PROMPT JUSTICE.

A Specimen of Old-Time Massachusetts Law and Order.

In the "History of Beverly," Mass., the following anecdote is related of a good justice of the peace in the old colonial times. On a cold night in winter, a traveler called at his house for lodging. The ready hospitality of the justice was about being displayed, when the traveler unluckily uttered a word which his host considered profane.

Upon this he informed his guest that he was a magistrate, pointed out the nature of the offense, and explained the necessity of its being expiated by sitting an hour in the stocks!

Remonstrance was unavailing; for custom at that time allowed the magistrate to convict and punish at once, and in this case he acted as accuser, witness, jury, judge and sheriff, all in one.

Cold as it was, our worthy justice, aided by his son, conducted the traveler to the place of punishment, an open place near the meeting-house where the stocks were placed. Here the traveler was confined in the usual manner, the benevolent executor of the law remaining with him to beguile the time of its tedium by edifying conversation.

At the expiration of the hour, he was reconducted to the house, and hospitably entertained till the next morning, when the traveler departed with, let us hope, a determination to consider his words more carefully before giving them utterance in the hearing of a conscientious magistrate.

BASSANO WAS OFFICIOUS.

Napoleon III. Made an Insolent Duke Apologize to a Yankee Student.

"His years of study in Paris and Berlin form one of the most enjoyable periods in the career of an American professional man," said one of our most famous surgeons to a New York World reporter. "They did at least in my case. When I was in Paris the American minister presented a lot of us at the Tuilleries. We got to the audience chamber a little late, and the young duke of Bassano, a tremendously handsome young fellow in splendid court uniform, with a gold spoon fastened on the lapel of his coat, came up to us with a haughty air and demanded what we meant by being so late for his majesty's audience. His manner was so insolent that several of us came pretty near drawing the swords which we wore with our presentation costume and plunking him in the ribs. Afterward we saw Louis and he gave us a special audience. We demanded through the minister an apology from the duke of Bassano and got it, the emperor accompanying it with a letter of regret that the incident should have occurred. The duke of Bassano, by the way, was no fair-weather friend of Napoleon's. He accompanied his master and mistress to their exile in Chislehurst, and was devoted to Eugenie. Louis Napoleon impressed me as a coarse, undersized, big-nosed and depraved-looking fellow. He was suffering from a skin disease, which made contact with him unpleasant."

LOVE'S QUEER PRANKS.

A Young Frenchman Plays Spy Upon His Sweetheart.

For some time the course of true love had run very smoothly between a young Paris shopman and an apprenticed milliner, says the London Telegraph, and a marriage was arranged between the two. Parental consent had been obtained on both sides; banns were published daily at the mayor's office and everything was being made ready for the eventful day, when the lover took it into his head to make a private inquiry into his own account. He resolved, in fact, to find out some of the past history of his betrothed, and for this purpose he disguised himself by means of false whiskers and a mustache and decided to appeal to the concierge or porter of the dwelling wherein the young lady resided. He set to work badly, however, and his first step as an amateur detective betrayed him. He went to the wrong house and as he was talking to the porter and that functionary's wife they noticed the false hair and became suspicious. Having told him that the lady whom he mentioned did not live in the place they asked him who he was. He replied, hesitatingly: "An official from the prefecture of police," and then left hastily. The porter stepped out of his lodge, dodged the sham detective down the street and had him arrested by a constable. At the police station the amateur was obliged to tell everything and was discharged with an admonition from the commissary.

Women in Street Cars.

A Washington street car conductor said recently: "Women behave like idiots on street cars. If a woman wants to get off from a crowded car she lifts one hand slightly from her lap and holds it in a limp attitude, which she imagines is a gesture. Finding that the conductor can't see this from the back platform through a number of people standing she gives the paw a sort of waggle. This usually excites the attention of some man by her, who asks her if she wants the car to stop and pulls the strap. It is the same way when a woman desires to get aboard. Usually she stands stock still at the side of the road and doesn't make a motion, though possibly she may turn up one hand slightly from the wrist as a signal, or even waggle it in a feeble way, until the driver asks her if she wants to ride. Of course, this notion is that it is the ladylike thing. Four women out of five have an inclination to jump off before the car stops, which the conductor has to restrain by placing his arm in the way."

Aggravated Cases.

An absent-minded woman in this town started down street the other day, says the Fairfield (Me.) Journal, and slipped and fell flat. In recovering herself she got turned around and started back home. She is a cousin to a woman who started to prepare the evening meal recently when she sneezed, and upon recovering thought she was "doing up" the supper dishes. She put everything away nicely and sat down for a quiet evening.

THEY WANT BLAINE.

Important Political Conference at Indianapolis.

IT IS HELD IN BLAINE'S INTEREST.

Republican Leaders Meet and Resolve to Make a Strong Effort to Secure the Nomination of the Man from Maine.

A BOOM FOR BLAINE.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 13.—A secret political conference of some significance was held in Indianapolis Thursday, and so well was it managed that not until Friday did the real character of the conference become known. The participants were men of prominence in politics, and they were brought together on a call issued about a month ago. Most of them are known as Gresham men. Among those who were present were: Gen. James McCalla, of Chicago, one of the strong adherents of Judge Gresham; Col. A. L. Conger, of Akron, O., a member of the national republican committee, and a Blaine man; Congressman Burrows, of Michigan, a follower of Alger; James O. Bradley, of Kentucky; three Detroit men, who are close to Alger and hard workers for him, but who managed to conceal their identity; Charles W. Fairbanks, of this city, who has all along been one of Judge Gresham's chief supporters; Judge Fields, the only Indiana delegate to the last national convention who refused to vote for Harrison; M. W. Simons, of Plymouth, the Indiana delegate to the same convention who voted first for Harrison and then went over to Gresham. There were also Addison C. Harris, of this city; C. B. Landis, of Delphi; G. W. Wilson, of Fort Wayne; A. A. Purman, of Fort Wayne; Charles A. Bookwalter, of Fort Wayne, and Austin Kunkler, of Lafayette.

Among those present were the editors or authorized representatives of the Evansville Journal, Delphi Journal, Marion Chronicle, Terre Haute Express, Fort Wayne Gazette, Logansport Journal, South Bend Tribune, Rensselaer Republican, Michigan City News, Steubenville Republican.

There was a settled agreement to make a strong fight against Harrison's renomination. The conference expressed a determination to oppose Harrison in the convention, but to stand by him if nominated. The conference was in the interest of the nomination of Blaine, the purpose being to at once inaugurate a movement in support of him. In an interview Col. Conger said that it was the desire of the participants to keep their move secret, if possible, but, since some information regarding it had leaked out, he was not disposed to conceal the facts. He said frankly that the purpose was to organize the republican friends of Mr. Blaine in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Michigan and Kansas in support of his nomination for the presidency. It was also determined to hold another and fuller conference, but the time and place were kept a profound secret.

"It is simply our purpose," he said, "to do all that we can from now until the national convention is held to secure his nomination, and I am confident that we will succeed."

"But will Mr. Blaine accept a presidential nomination in 1892, after having so positively declined it in 1888?" was asked.

The answer to the question was given with deliberation. "I am not authorized to speak for Mr. Blaine," said Mr. Conger, "but I can give the assurance that there will be no embarrassing letters such as appeared three years ago to paralyze the efforts of his friends."

COLLAPSE OF A BIG FIRM.

The London & Liverpool Clothing Company Falls.

NEW YORK, June 13.—A series of unfortunate complications and continued bad business caused the assignment of two of the largest retail clothing houses in the city. They are the London & Liverpool Clothing Company, at Bowery and Hester street, and Mack & Co., at Nos. 463 and 465 Broadway. Both concerns, although apparently under separate management, were owned and controlled by Isidor Rosenheim and Isaac S. Mack. Their liabilities are estimated at about $250,000 and the assets at from $175,000 to $200,000, most of which consist of merchandise on hand. The firm will probably be able to settle with their creditors on a basis of seventy-five cents on a dollar.

Fatal Electrical Storm in New Jersey.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Tidings of a severe electrical storm along the New Jersey coast Friday afternoon are received here. At Cape May electric fluid struck the lighthouse tower, burning a small hole in the dome and passing down the cottage connected with the tower, destroying a feather bed and painfully burning one foot of the son of the assistant keeper. At Hammononton Daniel Cross, and two of his children were killed by the lightning. He leaves a wife and three children.

Had Lived 120 Years.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 13.—A negro woman 120 years old died here Friday. Her name was Cloe Ouden. She was a native of North Carolina, slave born, and came into the world in 1771. Her first child, who was born in 1797, was at her bedside when she died. For six years she had been confined to her bed and for many years she had had little use of her faculties. Her death resulted from debility.

Death of Bishop Knight.

MILWAUKEE, June 6.—Bishop Knight, of the Episcopal diocese of Milwaukee died Monday at his residence adjoining the cathedral on Juneau avenue. He was attacked with the grippe several weeks ago, and on Friday suffered a stroke of paralysis, which hastened his end. The deceased was 60 years of age, and came here from Lancaster, Pa. He succeeded the late Bishop E. R. Wright.

WHAT IS IT?

Persons outside of the profession often ask, what is an Emulsion? We answer an Emulsion is a combination of two or more liquids, so thoroughly mixed that each is held in permanent suspension. Several of the most advertised "Emulsions" now on the market are nothing more than compounds, and a microscopic examination will reveal globules of oil in their original form. The Emulsion made by Messrs. J. A. Magee & Co., Lawrence, Mass., everywhere so favorably known by physicians as is composed of one-third part Cod-Liver Oil, one-third part Extract of Malt, and one-third part Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, each of which must be of the finest quality obtainable. These three valuable ingredients, with a little flavoring extract, are put into a "mixer," where it is emulsified for six hours by steam power, at the rate of 125 revolutions per minute, which breaks every globule of the oil, and combines it with the other ingredients in such a thorough manner that no separation will ever occur. Magee's Emulsion has no equal for the relief and cure of Coughs, Colds, Scrophulous, Dyspepsia and General Debility. For sale by all druggists.
