RUPTURE CURED.

I was ruptured when a boy and for thirty years wore a truss; never had one that would not slip, and the rubbing caused galling and soreness. I learned of Dr. W. H. Nott through a druggist, some six or seven years ago, and I made an appointment with Dr. Nott, and he met me then, but I put off until Nov. 29, 1892, when I took my first treatment, a second on Dec. 16, 1892, and was pronounced cured Dec. 23, 1892. To the afflicted who trust this state that I am not surprised when you will be able to answer any letter regarding the cure or to talk them personally. OMER RODRIGAUGH.

THE FINANCIAL OUTLOOK.

There is an anticipation of coming "hard times" among a large class of people just now. Since January 1st over 20 national banks have closed, almost every day a few brief lines tell of the assignment of some large mercantile house, or the assignment of some manufacturing concern, and the losses to large numbers of people are enormous. Why all this is true we cannot say. There is as much money in the country now as there was five or eight years ago. Crops have generally been as good as ever, and there has been no epidemic of sickness, nor anything in particular to bring around distrust among the people. Yet it exists, money is being held tightly and an era of dullness in business matters seems near at hand. What is greatly needed now is some master hand that can steer our ship safely through the tempestuous financial sea that it would seem about to enter. Neither the skinning interest sharer of Wall street nor the silver crank of the west, both of whom are solely for self alone, is wanted for this occasion, but some one of broad patriotic views who can and will act in the interest of the entire country. His hour is at hand. He is needed now. He is needed now. There is work at once for him. Confidence, a plant of slow growth, is first to be brought about. Suggestions of what is missing to tide safely over financial troubles will be plenty. Considering the situation President Cleveland a few days ago said:

"It is well for the people to take up the subject for themselves and arrive at their own conclusions as to the merits of a financial policy which obliges us to purchase idle silver bullion with gold taken from our reserve. One does not need the eye of a financier to see that this gold thus subtracted from the government stock is eagerly seized by other nations for the purpose of strengthening their credit at our expense."

"It does not need the art of statesmanship to detect the danger that awaits upon the continuance of this operation. Already the timidity of capital is painfully apparent, and none of us can fail to see that fear and apprehension in monetary circles will ultimately bring suffering to every humble home in our land."

He thereupon offers a reward for the apprehension of participants in the lynching.

Neither Govs. Porter, Gray, Hovey, nor Mathews have indicated in the past such spirit toward the unlawful, cowardly and cruel mobs, as have disgraced many counties in Southern Indiana for twenty years past; on the contrary they paid seemingly little attention to them, apparently indifferent as to the outcome or the disgrace attaching from them to the State. If Altgelt can infuse his spirit into the Macon county officials, it is evident the mob that hung the negro will regret its haste and cowardice in that justice to.

If CONGRESSMAN BROOKSHIRE could give an office to every one of the 1001 individuals who importune him he would be "bully boy with a glass eye," but since he is unable to do this many of those who fail are quickly eager to avow that they will remember him next year when he is again a candidate for Congress. Such individuals generally are in politics solely for office or prospective spoils, and not from any fixed political belief or party fealty, and their sole influence is generally one vote and often not that. Under such circumstances it would strike the voter unmoved by hopes or promises of political favor but acting solely from pure political belief and party sympathy; that the position of a Congressman is to act honorably and independently in all appointments with the sole welfare of the party in view, and if these disappointed Judases do not like it they should seek a more sultry atmosphere at once, remembering that the party at large will sustain him in all honorable, upright actions that he may pursue.

Has the Journal man some relative or friend that is desirous of a contract from the city that moves him to urge the immediate construction of sewers? The public is at a loss to know what other object it can be that induces him to be so zealous in the matter unless it is that.

The civil service law is not worth a curse unless it applies equally to both political parties. A law that threw out a democrat four years ago from official position is not fair and equitable unless it serves republican officials the same to-day.

Gov. MCKINLEY was, at the State republican convention of Ohio, renominated for Governor of that State last week. In accepting the nomination he indulged in the usual amount of gush over the great things of the republican party in the past. It was noticed that he did not give much explanation for the cause of his party's defeat last year.

A CASE IN POINT.

As illustrating many of the abuses that have come about in granting pensions through political favoritism or other unjust reasons, a case in point was by investigation brought to the attention, a few days ago, of the officials of the pension department. A man from Illinois, it was discovered, had been drawing a pension of $12 a month, his disability consisting of two corns on his foot, and formed upon it long after the close of the war. Although the claim on first application was rejected, the republican commissioner of pensions, Raum, seemed to have thought better of it, and on a second application granted it. The fellow, perhaps, it was discovered, was a factor of the party in his locality, and it would be best to grant this pension. That is probably the way Raum and his underlings viewed the matter, and not that the claim was at all just. There are, no doubt, thousands of just such cases like this where pensions are paid on as equally frivolous grounds. When investigation is set on foot, these republican newspapers start the nonsensical chatter about the indignities that are being heaped upon the ex-soldiers. Such rot has ceased to have meaning, but is the vaporizing of political demagogues. Injustice will not knowingly be used toward real ex-soldiers, but camp-followers, coffee coolers, and fellows that smell powder from afar, should not and will not receive consideration from the present heads of the pension department. The government should not give its money to such men, as instanced above, as they are not by all laws of reason and sound sense entitled to it. In the interest of the true soldiers and the government the pension rolls seem to need a thorough overhauling, and the sooner done the better, and it should be done uninfluenced by all political considerations.

SOME BACK BONE.

Governor Altgelt, of Illinois, seems to be possessed of more bad bone in getting after a cowardly mob than most Governors of Indiana seem to have possessed. A mob hung a negro at Decatur, Illinois, last week, who had been charged with the crime of rape. He was taken from the jail, the officers being overpowered and hung from a street telegraph pole. Concerning the outrage the Governor says:

"He was already in the custody of the law, and no matter with what crime he was charged and no matter whether he was innocent or guilty, he was entitled to a trial—a fair trial, according to law. It must never be said that laws of our great and proud State do not afford protection to all, without regard to color or condition. I, therefore, call upon all officers of the law, and especially of Macon county, as well as on all good citizens who respect law and cherish the honor of this State, to do all in their power to bring the leaders of this crime to justice."

He thereupon offers a reward for the apprehension of participants in the lynching.

Neither Govs. Porter, Gray, Hovey, nor Mathews have indicated in the past such spirit toward the unlawful, cowardly and cruel mobs, as have disgraced many counties in Southern Indiana for twenty years past; on the contrary they paid seemingly little attention to them, apparently indifferent as to the outcome or the disgrace attaching from them to the State. If Altgelt can infuse his spirit into the Macon county officials, it is evident the mob that hung the negro will regret its haste and cowardice in that justice to.

SEWERS NOT NEEDED AT ONCE.

Councilman Vanarsdal says the sentiment is growing so strong in favor of a system of sewerage that it cannot much longer be resisted. While he dreads the expense yet the necessity has become so urgent that the Council must make a move in the matter.—Journal.

Bosh! Councilman Vanarsdal cannot prove this is the sentiment or the wish of a majority of the tax payers of Crawfordsville. The opinion is however, we beg to say, that a number of barnacles of the city, individuals who have heretofore bled the tax-payers, hope and expect to do it again by big contracts for sewer work in the way of excavations or furnishing brick. There is the point to all this balderdash about sewers. Crawfordsville is as healthy as any town in Indiana, and is not in any immediate need of sewers at all, notwithstanding the fact that a few interested individuals are aiming to work up such a sentiment. The bulk of property owners don't want sewers because they feel unable at present to meet the great expense, and if not constructed within the next five or eight years the health of the people will not be endangered thereby, although the financial condition of some of the treasury leeches may be. When a man is heard talking about the great need of sewers to the city it may be well in most instances to ascertain if he has not got a cousin, brother-in-law, or friend, who is wanting a job of work real bad.

Ex-GOVERNOR CHASE in his late business operations is a fitting instance of the danger of allowing one's name to be used in schemes of which he absolutely knows nothing. He was an ex-Gov., stood high in the councils of his party and his church. Schemers who knew more about certain kinds of business than he, saw influence and money in the use of his name. They secured him to "organize" banks for them. The banks bursted and Chase is getting his share of the cursing and trouble ensuing from it. Although he may be perfectly innocent of any intentional wrong doing he gets fully as much credit for it as do the manipulators behind him.
