Entered at the Postoffice at Crawfordsville, Indiana as second-class matter.
WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1894.

CRAWFORDSVILLE is out of money for the reason that during the last few months the City Council has paid $5,000 additional on the electric light plant. It also bought a lot for which it paid nearly $3,000. The ordinary expenses of the city are less than any city of its class in the State. Not a dollar has been squandered as the Appus News by innuendo alleges.

In his speech at Bangor, Maine, Governor McKinley remarked: "When President Harrison went out of power, while his administration had paid off more than $200,000,000 of the principal and interest of the national debt, without issuing a single bond for any purpose, he was able to turn over to the administration which succeeded him a surplus of $124,000,000, including the gold reserve."

In his camp fire speech at Pittsburg General Sikes said he was a Democrat, but he scored the Pension Bureau officials at Washington: "It takes them a year to find out whether you were in the war or not, another year to find out if you were wounded, another year to find out if the enemy shot you, another year to find out something else, and by the time a man's pension is due the applicant is dead." And the veterans shouted.

MISS MARY H. KROUT has contributed to the Chicago Inter-Ocean a most able and timely article on the free wool question. It will be remembered that last winter she visited Australia, New Zealand and other English colonial wool-growing countries. She shows by the most cogent reasoning and citation of facts which came under her observation, that it will be impossible for our farmers to compete with the wool growers of these countries, and that ere long Australia and other British colonies must have a monopoly of the wool growing business. The article is published in Monday's Inter-Ocean and we beg all to procure it, and give it a careful perusal. It presents many facts that are new to the people of this country.

THE Appus-News gives as a reason why rice should have a duty of $2.50 per cent, is because the McKinley law placed a duty on it of 11.55. By the same process of reasoning wool should have had a duty of 6 or 7 cents a pound. Why this discrimination in favor of the rice grower as against the wool grower? Why place a duty of 53 per cent on rice and put wool on the free list? Is not the wool industry just as important as the rice industry? While the McKinley law placed a duty of 1 1/2 and 2 cents a pound on rice at the same time placed a duty of 11 and 12 cents a pound on wool. It did not discriminate in favor of one industry to the detriment of another. And this is the reason given by Bourke Cochran in saying that "the Gorman bill is a more obnoxious measure than the McKinley act." He said it was a "protective measure in spots." It can be seen very readily why a protectionist favors a duty on both rice and wool, but why a free trader should favor a duty of 1 1/2 cents on rice and at the same time favor placing wool on the free list is not so easily explained. There is an inconsistency in the proposition that cannot be reconciled.

A GREAT FALSEHOOD.
One Adam Karmage has written a communistic pamphlet in which he says that all legislation is in favor of the rich and against the poor. There was never a great falsehood printed. For scores of years the great bulk of all our legislation has been in the interest of the poor. Not many years ago imprisonment for debt was common. The poor man was thrown into a dungeon and kept there till some of his friends paid him out. The cruel and inhuman laws under which this was done have all been repealed and not only this, but in nearly all the States of the Union large amounts of property are exempt from execution—in many States homesteads worth thousands of dollars. For more than thirty years there has been on our national statute books a law which gives to every one who will take it and live on it, one hundred and sixty acres of land, which industry, energy and economy may transform into a princely home. Our great free school system which prevails in almost, if not quite, every State in the Union, is a standing refutation of the stupid lie that all legislation is in the interest of the rich and against the poor. The rich, at their own instance and request, have been taxed to build roads, which the poor use as freely as they breathe the air. Under our benevolent laws more than ten thousand dollars are paid out of the public treasury every year, in the single county of Montgomery for the benefit of the poor. The truth is, that nine-tenths of the laws on our national and State statute books, have been enacted in the interest of the poor. It would puzzle the most ingenious to suggest something that could be done for the poor in the way of legislation, that has not already been done.

One at a Time.
One at a time the morning raindrops patter on drowsy pools with an incessant chime. Till, lo! an ocean, ere the clouds scatter.
One at a time the shimmering sunbeams wander. Adown to earth, from yonder cloudless clime. Till lowliest mountain tops are smit with splendor.
One at a time appears the master builder. Stone upon stone, with hasty hands agitating. Till shoot aloft the turrets that bewilder.
One at a time the shuttle swiftly flying. Flings thread on thread like threads of throbbing rhyme. Till glows the tapestry with hues undying.
One at a time each patient, mute endeavor. Is forging character, august, sublime. In souls whose influence shall be forever.
—W. C. Richardson.

Doesn't Look the Same.
If life were as I dreamed it was some twenty years ago. There'd be no need of paradise; we'd rather stay below. But youth in brilliant colors paints to watch the pictures fade. And life's as far from what I dreamed as it could well be made. Now sometimes when I study it by later lights in midlife hues, I'm half inclined to label it, "A Symphony in Blues."
—Detroit Tribune.

Decision.
Decide not rashly. The decision made Can never be recalled. The gods inspire not, Plead not, solicit not, which, once being passed, Return no more.

PROFIT IN GUINEA PIGS.
The Reward of Labor in Producing a Caudated Variety.

A Smart Aleck from Town Runs Up Against a Reuben at a Country Fair Who Relieves Him of His Wad and His Content.

"I have just come in from the country," said the young man with the winter's riding, according to the Chicago Times, "and I succeeded in making a large and juicy fool of myself almost every day while I was there. I stayed with an uncle of mine who has a farm sixteen or seventeen miles from nowhere, and the Reubens got the laugh on me so many times that I can't remember the number."

"The queerest experience that I had, though, was at one of their country fairs. They held the fair early this year, for some reason or other, and I was on hand to take it in. I went out to the grounds with a party of young women who were visiting in the neighborhood, and, undismayed by the failure of my former attempts to string the Reubens, I started out to have fun with them as soon as we struck the ground. We walked around the grounds for a couple of hours, and I was poking all manner of fun at the people we met. Finally we came to the shed where the poultry was on exhibition, and, as we went along looking at the variously-breed chickens, I got particularly funny. At the end of one of the rows of coops was a box with five or six guinea pigs in it. There were quite a number of countrymen standing around looking at the queer little animals."

"We walked over and looked at the pigs. Then I said loudly: 'Do you know that if you pick up a guinea pig by the tail its eyes will drop out?' The countrymen stared. 'Fact!' I continued. 'Pick one of them up by the tail and its eyes will drop right out.' Most queerly constructed anatomically of any animal known to naturalists. If these pigs were mine I would soon show you."

"A big, strapping fellow who stood beside the box said: 'Stranger, I don't believe you.' I insisted that I was right, but he stood and doggedly shook his head, and the rest of the countrymen sided with him. Now, a guinea pig has no tail, and there is where the joke comes in. I argued for some little time and then made a grand bluff. I pulled out a little roll of bills and offered to bet the Reuben twenty-five dollars that just that thing would happen. Imagine my surprise when the Reuben hauled a greasy old pocket-book out of his jeans and covered the money. I was sure I had him, for the bet was a catch one anyhow, and as the young women who were with me were urging me on I couldn't think of flunking."

"Understand," I said, "I claim that if you pick up that guinea pig by its tail its eyes will drop out." "I understand," said the countryman, as he opened a little door in the side of the box and pulled out a guinea pig. Now, pick this one up and let's see its eyes drop out." "Then I began to laugh. 'Ha, my friends,' I said, 'I have played a little trick on you, that's all. As a guinea pig has no tail, you can't pick one up by it. If you could, I do not doubt that its eyes would drop out.'"

"I reached out for my half of the bet, when the big countryman said: 'Hold on, there, mister. You just look and see if this here guinea pig hasn't got a tail.' I examined it, and may I be switched if it didn't have a tail an inch long. The countryman picked it up by the little caudal appendage, and, of course, its eyes didn't drop out. Then he reached over and grabbed the wad of money and put it in his pocket, remarking, the while: 'I didn't think when I developed that breed of guinea pigs that they would ever make that much for me.'"

POPE LEO'S SUCCESSOR.
Cardinal Rampolla the Coming Man in the Pontifical Succession.
Cardinal Rampolla is now looked upon as the almost certain successor of Leo XIII. He has not come to the front with a rush, as sometimes happens. He has grown slowly but steadily. Fortuitous circumstances have aided him, too, by removing from his path powerful rivals.
Three years ago, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, Cardinal Parocchi was looked upon as the coming man. The trend of events has put him in a sense out of the question. Then Cardinal La Salletta was mentioned and then Cardinals Simeoni and San Felice, and then the name of Cardinal Lavigerie, the apostle of Rome against the African slave trade and Tippecanoe, pushed all the others to the rear. But Lavigerie is dead, and Rampolla is the man of the hour. Everything is in his favor. He is young, he is able, he is available, and availability here as in American politics is a strong point. Then Rampolla is an Italian, born in Sicily, and none but an Italian can now become pope.

without stirring up trouble in Europe. The pope who may be is a man who is splendidly equipped mentally as well as physically. Born in Sicily, he is still in the fifties, as to age, and his training has been at once severe and thorough, for he was educated by the Jesuits. From the very earliest time of his service in the church he has filled high and responsible places, and in his dealings with rulers and governments he is implicitly trusted by Leo XIII. Rampolla has the reputation of being cool under any emergency, a man of resources at all times, a worker of the Gladstone order, a man of the most temperate methods and the most even disposition, and at the same time capable of ruling with a firm hand; one fully confident in his own powers, fully self-reliant.

SHE WAS PENURIOUS.
The Pony's Shoes Were Just as Good as New so She Saved Them.

Lord Chancellor Eldon was energetically aided in his parsimonious habits by his wife, of whom it was said that she and her daughter had but one bonnet between them. Rev. R. H. Barham, author of "The Ingoldsby Legends," recorded in his diary an amusing story of Lady Eldon's penuriousness.

June 1, 1822. The chancellor is very fond of shooting. One morning last year his lordship, intending to enjoy a few hours' sport after a rainy night, ordered "Bob," the pony, to be saddled. Lady Eldon told him he could not have it, but company being in the room, gave no reason. In a few minutes, however, the servant opened the door and announced that "Bob" was ready.

"Why, bless me!" cried her ladyship, "you can't ride him. Lord Eldon, he has got no shoes on." "Oh, yes! my lady," said the servant, "he was shod last week." "Shameful!" exclaimed her ladyship. "How dared you, sir, or anybody have that pony shod without orders?" John," continued she, addressing her husband, "you know you only rode him out shooting four times last year, so I had his shoes taken off, and have kept them in my bureau ever since. They are as good as new, and these people have shod him again; we shall be ruined at this rate!"

HE WANTED WORK.
And He Climbed to the Summit of Ben Nevis to Find It.

An early tourist has brought down a curious story from the top of Ben Nevis. It is thus told in a Scotch paper: One afternoon last winter the assistants in the observatory were somewhat startled by a knock at the door—a most unusual occurrence at that season of the year. The visitor turned out to be a tramp from London. His clothes were frozen stiff and his beard was a mass of ice. After having been warmed and fed he astonished the hospitable winterers on the Ben by informing them that he had come up in search of work. When at the foot of the mountain some one had advised him—with rather grim humor—to try Ben Nevis observatory. This it was that he came to climb the four thousand and some hundred odd feet. The assistants, after replenishing his wardrobe and supplying him with a good store of food, sent him off on his downward way, so that he had no cause to grumble at being the victim of a practical joke.

A YOUNG GIRL'S LIFE.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS.
The Story is the Same, No Matter What Her Station in Life May Be.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]
No matter whether she walks to her daily toil or rides in her carriage in the park. No matter whether she is one of the millions or one of the few thousands.

Whatever her station in life may be, she is subject to the same physical laws, and suffers in proportion to their violation. Girls' oversensitiveness and modesty often puzzle their mothers and baffle the physician. They withhold what ought to be told. Thousands have found health and comfort through the counsel of Mrs. Pinkham. If you are sick, write her at Lynn, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saves the young girl from the danger resulting from organic disturbance, such as suppression or retention of menses or irregularity. It cures displacement of the womb and all forms of disease arising from derangement of the organ. It is a remedy for woman, given by a woman.

What will cure the mother will cure the daughter, as their organism is the same, and governed by the same laws. Get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound today from your druggist, and begin a new life.

A YOUNG GIRL'S FORTUNE.

AN INTERESTING SKETCH.
Nothing appeals so strongly to a mother's affection as her daughter just budding into womanhood. Following is an instance: "Our daughter, Blanche, was 15 years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. She was in such a condition that we had to keep her from school and abandon her music lessons. In fact, we feared St. Vitus dance, and any positive but for an available remedy she would have had that terrible affliction. We had employed physicians, but she received no benefit from them. The first of last August she weighed but 75 pounds, and although she has taken only three bottles of Nerville she now weighs 106 pounds; her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone. She attends school regularly, and studies with comfort and ease. She has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid, and she money could procure for our daughter the health Dr. Miles Nerville has brought her back to. When my brother recommended the remedy I had no faith in patent medicines and would not listen to him, but he sent us a bottle, we began giving it to Blanche, and the effect was almost immediate."—Mrs. R. R. Bullock, Brighton, N. Y.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerville is sold by all druggists, a price guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from opiates or dangerous drugs. Sold by all druggists.

N. B.—The great St. Louis fair and famous Midway Plaisance, Oct. 1-6.
In Childhood's Happy Days.
Among the incidents of childhood that stand out in bold relief, and that memory reverts to the days when we were young, none are more prominent than severe sickness. The young mother vividly remembers that it was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured her of croup, and in turn administered it to her own offspring and always with the best results. For sale by Nye & Boone, 111 North Washington street, opposite court house.

Home and Abroad.
It is the duty of everyone, whether at home or traveling for pleasure or business, to equip himself with the remedy which will keep up strength and prevent illness, and cure such ills as are liable to come upon all in every day life. Hood's Sarsaparilla keeps the blood pure and less liable to absorb the germs of disease.

Hood's PILLS are hand made, and perfect in proportion and appearance. 25c. per box.

"Pills, Pills, Pills!"
The doctor says, "Take like pills When you are bilious To cure your ills."

The poet is right, and he might have truthfully added, that of all pills Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the safest and best. They are sugar-coated, small and easy to take, and produce no griping or nausea, but do their appointed work quietly, pleasantly and thoroughly. The only sure cure for habitual constipation.
