

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced."

THE REVIEW.

—BY—
F. T. LUSE.

A Cowardly Attack.

In the Journal of Monday evening a writer who must be a pure patriot, warrior, statesman, moralist and protectionist of monopoly, and trust combines, gives utterance to half a column of doleful wall over the fact that the citizens of Indiana were about to unveil a monument in honor of one of the State's distinguished sons at its capital. After all his wall the only conclusion he reaches is that Hendricks was an uncompromising democrat, and that in the eyes of this writer is a crime never to be condoned even by Almighty God himself; a crime unpardonable by God or man. He admits that Hendricks was honest, that his character, public and private, was "chaste as ice and pure as snow;" that no taint of official corruption was ever upon his garments, but he was true to the theory as old as the government itself, that each State comprising the Federation of the United States was sovereign in its powers and could act independent under the provisions of the constitution. To that principle he was true as steel; he deprecated the bloodshed and the object for which it was shed, of the period from '61 to '65, and to relieve the country from the sulphur smoke, the hospital, the prison pen, the unknown grave, the widow and orphan, from his great honest heart came propositions of compromise, to let the arbitrament of intelligence supersede the arbitrament of the sword. For these crimes of belief in the sovereignty of States, and preaching that doctrine announced at the Nativity of the Nazarene, "peace on earth, good will to men," he is to be damned in the public press, by a partisan whose bitterness is unreasonable, on the occasion of the erection of a monument over his mouldering dust. The grave does not hide him, with the mantle of charity from the savage attacks of the partisan who knows not the virtue of that greatest of all Christian graces, and without which true manhood is not found. Hendricks was a democrat, as a democrat he was honest. He passed through the furnace of politics, with garments unscorched, and upon his forehead in letters of living light shown to friend and foe alike the word "Honest." He came through unscathed and with the confidence and love of the people of his State, and to show that confidence and love and respect they dedicated last Tuesday a monument under the shadow of the capitol to the Legislature, Governor, Senator, Vice-President, the honest, the incorruptible citizen. These things would be his monument were there never stone or bronze placed above his tomb. The furnace through which he passed is thrice heated, and in its seething, roaring fires went down the republican idol of Indiana, the Secretary of War under Grant, a republican president of the United States, republican congressmen innumerable and senators by the score. These things are not said in the spirit of boasting, nor to rake open the graves of the dead, but the Credit Mobilier, the Whiskey Ring, the De Golyer Pavement swindle, the Freedmen's Bureau, and the Congressional Railroad Land Grabs and Indian thefts are matters of history, while the letters of Fisher are a stinging menace to the present Secretary of State. The attack upon the memory of Indiana's distinguished son is as brutal as it is cowardly. His dust cannot be harmed by any shaft which the Journal's quiver may hold. His name will be venerated long years after that of that writer shall have vanished from the minds of men, and the earth which covers the great majority shall have settled back and left their resting places, their names and deeds a mystery to those who pass. Hendricks is damned for opinion's sake, by narrow bigots whose puritanical and pharisaical ideas are only equalled by those early adherents of bigotry who burned witches at Salem and crucified the Savior of men on Golgotha. Education may eliminate it. It is to be hoped that it will, but the chance is narrow when we consider the fact that the public schools, the "hope of the country," are fast becoming tinctured with this damnable spirit which creates monarchies and sustains courts and kings, and fast becoming so though the efforts of partisans whose ignorance and lack of charity and Christianity lead them on to the work of destruction.

A Painful Accident.

Quite a painful accident occurred at the home of Doc Mitchell, near the Iron bridge Tuesday evening. As the two daughters of Mr. Mitchell were sitting in the front yard, they were approached by young Peter Vant Leven who was returning from a hunt. As he entered the gate he carelessly threw the shot gun to the ground. By some means it exploded and the entire charge took effect in the neck, face and arm of Miss Minnie Mitchell. Dr. Goff was at once summoned and administered to the young lady. It was at first thought to be fatal, but at this writing the victim is doing well. No blame can be attached to Mr. Vant Leven as it was purely an accident, but it should prove a warning to persons who are careless with fire arms.

The First Fatal Sun Stroke.

Some three weeks ago, J. C. Maloney, of Peoria, Ill., came to this city to work for J. S. Miller & Bro. Last Sunday morning he started for a walk going to Sperry's Valley. Becoming overcome by the intense heat, he applied to a house for admission, but the family thinking he was drunk refused. Leaving the premises he proceeded up the road but a few yards where he fell dying in the ditch. Mr. Maloney was 55 years old, a fine looking man weighing about 200 pounds, was a Mason in the Peoria, Ill., lodge, and carried a $1,000 paid up policy in the Masonic Mutual Benefit Insurance Company. A son in Canton, Ill., was notified, to which place the remains were shipped Monday night.

The Morphine Route.

The elite of Bucktown were again startled Sunday by the attempted suicide of Madame Mosier, keeper of a palace of gilded sin on Spring street, becoming disgusted with this uncharitable hemisphere and the changeable weather, she swallowed a heaping teaspoonful of sulphate of morphine, enough to kill a horse. She was soon discovered by one of her soiled doves, who at once called Dr. Chambers. After vigorous efforts on the part of the doctor, the pestiferous female was restored to life and now has a fair chance for recovery, notwithstanding the Journal's beautiful obituary notice. It is only the good who die young.

Clark Township Convention.

The democrats of Clark township assembled in Ladoga Saturday last and selected the following committeemen and delegates: Central committeemen, Benj. F. Williams; township committeemen, 1st precinct, G. S. Harney; township committeemen, 2nd precinct, C. G. Hill; township committeemen, 3rd precinct, V. M. Rhoads. Delegates to state convention, James F. Harney, J. T. Davis; alternates, A. Henry, J. N. Foster. Delegates to congressional convention, C. G. Neill, J. E. Talbot; alternates, Perry Mahorney, Benj. F. Williams.

Mrs. Whitehead's Trial.

Judge Langdon, from whom the defendants, Mrs. Whitehead, venue her case, this week named Judge Joseph M. Rabb, of Williamsport, Judge of the 21st Judicial Circuit, as the Judge to try the case, and the setting of the case down for trial was fixed for 1:10 p. m. At that hour, Judge Rabb on the bench, Mrs. Whitehead's case was set for trial September 3. The question of the sufficiency of the bond was then raised by the State. The bond was made for appearance "at the February term, at the April term, and from day to day thereafter." The State called in question the sufficiency of the bond, and whether the bondmen could be held on a forfeiture made hereafter, if forfeiture should be withheld beyond the April term, now near its end, and liable to end at any day at the discretion of Judge Langdon. Mrs. Whitehead and her father, as has been announced, have gone on a visit to Virginia, to Washington City, etc., expecting to be gone for several weeks. Her counsel state the question of the bond was, as they supposed, arranged with the State before she went. If now Judge Rabb should hold to the same view of the matter as the State and rule that a new bond must be filed, it would hustle the defense considerably to get their client and her father back here in time to make the bond before Judge Langdon, who is feeling greatly the need of rest, shall get tired of running court and adjourn for the term. Judge Rabb moved that there must be a new bond given for Mrs. Whitehead's appearance at the September term of court; and the parties were ordered to come into court and give a new bond by Saturday next in the sum of $10,000. Thus will their visit be spoiled, and a double trip, or its entire relinquishment necessitated. It would seem as though the case was serious fault somewhere, either in allowing these parties to start at all before the matter of the trial was entirely settled, or else, in allowing the technical point after they had been permitted to go with the understanding that all was right, we do not presume to say—Lafayette Call.

This brings the case of Mrs. Whitehead before that of Pettit, which is set for Oct. 8, and the result of the former's trial will have much to do with the latter.

A Bit of History.

As a grain producing county, Montgomery ranks among the best in the state, and as a market Crawfordsville has no superior. The first honor is due to the efforts of a practical set of farmers and the latter to exceptionally enterprising grain merchants. Prominent among these is the old pioneer dealer W. M. Darter, more familiarly known as Scott Darter, whose name is a household word to every farmer in the county. When Crawfordsville was in its infancy Mr. Darter associated himself with his brother and erected an elevator on the corner of Grant Avenue and Franklin street, on the Big Four railroad, that was the county's pride. It was known for miles around and millions of bushels of grain was handled there. The site was beautiful, the driveways superb and its location gave it such advantages as to railroad facilities that competitors found competition a difficult task. Years rolled on, the Darters sought other pastures and the once pride of Montgomery county fell into premature decay. But all things become new again. This same W. M. Darter has purchased his first love and to do honor to the fatherly feeling for the old stand, has refitted and refurbished it with such modern improvements that the old elevator will itself feel proud, and he is now prepared to handle all the grain that will come to him, for which he will pay the highest price in cash or exchange. He will also handle all kinds of meal and feed. Agent for O. K. and North Dakota flour; best on earth. The O. K. is used largely in exchange for wheat and is the standard flour. The elevator is equipped with a corn crusher with a capacity of 1,000 bushels a day and Mr. Darter will cater to the feed trade as he never did before.

Ripley Township.

On last Saturday the Democracy of Ripley township held a rousing convention at Alamo. It was for the purpose of appointing delegates to the state and congressional convention and forming a township committee. The democrats turned out en masse and there was great enthusiasm. The convention was officered by Aaron G. Walters, chairman; Samuel H. Gilkey, Sec. Delegates were appointed as follows: State, Joseph Smith; Congressional, Samuel N. Gilkey. Township committees, precinct No. 1, Carlton Snyder, assistants, W. A. Walters and Willard Fink. Precinct No. 2, George W. Bowers, assistants, Joel Denman and Elbert McSpadden. The convention was large and harmonious, the delegates being instructed to cast their vote for E. V. Brookshire for Congress, and Col. John Lee for Secretary of State. If every township in the county shows as much earnestness and enthusiasm as old Ripley the republicans will not make a showing this fall.

Deformity From Bright's Disease.

S. D. VanBaskirk, of Demarest, N. J., says Aug. 20, 1888: "Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., has cured our daughter of Bright's disease, after all other means had failed. She was so swollen that she measured 45 inches around the waist, and 18 inches below the knee. To say that we feel thankful for such a boon as Favorite Remedy is but a poor expression of the feelings of grateful parents."
