MR. EDITOR:—As this is the first communication I ever wrote for a newspaper, I trust you will not refuse me the use of your columns, when there is a matter of sufficient importance to induce me to request the extension of such a favor at your hands. I am a Republican now and always have been one, and for that reason, propose to talk plainly and pointedly concerning a couple of talented young men calling themselves Republicans, who because they had money, credit, and self-conceit enough to obtain control of the Republican organ of the county, take advantage of their public position to slander and villify a number of persons so unfortunate as to owe them a trifle. Of course, I refer to what they facetiously termed their "Christmas Presents" to a number of their delinquent subscribers. The manner of conferring which was a villianous attempt to disgrace many, who, long before, now in their graves, and whose relations survive to be wounded by this outrage, as well as a number, who for many years have been removed from the county, and whose names appear in this list, merely because the proprietors of the Journal failed, maliciously, I believe, to credit them on their books with the money they had paid.

Why they have thus so publicly outraged all sense of decency and propriety, I cannot imagine, unless they either desire to drive as good men as ever lived in the county from the support of the Republican party, or else, by their early education and instruction, and by their associations in later life, their minds and instincts have become of so besotten and beastly a character, that nothing but scum and filth from the promptings of an up start's mind, could be expected to issue from their pen.

It may be that some of those "fifty" are too poor to pay their debts promptly. Some may even have neglected to settle up after being requested so to do, others may conscientiously believe that they were swindled by being coaxed to subscribe for and read so weak and worthless a sheet as the Journal, but I am confident that none of those fifty persons were ever captured by the rebels, crawling on their bellies from a widow's hen roost they had just robbed; nor did they ever start a paper in Tennessee, and after winning the confidence of the Union people of that State and inducing them to donate money and material to start them in business, leave between two days with their pockets lined with this money which was as good as stolen; nor were they ever publicly horse whipped in the streets of an adjoining county, on account of the filth and slanders they publicly disseminated.

The Torpedo Problem—A Wonderful Solution—A Torpedo Fleet

For some time past the naval department has been engaged in solving the problem of a torpedo boat, capable of firing rapidly and with certainty, under water, a torpedo of 100 pounds or more. This problem has reached a satisfactory solution, and a boat has been completed which is proved by experiment to be faultless in machinery and arrangement. On the 21 inst. Secretary Robeson, Vice Admiral Porter, and Commodore Chase, chief of the bureau of ordnance, went to the navy yard at Washington to witness the experiment with this new engine of destruction. After examining the workings of the machinery, and the manner of firing, one of the destructives was put in the frame, and the party proceeded to the shore to witness the result. A torpedo of only 36 pounds was first run out with rapidity and fired; but the result showed that this small amount of powder, even, would have been sufficient to destroy any ship, by lifting her out of the water and breaking her back, even if her bottom was not knocked out altogether. Mud and water were thrown up together, and the concussion was felt far up in the navy yard, the ground being shaken by the shock of the powder against the bed of the river. The concussion felt on board the torpedo boat was not more than that caused by a wave striking a vessel at sea.

Several torpedoes were fired from the vessel, the explosion of which the party witnessed on board, as they desired to ascertain for themselves the effect of the shock. The result seemed satisfactory, as no change whatever is contemplated in the machinery, which is very simple, and "works to a charm." The torpedo vessel is the Nina, a very strong iron boat of three hundred and fifty tons burthen, capable of crossing the ocean, and having a speed of 17 knots an hour. She is not impervious to heavy shot, but can be made so, and is capable of resisting any ordinary projectile that could be brought to bear upon her from the deck of a ship of war. Her decks will be made torpedo and shot proof, and several arrangements will be applied, now that it is known that the torpedo system is a success. Such a vessel as the Nina, attacking an enemy's squadron on our coast some dark night, or entering an enemy's port, could destroy half the vessels in the harbor, and easily escape, as few vessels could overtake her. Such a vessel could, for instance, enter the harbor of Havana and destroy every vessel of war in the port, under cover of darkness. A squadron supplied with such boats to be used to attack, after the fight began, and the ships were enveloped in smoke, could have a most decided advantage of an enemy not thus armed, for torpedo warfare. It is reported that our torpedo navy will consist of 20 vessels, none of which will have a less speed than 12 knots, and the fastest of them will go 17 knots.

ONE of the admirers of Mr Stanton says of him.

"It is the first principle of law that in war there are no laws. Inter arma leges silent. The war secretary rendered implicit obedience to this paramount enactment, and let small men worry about parchments which had no more to do with the case in hand than last year's moonshine with next year's wheat crop."

There was no war in that section of the country in which Stanton's authority as secretary was recognized. The parchments which are so contemptuously spoken of in the extract were every safeguard which civil government throws around men for the protection of their rights. They were laid low by Stanton in the very wantonness of despotism.

It was said that remorse for the lynching and killing of Mrs. Surratt preyed upon his health and spirits for months before his death. If this be not true, its falsity is strangely discreditable to him. Had he respected the "parchments" which "small men 'worry about," an aged and virtuous woman would not have been pursued to death under circumstances of cruelty, and in contempt of law and evidence, which make the transaction the blackest one, of an official character, in the whole history of our civil war.

Wilkes Booth was one of those great men who did not "worry about parchments." Assassins of just laws and assassins of just men are alike contemptuous of "parchments."

General Wool's Estate—How he made his Large Fortune.

The evening before the veteran General was stricken down with the illness that closed his eventful career, he made a most interesting statement to the editor of the Troy Whig, which conveys a practical lesson, and shows how easy it is to become rich after obtaining the first dollar, if one is prudent and economical. "I never made but $20,000 in my life!" said the general emphatically, "but I always kept that at good interest!" On our expressing, surprise, he went on explain. It seems that at the close of the war of 1812, the General found himself terribly wounded, but about even with the world in a pecuniary point of view. Shortly after the government sent him to the far South and West on a special mission connected with military affairs, and for five years he traveled over mountains and through the almost trackless wilderness, and accomplished his difficult mission, as he always did, to the entire satisfaction of the government. He had not drawn a dollar from the Treasury, except for actual expences, and at the end of five years the government owed him $20,000, which was then paid. Here was the nucleus of his large fortune. General Wool was then about thirty five years of age. He died at about the age of eighty eight. Now let the reader take this $20,000, which at compound interest, will nearly double every ten years, and in the fifty years intervening between the time of its receipts and the General's death, he will find that it will amount to just about the General's estate, to wit: $640,000.

A Cool Operator in New Hampshire.

Last Saturday evening, after the physicians in attendance on a Mr. A. S. Brown, who was severely hurt on the railroad, had left for the night, a man of respectable appearance appeared at the door of the house and inquired for Mr. Brown, introducing himself as Dr. Hadley, of Boston. He told Mrs. Brown that he had come from Ogdensburgh, New York, that day, and that Dr. Moore had requested him to call at the house and stop during the night, and be ready to assist in the amputation in the morning. The story was plausible, and he stopped. Late in the evening he requested a cup of tea, which was made for him, but he declined lunch, until Mrs. Brown, happening to step into the dining room found him on a voyage of discovery about the room, when he excused himself by saying he was looking for pie. Soon after he went to bed, but so great was his fatigue that he forgot to take his boots off—and slept till morning, when he arose and took breakfast without invitation, politely complimenting the cookery.

The doctors came in the forenoon, but, nothing abashed, the great unknown stayed in the room, making suggestions and proffering advice with the utmost freedom. He played his part so well that the M. D.'s thought him a friend of the family, and tolerated his company, although much annoyed by his impertinence. He was a trifle too voluble, however, and Mrs. Brown asked one of them if it was necessary that he should stay in the room all the time, and then his character came out. In the evening he came back again, laid aside his over coat, and prepared for the nights' campaign, but Mrs. Brown quietly showed him the door, and he left, and has not come back yet to look after the case, which he had previously demanded of Mrs. Brown should be given up to him before he would deliver an opinion.—Nashua (N. H) Telegraph, Dec. 21.

A Big Hunt.

A party of Englishmen returned to Grahamstown, Cape of Good Hope, last August after a hunting expedition of eighteen months in the Lake Ngami region. They succeeded in bagging eighty two elephants, eleven white rhinoceros, thirty seven black rhinoceros, six giraffes, twenty eight buffaloes, four koodos; nine oryx, seventeen elands, twenty-one sea-cows, two leopards, ten lions and a host of smaller game. Their wagons were heavily loaded with the tusks, horns, skins, &c, of these animals. One of the party had a narrow escape from a lioness. He had shot an eland and some other game, and while dressing it to take it back to camp his horse ran away. After a long chase the animal was recaptured and mounted. The rider's subsequent adventure is thus described: "I reached the drift and caught a glimpse of my game, with a lioness and two cubs in possession, growling fearfully. My horse had been drinking in the drift as I walked quietly through, but no sooner did we reach the side, than, catching the scent, off he started with a mad bound. I managed to head him in the right direction, and turning round, I saw, to my horror, the old lady close at my heels, and tearing along like mad. With my knife I cut the throngs that held my kadoo relics, and thus lightened, my horse bounded along more freely. Her majesty stopped for a second to smell the skin, but evidently wanting something more in the French taste (hippology), she again gave chase. I held my nag in as well as I was able, letting him come tolerably close and then giving him his head, gained on her a little. My rifle was unloaded, but even if it had been loaded, I should not have dreamt of firing, as I should have only enraged her with a wound that was not fatal, and what chance could I have of that when fleeing at a breakneck pace over ground that was rough, stony, and in many places concealing holes of ant-eaters or wild dogs? I had still four miles to run at least, and you may be sure my eyes were strained to catch a glimmer of a fire in the rapidly declining twilight. At last I saw the wagon tops over the short bush, and the fire blazing, and didn't I shout, and no mistake and just as I felt myself secure, my horse ell with a quivering motion, and I over his head. I gained my legs unhurt, but my poor horse was dead. His over exertion to save his life or mine had cost me dear."

Reduce Taxation.

The New York Times favors an essential reduction in taxation. It quotes expressions from a large number of Republican journals in favor of a large and immediate reduction, and in the connection remarks: "All the journals from which we quote are influential in their respective neighborhoods, and are entitled to consideration. With the best possible feeling toward the administration, they are obliged to dissent from the views expressed by the President and Mr. Boutwell in relation to the continuance, even for another year, of the present burdens. The interests and convictions of a great majority of the people point to reduced taxation as the great want of the time; and Congress will blunder egregiously if it fail to respond to the demand for relief."

THE BABY.

"What are you good for, my brave little man?
Answer that question for me if you can,—
You with your fingers as white as a nun,
You with your ringlets as bright as the sun.
All the day long, with your busy contriving,
Into all mischief and fun you are driving.
See if your wise little noddle can tell
What you are good for; now ponder it well."

Over the carpet the dear little feet
Came with a patter to climb on my seat;
Two merry eyes, full of frolic and glee,
Under their lashes looking up unto me;
Two little hands, pressing soft on my face,
Drew me down close in a loving embrace;
Two rosy lips gave the answer so true,—
"Good to love you mamma; good to love you."

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM.

As an Expectorant it has no Equal

FOR the benefit of those who are afflicted with consumptive tendencies, we make the following extract from a letter from Rev. Charles A. Rounly, the city Missionary, of Boston:

BOSTON, Massachusetts, February 18, 1869.

MESSRS. P. DAVIS & SON—GENTS: The package of "Allen Lung Balsam" you sent to me to use among the afflicted poor in my city missionary work, has proved very acceptable and useful. It has gone into several families, and with remarkable effect in every instance.

One woman has been restored from what her physician pronounced consumption, after several months' sickness with cough, great pain in the lungs and prostration, so that she is able now to do house work and assist in the support of her family, and with care continued use of the Balsam she expects entire restoration.

Another person a young woman to whom I gave one bottle, has received great benefit, so that her cough, which is of months standing; is getting better, and she has purchased a second bottle, and has every indication of a speedy cure.

A young man who was raising blood and quiet weak and sick, has by the use of two bottles been much improved, and is able to do little at his work.

A young man to whom I recommended a trial of it, who has had a bad cough and much pain in his lungs for months past and unable to get good rest and sleep, has commenced taking it, and now using the fourth bottle with great benefit. He said to me on a recent visit, he would no do without it. He is hoping, (and reasonably it seems to me,) to be able to resume his work again. Very respectfully, and gratefully yours,

CHAS. A. ROUDRY,
City Missionary.

THE

SIX GREAT REMEDIES

Hurley's Ague Tonic.

No Arsenic—No Mercury.

PERFECTLY RELIABLE.

The only remedy for Chills and Fever, or Ague and Fever, that is or can be depended upon is Hurley's Ague Tonic. There have been thousands cured by using it who have tried the usual remedies without benefit.

WORTHY OF ATTENTION.

To Dr. Thomas A. Harley:

I hereby certify that during last year I was attacked with the ague whilst in Vicksburg, Miss., and used several popular medicines with but temporary relief. On reaching home the diseased returned in a worse type, if possible, when my medical attendant ordered Quinine in large doses—frequently as high as 60 grains per day, and which must have cost me nearly $100. I consulted Dr. Smith, of Louisville, and found he prescribed quinine and arsenic combined, which I refused to take, preferring to let the disease take its course. I was almost bloodless, extremely exhausted, and pronounced with enlarged Liver and Soleen. About this time, the advertisement of Hurley's Ague Tonic appeared in a city paper, and I determined to give it a trial. I did so, and have no reason to regret it. One bottle restored me completely, and since that time seen nearly a hundred cases in which it acted with equally happy results, and would certainly recommend it as preferable to any other tonic before the public.

Affections of the Bones, Habitual Costiveness, Debility, Diseases of the Kidneys, Dispepsia, Erysipelas, Female Irregularities, Pustula, all Skin Diseases, Liver Complaint, Indigestion Piles, Pulmonary Diseases Scrofula, or King's Evil, Syphilis.

LOUISVILLE, April 4, 1866.

Hurley's Sarsaparilla is what it is represented, and I believe it the most wonderful medicine before the public. Nothing under the heavens could induce me to say so without proof of the strongest and surest kind; therefore, I speak willingly and positively on the subject.

My daughter has been afflicted with skin disease and stiffness of the joints for several years, I employed the principal physicians of the city and they could not cure her. I gave her your Sarsaparilla not expecting it would do her much good, but to my great astonishment she rapidly got well, and thank God continues so. Had she been taking any medicine I would not give this certificate; but your Sarsaparilla, the only remedy employed, leaves no doubt of its medical qualities, and that it alone cured her.

(Signed,) LUKE REYNOLDS.

Any person requiring the truth and honesty of the statement, will find me at my residence, corner Ninth and Walnut streets, Louisville, Ky.

HURLEY'S

POPULAR WORM CANDY

Messrs. James Ruddles & Co.—Gentlemen—It gives me great pleasure to say, after using all the other worm remedies known to me, with but partial success to my children, I was advised to try T. A. Hurley's, and since using it my children have become quite well and healthy. The children would eat it all the time. It is one of the best, safest remedies known, and as such, recommend it to one and all.

STOMACH BITTERS,

FOR

Debility, Loss of Appetite, Weakness Indigestion, or Dyspepsia, Want of action of the Liver or Disordered Stomach.

There are no bitters can compare with these in removing complaints. For sale or can be had at any drug store in the United States.

JAMES RUDDLE & CO.,
Proprietors, Louisville, Ky.

To Jas. Ruddle & Co., Louisville, Ky.: Gentlemen: This is to certify that I have been for years a sufferer and tried all the tonics I have heard or seen advertised, with little or no relief from any of them. I heard Hurley's Bitters highly spoken of, and tried a bottle, with little faith in it before I commenced, and to my surprise and joy, before I finished one bottle, I felt a great deal better and firmly believe that one or two recesions it was the means of saving and prolonging my life. I conscientiously recommended them to all sufferers as the best Bitters known, and advise them always to ask for Dr. T. A. Hurley's and have no other. You can use this as you think proper, if it will benefit others. Yours truly etc.

DR. SEABROOK'S

Infant Soothing Syrup.

Use in the future only SEABROOK'S, a combination quite up with the advancement of the age. Pleasant to take, harmless in its action, efficient and reliable in all cases. Invaluable in the following diseases:

Summer Complaint, Irregularities of the bowels, Restlessness, Teething, &c.

Gives health to the child and rest to the mother.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Feb. 12 1868.

Jas. Ruddle & Co., Louisville, Ky.—When living in your city I used several bottles of Dr Seabrook's Infant Soothing Syrup, and found it to do my child more good and it would rest better after using it than any other remedy I can say with confidence, it is the best medicine for children at present known. I wish you would get the druggist here to keep it. If any one does please let me know; if not send me one dozen by express, and I will pay for it at the office here. Write me when you send it, and oblige. MRS. SARAH L. RANDOLPH.

Elixir of Pyrophosphate of Iron and Calasaya.

The elegant combination possesses all the TONIC properties of Peruvian Bark and Iron, without the disagreeable taste and bad effects of either separately or in other preparations, of these valuable medicines. It should be taken in all cases when a gentle tonic impression is required after convalescence from FEVERS or debilitating diseases, or in those distressing irregularities peculiar to females. No female should be without it if liable to such diseases, for nothing can well take its place.
