William Bill's Downfall.
William Bennett is once more in duress vile. Of course its not hing unusual for Willie to be in duress but in this instance it is particularly sad in as much as Willie's screams for Harrison and Ried from now on will avail nought. The cause of Willie's arrest dates back some two months ago, when Andrew Tray, a good old farmer who lives down near Russellville, paid this city a visit. Mr. Tray made the acquaintance of Bennett during his rounds, and by evening the two were bosom friends. It didn't require much effort on Bill's part to persuade his granger friend to accompany him to his brown stone mansion in the north and remain over night. Mrs. Bennett was a charming hostess and Mr. Tray spent a very delightful evening. In the morning when he arose he found that he had accidentally lost $16 which he had put away on his inside pocket and two of his wife's bed quilts had taken wings and flown away. Mr. Tray made several vain efforts to get Mr. and Mrs. Bill to disgorge, and finally filled an affidavit charging Bill with larceny. He had a hearing Friday morning and was bound over to court in the sum of $200.

A Double Charivari.
Thursday night the citizens of the city were somewhat startled by the low booming of cannons. The sounds were wafted from a north-westerly direction and people were undecided whether it was some republican campaign speaker fighting the civil war over again or Col. Edward's Pogue Run veterans attacking a watermelon patch. But both surmises were wrong. It was simply a gay party of Black Creekers who had surrounded the home of R. B. Snyder and were charivaring Charley White and wife, and Mr. Spencer Lee and wife, both of whom were recently married. It was a noisy crowd and they kept up the bombardment until Red came forth and passed around a choice article of that which he keeps in his cellar for newspaper men and other distinguished guests. This quieted their nerves and all was soon once more serene.

Elder Lane Will Stay.
The Christian church has employed Eld. E. T. Lane for the third year, at an advanced salary. Mr. Lane has done a great work in the upbuilding of the church in Lebanon by stimulating the membership and putting it to work. Beside his ability as a general in the church work he is a forcible man in the pulpit, and his sermons are not only spiritual but replete with literary merit. The church is fortunate in securing Mr. Lane for another year.—Lebanon Pioneer.

Dirty Work.

The following special from Bloomington of Wednesday to the Indianapolis Sentinel says: "Two efforts were made to wreck trains on the New Albany & Chicago road at an early hour this morning, near Salem, as train 74 was coming north, a "T" rail was discovered on the main track. The train was stopped and the rail removed without damage. The section following was notified to look out for wreckers. This section, however, ran into a coal car that had been run on to the main track from the switch, and the engine was damaged and the conductor is also reported hurt. It is supposed that tramps committed the outrage out of revenge because they were not allowed to ride."
