A TRAIN LOAD OF WOOL.

McClure & Graham Make the Biggest Wool Shipment in the History of the County.

Just think of it! Fifteen car loads of wool! One whole train load! Nearly 150,000 pounds! Representing more than $25,000!

Yesterday afternoon McClure & Graham started a whole trainload of wool from this city to the Philadelphia market. This is decidedly the largest individual shipment ever made from this county. This firm has been of vast advantage to the farmers of this county this season. In spite of the decline in prices and stringency in the money market this firm has paid paid top notch prices at all times and the ready cash has always been forthcoming. But few farmers in the adjoining counties or even adjoining States have had as good a market as ours. This is saying a great deal and wool raisers should feel under obligations to this enterprising firm who are always awake to their interests.

Who are They?

A good story is told by an employe of the Big Four railroad which is too good to keep. A few nights ago a newly married couple boarded a train at Crawfordsville, bound east on a wedding tour. They occupied a berth in a sleeper, and their love making was one of the chief attractions of the other occupants of the car. They cooed and bled to their hearts content. The couple did not start to retire until all other passengers had gone to bed. Just before getting into her berth the bride said sweetly to her husband:

"Dear, I am going to get a drink of water. When you hear me coming back stick your foot out of the berth so I won't make a mistake."

When she turned to come back every berth had a foot exposed.—Danville Commercial.

CUT THEIR THROATS

TWO KENTUCKY GIRLS FOULY MURDERED.

Daughters of a Wickliffe Farmer Assaulted and Killed by an Unknown Man—The Whole Country Searching for the Criminal—Will Lynch Him.

CAIRO, Ill., July 6.—A terrible crime was committed near Wickliffe, Ky., five miles below this city, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. John Ray is a prosperous farmer living on the Illinois Central railroad, four miles below Wickliffe. Yesterday morning his two daughters, Mary, a comely girl 17 years of age, and Annie, aged 10, went out to pick blackberries at a place about 200 yards distant from the house. They had been absent about thirty minutes, when Mrs. Ray heard one of the girls scream and soon a dog which had accompanied them came running to the house uttering pitiful cries.

The frightened mother at once rushed to the place where her daughters had gone and there found the dead body of her elder daughter with her throat cut from ear to ear and her body fearfully mutilated. Nude and close beside it lay a navy blue coat left by the man who had assaulted and murdered her. The body of the younger girl could not be found.

The horrified mother rushed to the house and rang the farm bell with all her might. This aroused the neighbors and soon gathered on the scene and who a search for the missing girl was at once instituted. Her body was found about thirty feet from that of her sister. Her throat had been cut and from the position in which the body lay it was evident that she had been first murdered and then tossed over the fence into the adjoining field.

The whole country was soon aroused, and armed men commenced to flock in from miles around. A party of 100 armed men left Wickliffe at 11 o'clock, and by the time they had reached the scene of the crime a similar party from Bardwell and Arlington arrived.

A systematic search for the murderer was commenced without delay. Three negroes who had boarded a train at the apple orchard near the home of the Rays, were arrested when they reached Fulton, forty-five miles south. A negro was arrested at Bradwell, but was released. Every suspicious character was compelled to give an account of himself, and one man came near falling a victim to the mob before he could prove an alibi.

A correspondent visited the scene of the crime and conversed with many members of the searching party, and heard the story of the two young men who fired on a suspicious looking character, a light mulatto, whom they found crouching on his knees and elbows. He claimed to be from Bardwell and said he was on his way to Dongola, Ill., in search of work. This would throw him directly in the line of the place where the crime was committed. He wore a blue vest but had on no coat. A man answering the same description was seen near the same place the evening before and he wore a blue coat and vest. He managed to escape from the young men, but the searchers are convinced that he is the man wanted, and attempted no concealment of the fact that he will be summarily lynched if captured. He is now surrounded in a small territory in a bend of the river.

Who say the clouds of life have not a silver lining? Look at little 4 year old Grover Reynolds, Watson, Ill. His father, Daniel W. Reynolds, after describing the little sufferer's long illness, continues: "Finally a gravel was forced into the urethra and remained there, producing blood poisoning and dropsical effusions. He was treated by a council of eminent physicians. They made incisions to let the water out and finally properly advised an operation, but confessed the little sufferer was so weak death would likely result. I refused and began giving him Dr. Fenners' Kidney and Backache Cure. Before one bottle had been entirely taken the stone had become so far dissolved by the remedy that it passed out of itself and the child is well and sound to-day." This shows its power in dissolving stone. It is equally powerful for good in all kidney diseases. Money returned if satisfaction not given. Take a bottle home to-day.
