THEN AND NOW.

At the old settlers' meeting of Carroll county a few days since, one of the speakers for the occasion, Maj. McCadden, spoke of the great contrast in the religion and religious teachings of fifty years ago and now. He showed up the great change in religion and the churches since the good old days of fifty years ago—how everybody could go to church in the sun-bonnets and lindsy-woolseys, while at this day and age they would be entirely lost in one of our fine churches and congregations; showed up the Sunday excursions in the name of religion, as in the case of Talmage and Sam Jones at Maxinkuckee, where there were 1,000 souls lost to one saved, and took away $1,000 a piece. It may to some extent be the means of calling a halt in the extravagance in religious matters by comparing to-day with the times of fifty years ago. If religion is to be without price it must be so in fact and not in imagination. When merchandise is made out of religion it has that much less force and increases the growth of infidelity that much more. If, as is probable, Talmage and Jones were paid $1,000 each for their three or four days' services at Maxinkuckee, or even half that sum, what great influence will their work exert upon the people? Have we not departed far, far away from the good, sincere piety and teachings of the early days? Fine churches, high salaried preachers, with mock imitations of religion, prevail to a great extent. The object, as most people understand in religion, is to aim to save men, not to make money out of them. Talmage and Jones tell no more truths nor with greater force than scores of other divines, yet they are paid extravagant salaries. They are the "stars" in the religious firmament, the same as Booth in the theatrical, Dan Rice in the circus, and Emmerson in the negro minstrel world. And what fools we are and what fools we mortals be to pay these fellows, alleged to be working in the cause of the Master, such extravagant sums of money! Give your money to the scores of the poor, needy and homeless instead of to these butterfly divines. There would be practical illustrations in these donations of the religious faith within you. It is doubtful if these sensational preachers exert any permanent benefit. They seem to be working more for their own "cause" than any other. It pays, and pays big, to be a sensational preacher. There is much money in the work—more than there is in true religion. The main objection is the deceit practiced. Their own pocket-book is the first thing under consideration—the welfare of mankind is secondary with them. Does it not seem that way to most reflecting persons?

A REAL JUDGE.

The peculiar unfitness of Judge Woods for the position of a U. S. judge was again illustrated last week in his court in the matter of appointing a receiver for a railway. The road was making some money, had a debt of but $60,000, and its earnings were something like $10,000 per month more than its expenditures. R. B. F. Pierce, lately of this city, was appointed a receiver by Judge Woods. Judge Gresham, the incorruptible man that he is, and friend of the classes that are not monopolists and bondholders, heard of the proceedings and appeared in the court and after closely catechising Pierce at once relieved him of the position he had been given by Woods. The entire proceedings of Woods would clearly appear to have been favorable to the bondholders and against those to whom the $60,000 was owing for labor upon the road. But what better can be expected of a judge who can give two different rulings or opinions on the same thing, as was done in the "blocks of five" Dudley case? He is a specimen brick of party malignancy, instead of a man dealing out equal and exact justice to each and every person who may be brought before him. And great is the pity that we do not have more Greshams at the head of our courts, or of any other high positions, who will not lead to those who are simply possessed of this world's goods with little merit and little honor or justice to sustain them. Give us jurists that will not bow to men simply because they have wealth, and we will have justice.

SENATOR VOORHEES, "the tall sycamore of the Wabash," was interviewed the other day, and he took occasion to flail the tariff fallacy so vigorously and forcibly as to drive terror to the hearts of his cohorts. In the course of the interview he said: "The tariff plunderers do not intend to give up their clutch on the fruits of labor. They have been appealed to in vain with fair words and gentle means, but they tighten their grip and increase the tax for their own enrichment on every prime necessity of life, from salt and sugar to the woollens, cottons, lumber and iron. The time for gentle means with the great public plunderers, spoliators, and robber barons of the country is gone by, and the issue is now and will be from this time forward, whether the laboring people of the United States shall govern themselves and enjoy the fruits of their own industry or whether they shall be governed by the power of money wrenched from their hands by unjust laws and placed in the hands of a privileged class. That is the question from now on, and there will be hard blows given as well as received by those who take the stand for the people."

A CORRESPONDENT of a publication in this city, signing himself "a patron," whether of a saloon or gambling room is not definitely known which, states an untruth in saying that the REVIEW did not approve the new system of school books adopted by the State board of education. This paper opposed, and does yet, what is termed the St. Paul system of school books, which, as we understand, are entirely different from those published by the Indiana school book company. "Patron," who perhaps imagines he is fully educated and competent to pass opinion on all school matters, knows just enough to lie and misrepresent in stating this paper ever at any time opposed the new system of school books of this State.

THE continued announcements of failures of large business houses in various parts of the United States indicates that the Harrison boom is still on.

NORTH DAKOTA, soon to be made a State, has through its constitution, now in process of formation, determined that trusts, the great bane of business interests at this time in this country, shall have no foothold nor encouragement to exist in that State. Among the sections adopted was one providing that any combination between individuals, corporations, associations, or either, having for its object or effect the controlling of the price of any product of the soil or any article of manufacture or commerce, or the cost of exchange prohibited and declared unlawful and against public policy, and that any and all franchises heretofore granted or extended in the State, shall, when the owners violate this article, be null and void. Notwithstanding the fact that James G. Blaine, the beacon light of the republican party in this country, said that "trusts" were affairs in which the public had no business, it seems that the North Dakota people do not look at them in that light, but consider that trusts are things in which the people are greatly interested.

A VERY smooth scheme is that adopted by a number of the elevator men in portions of Dakota. They have formed a combination to do away with competition, and farmers who do not accept the one price offered for their wheat can take it away. Whenever competition is done away in anything extortion and oppression begins. This arrangement of the elevator owners could be adopted everywhere and with great loss to farmers who might be compelled to submit for a time. It is nothing but a trust on a small scale. In this case, however, the plan can and will be defeated wherever adopted. Farmers can ship their own wheat without any elevator business connected with it, can go along for that matter with it to its destination east, see to its weight, care of it, and receive their money from those who have heretofore paid the commission merchant and elevator manager. This they will do if such arrangement to prevent competition should become general, but that it will be extremely doubtful.

MONEY AT ELECTION.

It is probable that the man with the money on election days will hereafter be secure than he has ever been before.—Frankfort Banner. And for which every voter of every party should feel exceedingly glad. The disgraceful vote buying in Indiana for a quarter of a century past has brought the name into disgrace, made most of our elections a farce and demoralized the people very generally. It is sincerely hoped by all decent and honest men of every political party that the days of the man buying votes are a thing of the past, and that he will appear never again. If the new election law has been the means of bringing this cursed occupation to a close, that much more thankful should the people feel toward the legislature that enacted such a wholesome law.

MR. HENRY, the township trustee, is worrying himself considerably and losing much sleep regarding the new school books. While almost every county and the trustees in them are adopting the Indiana publications, the brains of Mr. Henry are so much disturbed regarding them that he has employed Crane & Anderson, the attorneys, to help him out. If he pays their fee out of his own pocket it matters nothing to the public, as the Indiana school books will be used any how, in time, in this as well as every other township in Indiana, but the tax-payers should not foot any legal bills made by him for the purpose of acting the fool or to give him an opportunity to exhibit his little private authority.

THE "Elixir of Life" business is doomed to an early decline. It smells too much of the quack, in a medical sense. The idea, as it has been with some, that aged, infirm and decrepit persons could have the vigor of youth and health restored to them by its use is an indication at once to many of a diseased and disordered imagination. Almost might it be expected that a lung once gone can be restored, and yet by the work of quackery many have been led to believe that it can be done, and that consumption can be cured. Sensible medical men take no stock in such balderdash.

NOTWITHSTANDING the strenuous efforts of the Indianapolis Journal, aided by the Journal of this city, and a few other republican newspapers, the new school books of the Indiana publishing company are rapidly growing in favor, orders going in for them from every county in Indiana, and the old school book ring is as rapidly losing its grip in this State. This school book monopoly, of which a few republican papers were the organs, has been one of the most grasping trusts ever organized, but judging from present indications the days of its power are over, in Indiana.

ONE section of the new constitution to be adopted by North Dakota, relating to property, is that the property of the wife, acquired before or after marriage, can not be taken for the debts of the husband. Now if they will so amend this that the husband who seeks to beat his creditors by placing everything that he acquires in his wife's name, can be prevented from doing so, the movement would be all that much better. Honest business men in Indiana lose more by this scoundrelly scheme of concealing property in a wife's name than by any other source.

THE man that will not control his temper always comes to grief at some time or other. He may regret, when it is too late, that he had not more sense. Terry, ex-judge of California, was a fit illustration of this. He was in the habit of domineering over others, would have his own way, would not control his temper. He ran up against the wrong man last week and died. The fool who considers it an evidence of smartness to have a high temper in most instances learns to think very differently after a very few years.

JUDGE D. S. TERRY, a noted California attorney, a fit type of the wild and desperate characters of the early times in that State, was shot dead last week in southern California by a deputy U. S. marshal, while in the act of assaulting Justice Field, of the U. S. supreme bench. Terry became noted, years ago, by his duel with Senator Brodick in that State, whom he killed. He appears to have been a man of ungovernable temper, desperate in his nature, and his death will not be greatly regretted.

Why Utah should not be admitted as a State next year, along with Dakota and Montana, needs a sensible explanation if it can be given. It has the requisite population, has less crime and fewer paupers than some of the other territories, and polygamy is rapidly dying out and will not again be tolerated. Utah is certainly entitled to admission as a State.

A PLANT for the manufacture of fuel gas has been established at Terre Haute. It will have a capacity of 5,000,000 per day. Here is a matter which the gas company of this city should receive a hint from. If gas is not soon discovered here why cannot the gas company establish a fuel plant here, provided the fuel is cheaper than coal or wood? It would certainly be made a profitable investment.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN, the prize fighter, at the close of his trial for fighting in Mississippi, last week, received a sentence of twelve months imprisonment in the penitentiary. Mississippi is the only State in the Union heretofore that has taken the correct view of such disgraceful affairs and the men engaging in them. The shortness of Sullivan's sentence is the only weak feature of it.

DR. PARKHURST has held the chair of theology at the DePauw University. He had always voted the republican ticket until last fall he joined forces with the prohibitionists and voted that ticket. That act sealed his fate at DePauw and the board of trustees has retired him. The republican party is indeed a very "liberal" party.

DEPARTMENT COMMANDER TRAVIS will probably think he has little influence with the rank and file of the G. A. R. in seeking to prevent them from attending the encampment at Milwaukee next week, from the fact that from 40,000 to 50,000 of them will be there, and a great many from Indiana.

An account was published last week from Illinois, of the stinging of a jack by bees, from the effects of which it afterward died. This is said to be the first instance on record of a jack being known to die, although occasionally they have been known to disappear.

FIVE men were hung in the Tombs, the jail of New York city, yesterday. Each had murdered a woman. That appears to be jerking them off at wholesale rates, yet there are perhaps many more in that city who should go by the same route.

MISSOURI is down on trusts, according to the New York Voice. A law has been passed making every agreement or understanding to fix prices or restrict production a conspiracy punishable by heavy fines and forfeiture of franchises.

It is funny why so many of those who have the money to throw away always require a trip to a summer resort for their health, while those not so blessed in finances generally have as good health by staying at home.

THE great horde of office seekers around Indianapolis have been making desperate efforts this week to interview President Ben Harrison during his visit to that city.

A Musical Treat.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer of the 12th gives a full account of a concert given for the benefit of the Methodist church choir. It says: "Lovers of music who failed to attend the concert at the first Methodist church, last Friday evening, have much cause to regret their absence. To say that the whole performance was delightful is cold praise. Such singing and music is rare in any city. The concert was given for the benefit of the church by the church choir, under the direction of Mrs. Judge Humphries and Miss Nell Victoria Freshman. The ladies and gentlemen taking part were all good musicians and the appreciative audience warmly endorsed each performance."

A Happy Woman.

Happy is the woman without bodily ills, but happier is the woman who having them knows of the saving properties of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When relieved, as she surely will be upon a trial of it, she can contrast her condition with her former one of suffering and appreciate health as none can who have not for a time been deprived of it. The "Favorite Prescription" corrects unnatural discharges and cures all "weakness" and irregularities.

THE BARBER'S OPINION.

"Some people think 'tis only made

For washing down the walls or stairs,
The bureau, tables and the chairs;
But folks do well to change their mind;
'Tis not to things like these confined,
And not alone the kitchen maid
And laundress prize its friendly aid."
