of the shed. When he was within a few inches of her he stopped, and she heard him, and almost felt him, stoop down and begin to clear away the hay from the ground, not a foot from where she crouched.

She could hear him breathe. Then he rose for a moment, and Mary felt him standing close to her. Then she was conscious that he was stooping over her with his hands stretched out and down, and the next instant she felt his fingers touch first her hair and then her shoulders.