

THE PALACE OF SUNSET.

When the sun in his Tyrian drapery drest,
Like a shadow of God, floated down to the West, I saw a strange, beautiful palace arise, On an island of light, in the sapphire skies;
A palace of clouds! in a moment it grew On an island of pearl, in an ocean of blue, And spirits of twilight enticed me to stray Through these cloud realms reared from the ruins of day.

In musical murmurs, the soft sunset air, Like a golden-winged angel, seemed calling me there!
And my fancy sped on, till I found I rare home—
A palace of jasper, with an emerald dome, On a violet strand, by a wide and pure stream,
And where this bright castle of sunset now stood, Methought some stray seraph had broken a bar From the gates of Eden, and left them ajar.

There were amethyst windows whose framework seemed spun
Of fire drawn out from the heart of the sun; Columns of amber, and fountains of light Which threw up vast showers, so changingly bright,
That hope might have stolen their exquisite sheen,
To weave in her girdle of rainbows, I ween, And arches of glory grew over me there—As these fountains of sunset shot up through the air.

While I looked from my cloud-pillowed palace after,
I saw might let fall one vast, tremulous star On the calm brow of even, who then in return From the gem on her brow and the dew in her urn Seemed draping the darkness and hiding its gloom,
With the rose-colored curtains which fell from her loom,
All bordered with purple and violet dyes, Floating out like a fringe from the veil of the skies.

And lo! far away, on the borders of night, Rose a chain of cloud-mountains so wondrously bright,
They seemed built from those atoms of splendor that start, Through the depth of the diamond's crystalline heart,
When light, with magical heart, has revealed The treasure of beams in its bosom concealed;
And torrents of azure, all graceful and proud Swept noiselessly down from its mountains of cloud.

But the tide of its darkness came on with its flood,
And broke o'er the stand where my frail palace stood, While far in the distance the moon seemed to lave, Like a silver winged swan, in night's eldest wave,
And then like Atlantis, that isles of the blown, Which in olden time sank beneath the ocean to rest,
Which now the blue water in mystery shrouds Dropped down in the darkness this Palace of Clouds.

Result of Radical Policies

The Chicago Times thus portrays the effects of radical policies upon the industrial classes: "In 1861 the Federal Government was free from debt. The financial condition of the State governments was generally prosperous, and the taxes in comparison with what they now are were as a mole hill to a mountain. This huge indebtedness has grown since that time. It must remain a heavy burden on the shoulders of laboring men for centuries to come. It is crushing their interests, and the prospect is that they will be compelled to add to, rather than be permitted to subtract from, the number of hours of labor. The cost of all materials is enhanced by taxation, and those destitute of capital have nothing but their labor whereby to purchase. It begins to look very much as if the result of radical policies will be the enticement of slavery on white laboring men.

Another Indian Atrocity.

Our dispatches yesterday communicated the painful intelligence that the steamboat Miner, with a full complement of passengers and freight, from St. Louis to Montana, on the Missouri River, was seized by some two hundred Indians, while the crew of the boat was engaged in cutting wood, and that all the passengers, men, women and children, were massacred, the boat plundered and then burnt. There must be some cause for these repeated atrocities, and that must be that there are not enough troops in the Territories to intimidate the Indians.
And that is not because there are not troops enough under the control of General Grant, but because they are in places where there is no use for them. There are thousands of soldiers, we are informed, idling in the fortifications about New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other Northern cities; and we know the South is full of them—not to put down a rebellion, or to prevent a new one—but simply to enforce military despotism upon the people of the South, and compel the white people thereof to put the negroes upon the same social, civil and political plane with themselves. In the mean time the scalps of men, women and children are taken by brutal savages, to adorn their wigwags and record the valor of their braves. At this late day, it is hard to be made to believe that such atrocities are perpetrated within the limits of the Republic, where, with proper energy, every hostile Indian tribe could be swept out of existence. It is found to be easier to hold in subjection a conquered people, and impose humiliating terms on them, than it is to conquer a savage foe, especially when there is no hope of plunder to stimulate energy. The pioneers of civilization among the wilds are left to the barbarities of savages, while military satraps revel in luxury and ease in Southern cities, and lord it over defenseless and peaceful citizens.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WHEN Garrison the wretch who called the Federal Constitution "a league with death and a covenant with hell," was leaving Boston harbor he was honored with a salute from a revenue cutter!
This, coming from a vessel belonging to the Government whose constitution he denounced, is an insult to the nation which calls for the immediate dismissal of the officer by whose orders the salute was fired. He should not be allowed to remain a day longer than is necessary to cashier him.

THE BOYS IN BLUE AND POLICEMEN.

—The New York Post of the 15th says:
A terrible fight occurred near Hamilton avenue ferry last evening, between a number of soldiers and two policemen belonging to the First Precinct. The soldiers, who belonged to Governor's Island, had just been paid off, and were much intoxicated. They had insulted a number of ladies, when the police attempted to arrest them. The soldiers carried bayonets in their belts, which they used with desperation. Officer Powers was severely cut, and would probably have been killed but for the opportune arrival of Captain Warlow with a reserve of police. Five of the soldiers were arrested.

Lightening and Death.
A special dispatch to the Chicago Journal, dated Henry, Marshall County Indiana, May 13, says:
A shower of rain, with heavy thunder and sharp lightning, passed over that place last evening. The telegraph office, situated in the city drug store of W.
Everett, was struck, the wires melted off, and the combustibles set on fire. Being discovered immediately, it was extinguished with but slight damage. The dwelling of John Hindmarsh was also struck, and Mr. Hindmarsh, a highly esteemed citizen, was instantly killed. Several others felt slight shocks.

A mad dog was killed in Terre Haute on Monday, while eating a worm fence.
