They Kiss and Make Up.

HOTEL TEEGARDEN, LA PORTE, Ind., Sept. 10, 1893.—Whereas there appeared in the Battle Ground Repository of Oct. 1892, and March, 1893, statement that I had sued John A. Griffin, administrator of the estate of David Roudabush, for funeral services, and as the records of the court appear as if a suit had really been brought, I now make this statement: I filed a claim against said estate at the solicitation of the friends of David Roudabush and the administrator with no thought or intent of bringing a suit, the administrator stating the claim would be allowed. I hold a written statement, affirming the above from the administrator which also states that by an oversight the claim was not allowed, but went on the trial docket, and that he, the administrator, urged the court to allow the above claim. I never intended a suit and greatly regret having filed the claim and the embarrassments that have grown out of the affair. In accordance with an agreement entered into I make this statement to be published in the Battle Ground Repository with a statement made by Geo. B. Chamberlain, and thereby drop the whole matter between Mr. Chamberlain and myself.

G. W. SWITZER,
Geo. C. CHAMBERLAIN

HOTEL TEEGARDEN, LA PORTE, Ind., Sept. 10, 1893.—This is to certify that certain charges in two separate issues of the Battle Ground Repository were made against the Rev. Geo. W. Switzer. Particularly one as to the suing for funeral services; that an investigation was held at Brazil by seven ministers called by the Presiding Elder, and from the evidence offered the verdict of not guilty was unanimously found. I accept this verdict and agree that the whole matter be dropped, as well as all other matters between Mr. Switzer and myself growing out thereof.

This is to appear in the next issue of the Battle Ground Repository.
G. W. SWITZER,
Geo. C. CHAMBERLAIN.

The Ragged Edge of Hope.

An indication of the interest felt in the Terre Haute collectorship and incidentally in the question as to the present power of Voorhees' pull, is found in the following print in to-day's America, Boss Croker's new paper in New York: "Of all the office-seekers of really unique names, who have hovered around Washington more or less since the 4th of March, all but Joshua Jump, of Terre Haute, have been accounted for."

"Pod Dismuke has gone back to his mountain home in Tennessee disconsolate, if not broken hearted. Dink Botts is pursuing the even tenor of his way down in 'Gawgy,' and reflecting upon the ungratefulness of republics. Potsdam Stanhope Sams has thrown political ambition to the winds, and all politicians with a 'pull,' especially those who promised him so much and procured for him nothing."

"But what has become of the Hon. Joshua Jump? Has he been 'slated' or been carried out, or is he still hanging on to the ragged edge of hope? It is possible that, as Mr. Jump is one of Senator Voorhees' constituents, his success depends somewhat upon whether Mr. Voorhees gets a vote on the repeal bill this year or next. It is possible but it won't do to jump at conclusions.—Washington Correspondent to Terre Haute Express."

Pickpocket Bishop's Fate.

Frank Bishop, the young shark who stole Mrs. Harvey Thompson's pocket book containing fifteen cents, on circus day, was brought before Judge Harney Saturday and pleaded guilty to the charge. A. B. Anderson, his attorney, prayed to the court with tears in his eyes for clemency and as a result the lucky dog was let off with a thirty day's jail sentence and the usual disfranchisement.

Stolen Property Found.

Some school children discovered a buggy in the woods on the Brier farm last week and notified Marshal Beamer. He visited the place on Wednesday of last week and recognized the vehicle as the one stolen from Melvin Hutton, near Wingate, on September 6th. The buggy was badly broken and gave evidence of having been in a runaway. It is believed that the thief had a runaway, with the horse stolen from Henry Palin the same night, the harness still attached to the buggy showing that the animal had pulled away from the vehicle. In the buggy were two sets of harness. This will afford a pretty good clue to the thief, for in his trouble he doubtless applied to some farmer in that vicinity for assistance.—Attica Ledger.

Frank is Free.

Frank Kinkade has been granted a divorce from his wife, Eva, and given the custody of their only child. Frank complained that Eva was entirely too gay to conform with his fixed ideas of morals and wifely duties. He alleged that she was too familiar with other men and had a decided penchant for that necessary farm adjunct known as the "hired hand." As a result Frank is free to woo and wed again.

A STRANGE FIND.

The Remains of An Unknown Babe Found In A Shoe Box Near Alamo.

Word reached the city Thursday morning that the remains of an infant had been found in a shoe box on the farm of David Stanford near Alamo. Marshal Brothers at once repaired to the scene and found the terrible story too true. The remains were those of a fetus between six and seven months old. It had been wrapped in a woman's skirt and then placed in a shoe box. The box was found near the road, just over the fence in a field and had evidently been placed there several days ago. There is no clue whatever to lead to the arrest of the guilty parties and it is very probable the crime will go unpunished.

A RATTLING TAME.

Given a Stick and a Picket Fence the Boy Is Bound to Have It.

"Every middle-aged man of sound memory who was brought up in town," said Mr. Gratebar, "will recall the fact that when he was a boy he found great delight in rattling a stick along the picket fence."

"This amusement of childhood, like many others of that period of life, appears to have been transmitted from generation to generation without material change. The strings of spoons and the soldier hats and so on of the children of to-day are substantially like those of their forefathers. But it might seem to some that this succession is in danger of being broken."

"In many suburban towns and villages there is now no picket fence. The modern spirit says lawns, and so there are many places where the houses are as if in parks, and where the younger children might not know a picket fence if they should see one."

"I have two children, for instance, who I am quite sure have never enjoyed the felicity of rattling a hard stick against the resounding pickets. It might indeed seem, under such circumstances, that this is one of the enjoyments of childhood which in some families might be lost altogether; that one could scarcely expect the children of these children who have never rattled pickets to think of it themselves; but I cannot believe this."

"I believe, rather, that if in their youth the children of these children should come upon a town where picket fences still remained they would pick up the handiest stick and go quite naturally and very gleefully rattling it along the pickets; for I cannot believe that a habit grounded for centuries in the human race can be utterly lost by its lapse in a single generation."

LUKE'S IRON CROWN.

A Terrible Mode of Punishment Used in the Middle Ages.

One of the most awful modes of punishment inflicted by the law-invested barbarians of olden times was that jocularly referred to by the old inquisitors as "Luke's iron crown."

"I can only find record of one country—Hungary—where it became the recognized mode of killing criminals convicted of enormous crimes (and therefore was only used on regicides) but several other governments are known to have used it in aggravated cases. This mode of punishment with an apostolic name consisted of placing a crown of red-hot iron upon the head and leaving it there until the sizzling flesh and bone burned away and allowed the very brain of the writhing wretch to be fried to crisp before life had entirely left the body. Could even a hooved and horned, spike-tailed devil, fresh from the infernal regions, devise a more inhuman method of inflicting the death penalty?

The term "Luke's iron crown" was applied to this method of legal killing because it was first used in ridding Hungary of a rebel named Luke Dosa. Luke and his brother George headed a revolt and the former allowed himself to be crowned king by his followers. When finally taken by the government they made the crown business "too hot for him"—an example to future would-be kings.
