THE NEW ELECTION LAW

Dr. Harrison, formerly of the Lebanon Pioneer, now of the Michigan City Dispatch, anticipates that the new election law of the last legislature will work to the disadvantage of the democracy.

Most thinking men of the party will consider him as unnecessarily alarmed in this matter, and that instead of a disadvantage to as it will be greatly to our benefit.

If there was anything worse for our success as a party than the old election laws we cannot divine what it could be.

The honest voters of all parties desired a change, and an important one, in our election laws. We have it now, if enforced.

By the old system the barter and sale of votes had become so frequent that decent people were thoroughly disgusted.

The corruption of election officials was a known and common occurrence.

Can it possibly be worse under the new system? We believe not, but on the contrary anticipate a much purer state of affairs in election management than heretofore.

What evils may result from the new law are as yet imaginary and we have no reason to anticipate them.

Our elections had become a State disgrace and the buying of votes and corruption of officials at elections in Indiana had become known far and wide.

In no other State of the Union did such a merchandise of suffrage exist. The people demanded that such a disgraceful and hateful state of affairs should terminate.

Hence we have the election law as founded upon the Australian system. There may be defects in this law. Dishonest scoundrels may find plans by which they can defeat the will of the people at future elections. They could do this, perhaps, whatever the law might be.

But there certainly is less opportunity for dishonest transactions than heretofore. It is at least a step forward toward purity at elections, and we should not condemn it until anticipated and improbable evils.

A DRY VIRGIN.

Among many of the narratives and incidents relating to the late disastrous flood at Johnstown, Penn., was one in which it was stated that while the mighty waters were rushing forward carrying death and destruction before them they entered a church finely furnished with carpets, crucifixes, flowers, etc., and although everything was submerged and removed by the water, which rose several feet high, the statue of the Virgin Mary standing in the church was untouched and appeared as neat and presented as beautiful an appearance after the waters had subsided as when first placed in the building.

That statue should be placed upon wheels so that it could be moved to any part of the country likely to be hereafter visited by a flood. It might ward off storms, cyclones, high waters and such. It is a little remarkable that in a day of intelligence like this there are fools that believe such ridiculous balderdash as this sent out from the sorely stricken city of Johnstown, and yet there are many, judging from the carefully worded account, that actually believe the dumb image escaped the flood simply because it symbolized something holy.

In proportion as such stuff is given circulation and credence among professed pious people will infidelity increase. The religion of this day must be founded on practical, common sense, and not on superstition, if it is to prosper and increase.

BENEVOLENCE.

A spirit of benevolence more eloquent than words animates the people of this country at all times in cases of distress and disaster.

The late horrible loss of life and destruction of property at Johnstown, Penn., and the valley in which it is situated, illustrates this. An unexpected calamity came upon them, relatives and friends by the hundreds were drowned, and their property swept away.

The survivors needed aid, and how rapidly it came. From Oregon to Florida, from Maine to Texas, the donations in money and provisions have been prompt and large in amount.

Even before the lapse of 48 hours the donations began to go forward and have continued ever since. New York, Chicago, San Francisco and thousands of intermediate towns and cities have responded nobly to the good work.

In the case of the destruction of Chicago in 1871 the same liberal spirit of benevolence was exhibited, and later toward the yellow fever sufferers of the southwest. It cannot be said that this nation is lacking in charity, whatever else foreign newspapers and people may say of it. Charity, it is said, covereth a multitude of sins. Our national sins may be greatly blotted out by the deeds of charity that we at all times exhibit.

The great battle on the true theory of protecting labor that has just begun has for its vital issue the supplying of free raw materials to our mills and workmen, and it is an open secret that a large number of the republican Senators sincerely believe in the wisdom and necessity of free raw materials. It is the most important step to reduce the cost of necessities of life without diminishing the wages of labor, and how long can these convictions and the necessities that created them hold out against party policy dictated by centralized capital? Now that a distinctive protection administration and Congress are assured, why do not such leaders as Allison accept the tariff policy they applauded in Grant, Garfield and Arthur, and solve the whole question of protection promptly and enduringly by giving free raw materials to our factories and labor? If not done now it will surely be done hereafter, and if not done by the republicans it will surely be done by the democrats. It is inevitable.

Those friends of Sim Coy that made a great ado over him on his return home from the penitentiary the other day made a great mistake and fools of themselves in so doing. He may have been convicted on the testimony of a self-confessed, sneaking perjurer, as alleged, yet at the same time it is no reason for making a martyrdom show over him. Some of his party at least in that city, and good men, too, will think that the quieter he keeps the better for him, and that he cannot hereafter be so useful but what better men can be found to lead the party.

BUYING THE GRAVEL ROADS.

There are quite a number of farmers that on discussion of the matter are opposed to the purchase of the gravel roads. To them there appears little or no economy in so doing. They argue that the increased tax necessary to buy and keep them in repair would be considerably more than the toll they pay in passing over them now.

We in the city consider that very generally free turnpikes would increase our trade: that many who trade elsewhere do so because they pass over free roads, while on seven of those leading to Crawfordville they must pay toll. Here are two interests to serve in the purchase or rejection of the proposition to buy the toll roads. While with many the proposition to buy may be popular, still there are large numbers that appear opposed to it.

No better evidence of the evils and extortions of "trusts" can be seen than in the sugar trade. Whoever is compelled to buy sugar at retail is well aware that at this time he is paying from 15 to 20 per cent more for it now than he did a year ago. The consumer is enriching these extortionate scoundrels. You must pay the increased price or do without. And yet that old, gray-haired, republican demagogue, James G. Blaine, who is a member of three or four trusts himself, said last summer in a speech that trusts were affairs with which neither the president nor the people had any concern, that is, had no business to interfere with. Blaine is the mouthpiece of his party, voices the sentiments of its leaders, and therefore we can reasonably conclude that the only party warring on the interests of the people and upholding the monopolists is the republican.

When the delegation of miners from Clay county went over to "pay their respects" to Ben Harrison at Indianapolis last fall it bore aloft such banners as "Protection for the laboring man," "Harrison and Morton—Protection and Prosperity." Many of the fellows composing the crowd are now objects of charity, and would greatly rejoice at the sight of a square meal. The "protection" comes in the way of an offer of about $4 per week each from the coal mine operators for their labor. Such is another evidence of these "good Harrison times," and the beauties of protection.

SEATTLE, Washington territory, is the next city after Johnstown, Penn., to be visited by a great calamity. It has 30,000 inhabitants. Last Thursday a fire broke out in the business part of the city and before being extinguished burned over 64 acres covered with buildings and caused a loss, it is estimated, of $25,000,000. This is the place where Messrs. Paul, Humphries and Wm. Thompson are locating, and in consequence of this great loss they may find business rather of an up-hill order for a time. This city will undoubtedly be rebuilt soon and in 18 months will be a better place than ever.

The action of the Tippecanoe county prosecuting attorney in bringing to time a number of money loaners and mortgage holders that have heretofore studiously failed to list such property for taxation, is liable to become contagious and spread to other counties. The prosecutor of Clinton county is already stirring them up and like proceedings will be inaugurated in other counties. There is nothing unfair in this to any honest taxpayer, and while the per cent fellows may squirm they will only be compelled to act honestly hereafter.

THERE is said to be much indignation feeling toward the owners of the reservoir situated 18 miles north of Johnstown, Penn., that burst its banks on the 31st and caused the drowning of over 12,000 persons and the loss of $40,000,000 worth of personal property. All this indignation will amount to nothing, and in a suit for damages it is very doubtful if anything could be recovered from the proprietors of the reservoir. The reservoir had been completed as such many years and had been pronounced safe and sound by competent engineers.

PROF. COLLET, asked his opinion as to whether there is virtue in the madstone, replied "I can see no sense, reason nor philosophy in the theory. I do not understand how a bit of porous stone can possess any such qualities. And why should just a little piece, here and there, have a monopoly of the healing power where there is an abundance of the same kind of stone (slurrian coral) to be found in many places? But there are a great many mysterious things in nature; this may be numbered among them. I do not care to say."

WANAMAKER, the new Postmaster-General, raised $400,000 dollars to aid in purchasing the election, yet he goes to Philadelphia each Sunday to take care of his Sunday school class. If Wanamaker is a fit subject to teach a Sunday school class what's the matter with Dudley? Is the man that used the money any worse than the man that raised it? Such Christian gentlemen as Wanamaker and Dudley are enough to make a hardshell Baptist pig squeal that might come within 100 yards of them.

ROCHESTER ROBE, at one time a citizen of Crawfordville, it is said has been appointed to some lucrative office in the treasury department at Washington City. It would seem that the republican party had about run out of seed when such individuals as Robb receive responsible positions. The appointment is received by many republicans here with feelings of much indignation. They should restrain their wrath. He may be able to liquidate many of his pecuniary obligations by means of his office.

It has generally been considered that what is known as the "gas belt" in this State was limited to some 12 or 14 counties in eastern Indiana, and in these only could natural gas be obtained. This conclusion would seem to be incorrect. Salem, Washington county, over 100 miles south of here, is developing into a first-class gas field. Three or four good gas wells have been developed, with a fine prospect for several more.

We observe that both the Lafayette and Logansport artificial gas companies have reduced the price of gas from $1.80 to $1.50 per 1,000 feet. Here in Crawfordville the rates are $2.50 per 1,000 feet and consumers would delight very much to hear of the company making a like reduction. There are a score of towns in Indiana that pay less for gas than we here in Crawfordville.

They say that prohibition prohibits in Kansas while at the same time the sale of retail liquor stamps shows a very perceptible increase. There is not a prohibitory liquor law in this country that prohibits the sale of liquor. It seems that in Kansas such a law does not even restrict the sale so much as a license law did.

PROHIBITION seems to be a failure in every State heretofore where adopted, and there is no question that the American voters by a large majority are strenuously opposed to it. Even in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, which States claim for themselves the highest civilization and intelligence, and look upon the inhabitants of other States as much below them in everything, prohibition has been voted down.

REPUBLICAN newspapers made much ado last year over the fact that Cleveland gave but $20 to the sufferers by the earthquake at Charleston. Both Senator Voorhees and ex-Gov. Gray have given $20 each to the suffering miners in Clay county, yet Ben Harrison, who receives a salary of $50,000 per year, has not given a cent although he might aid the unfortunate of his own State.

ROCHESTER ROBE, lately appointed to a lucrative government position, is credited to Montgomery county and his recommendations are for this county. Many republicans are wondering who in the devil and Duncan Walker recommended him. Was it Dr. Duncan, the Knights of Labor, John L. Goben, or who was it?

THE commission of Hon. B. W. Hanna as U. S. minister to the Argentine Republic expires on the first day of July. As yet no one to succeed him has been named by President Harrison, and he may remain there until next fall, or at least until another person arrives to take charge of the office.

In Memoriam.

Montgomery county mourns the loss of another one of the long line of its pioneers, who, by earnest lives and constant activity have helped to make this part of the country what it is to-day, one of the garden spots of Indiana. On Sunday last, between the hours of 10 and 11, Miss Mary Hanna, at her home a few miles south of New Richmond, after a long and painful illness, died. She was born in Troy, Ohio, removing with her parents to this city in 1835. At that time Crawfordville was a mere village, built of logs and rough timber, but flourishing enough to attract men of earnest purpose, and giving promise of becoming, as it now is, the Athens of the State. Miss Hanna's father, the Hon. James Hanna, then owned the building and conducted a mercantile business where Eph Joel is now located. He was one of those who started the city on its way to prosperity; he labored at all times for the general welfare; and when the movement was made for the establishment of a college here he became one of the leaders in the work and one of the founders of that institution. He surrendered his large business building to be used as a recitative place when Wabash was consumed by fire, and died at last on an Ohio steamboat of the cholera, taken while soliciting funds and pupils in every locality where such aid was most likely to be secured. In 1865 Miss Hanna took up her residence in the north part of the county, where her father owned considerable tracts of land and where she has since resided with her sister, Miss Martha, until death summoned her to an everlasting rest. She was the second of a family of five, two of whom are still living, Miss Martha Hanna and the Hon. Bayless Hanna, Minister to Argentine Republic. Messrs. James and Alex, twins, died many years ago. Mary Hanna lived a life which may truly be styled a christian one, and her long career of constant activity and conscientious performance of every duty is one which will surely bring as its reward eternal rest and happiness. She was a member of the Presbyterian church, of whose high standard of moral nobility she has been a living example, since having joined it to the early age of thirteen years. Anything which might be said in praise of such a character would be superfluous. The remembrance of her life is a sufficient monument to her memory, and the recollection of her life work is the most fitting epitaph which her countless friends here and elsewhere can compose, in memory of one of Montgomery county's most noble citizens.

Don't You Know

that you cannot afford to neglect that catarrh? Don't you know that it may lead to consumption, to insanity, to death? Don't you know that it can be easily cured? Don't you know that while the thousand and one nostrums you have tried have utterly failed, that Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is a certain cure? It has stood the test of years, and there are hundreds of grateful men and women in all parts of the country who can testify to its efficacy. All druggists.

The Power of Ink

"A small drop of ink, falling, like dew, upon a thought, proclaims that which makes thousands, perhaps millions, think," wrote Byron. The inspiration of his pen might give the dusky fluid such a far-reaching power, and we wish we were possessed of such an inspiration that we might, through a like medium, bring into such extended notice the matchless virtues of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, those tiny, sugar-coated granules which contain, in a concentrated form, the active principles of vegetable extracts that Dame Nature designed especially to promote a healthy action of the liver, stomach and bowels.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

SAID Uncle Sam: "I will be wise,

And thus the Indian civilize:

Instead of guns that kill a mile,

Tobacco, lead and liquor vile,

Instead of serving out a meal,

Or sending Agents out to steal,

I'll give domestic arts to teach,

A cake of 'IVORY SOAP' to each.

Before it flies the guilty stain,

The grease and dirt no more remain;

'Twill change their nature day by day,

And wash their darkest blots away.

They'll turn their bows to fishing-rods,

And bury hatchets under sods,

In wisdom and in worth increase,

And ever smoke the pipe of peace;

For ignorance can never cope

With such a foe as 'IVORY SOAP.'

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory!'" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.
