THE COERCION PLAN.

The most despicable and tyrannical system of republican party leaders in this campaign is that adopted by heads of large manufacturing concerns, rail way superintendents and managers of concerns that have a large pay roll of employees, to coerce them into the support of McKinley and the gold bug platform. It is being done and will continue to be in spite of the attempted denial of it by leaders of the party. It was planned at the republican national headquarters to force support of a man and a platform which the majority of laboring men in this country do not like. It is the worst species of tyranny and is un-American from whatever point of view it may be looked upon.

Every voter of this country should be untrammelled in his political action, and should not be forced nor intimidated into the support of any candidate whatever.

No man can be a free citizen who is forced into voting for any man or measure distasteful to him. Yet that men are now being coerced into the support of the gold bug candidate there can be no question. Too many mechanics who were the intended victims of this tyrannical order have testified that such was the case. They have told where they were requested to march in McKinley processions, wear McKinley badges, and shown where plain threats were made if they failed to do so that they would lose their positions.

Could there be a more dishonorable system of political warfare than this? Is this the moral support that the republicans loudly proclaimed they would receive from the laboring men of the country? Efforts to deny this plan of campaigning are useless. The public know better. It will certainly react before the election on its projectors, and should it will aid the Bryan ticket.

STUDENTS RESOLVE.

The democratic students of Purdue university, at a meeting last Thursday night, unanimously adopted the following resolution:

WHEREAS, The students of Yale university last week grossly insulted the Hon. William J. Bryan, candidate for the highest office in the freest and best country on earth; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That we, the democratic students of Purdue university, an institution whose students go to school, and are not sent, condemn the action of those who took part in that ungentlemanly, uneducational and un-American proceeding as unworthy the institution whose students they are.

A SEWER SYSTEM.

The city council at its regular meeting last week decided to have a system of sewerage, and that the work should begin soon. It was concluded that the best plan would be to issue bonds to raise funds to construct them. This is done, it is understood, partly to give men work living in town to prevent them from being a charge on the community. A wise set of men indeed is this city council. With a debt of $60,000 already hanging over the tax payers and business of all kinds stagnated, they propose to further increase the debt by building sewers for the purpose of preventing men from becoming paupers. At the same meeting the council borrowed $5,000 to meet current city obligations. Judging from this system of financing and benevolence, every time in the future when business becomes dull, money scarce and men want work, the city must issue bonds to support them. Mr. Hutton, one of the democratic councilmen elected last spring on a ticket which meant economy and retrenchment, we are sorry to see favors this bond issuing business. We feel certain he does not represent a majority of those voting for him last May. The tax payers are in no humor at all to have taxation increased. This city nor county is under no obligation to give any man employment, and it is a mean system which taxes people to do so. Above all this there is no pressing demand at all for sewerage. The city is just as healthy and in as good sanitary condition as scores of cities boasting of sewer systems. If there is any way to prevent this contemplated increase in our city debt it should be done.

THINKS HE WILL WIN.

The surmises, guesses and wagers as to who will be elected President next month are numerous. Mr. Bryan last week gave out the following relating to himself and the probable results of the contest now drawing to a close:

"I have no doubt of my election. I base my confidence upon the fact that the free state sentiment is growing every day. The people are studying the money question, and the study of it is convincing the people generally that there can be no permanent prosperity so long as the gold standard is maintained.

"The gold standard makes a dearer dollar. A dearer dollar means failing prices, and failing prices means hard times. The people who profit by hard times are relatively so few in number that they would amount to nothing at all but for the fact that they are aided by a considerable number of people, who, not having studied the money question themselves, have received instructions from a few financiers. The number of republicans who have declared for free silver outnumbers the democrats who have deserted the ticket, and while the number of silver republicans is increasing all the time, the number of boisterous democrats is all the time decreasing."

SENATOR HILL.

After this fight is over the question is where will be Senator Hill. He has made no speeches for either side, neither for free silver nor the gold standard advocates. His part has been contemptible throughout, and ever since the Cleveland wing of the party got a grip upon him in New York, he has played the guerrilla. He may be bright, aman and a genius in politics, but his influence does not now, nor never will extend beyond the boundaries of New York. His ambition is to be nominated some time for president, but we don't believe he will ever reach the goal. His expression "I am a democrat" is received with expressions of doubt. They would prefer to have his definition of what a democrat is and see it accords with theirs. The course pursued by this man has not endeared him to the democracy of the nation, regardless of what they may think of him in New York. New York hereafter will not figure as formerly in democratic national councils. His politicians are too treacherous and too unreliable. Hill is no better than any of them, and must assume a less conspicuous position. He is no loss to any party.

WANT IT OVER.

Nothing would suit the large majority of American people better than to have this campaign over and the election passed. No campaign in thirty years has been more detrimental to public interests than the present, and if they were farther apart now, say six years instead of four, all the better. It它 paralyzes all kinds of business it would seem, other than that relating to politics. There is less trade among the people, less business transacted, and almost everything seems based on the result of the election. People want to wait until that is passed. The only consolation to all this is that the contest ends in less than four weeks, and after which it is hoped, the people will drop all politics and take up business.

In all their gabble on political affairs not a republican stump speaker has ever undertaken to answer the arguments brought forward by Mr. Bryan favoring free silver. Ridicule, sarcasm and abuse are their main weapons, but cold, calm arguments they do not possess.

DEPOSED.

Reports last week said that Bynum, one of the managers of the national bolters organizer, had been deposed from the management of the campaign by his fellow bolters. It matters little whether he remains at the head of the concern or not. It has made little or no headway in seeking to disrupt the democratic party and at the election in November will cut a very small figure. In fact it is questionable if it has as many advocates now as a month ago. Its efforts are directed to the success of McKinley, and the purposes of the men running it are too apparent for any concealment. The leaders of this movement, although heretofore known as democrats must take a back seat hereafter in future campaigns. They will not nor should not be trusted in political matters. They would wreck the party they could not rule. After the contest is over, and the smoke from the battle cleared away they will see fully the ignominious positions in which they are placed.

JACKSON AND WALLING.

For some months past little has been heard of Jackson and Walling, the murderers of Pearl Bryan, near Newport, Ky., in January. Politics has absorbed the public interest and little has been heard of these two murderers. Both are yet alive and in the Newport jail, and by their attorneys their cases have been taken up to the Court of Appeals of that State. It may be that justice will yet be cheated of her dues, and that these men will escape the punishment which by all rules of evidence and reason they are entitled to. The public mind is satisfied of their guilt and the evidence clearly convicted them. Therefore this tampering with justice should not be continued.

THE STATE FOR BRYAN.

Careful work and cautious detailed polling indicate that Indiana will favor the election of Bryan by a majority of from 20,000 to 30,000. In no state of the Union has there been a more vigorous canvas than in Indiana, and not a township but what has had speakers to address the people. The farming element in Indiana is for Bryan and there is where the republicans suffer their greatest losses. The farmers consider the speediest way out of hard times and the panic is by the Bryan route, and that votes for McKinley is a continuation of the present money stringency.

The speeches of the bolting democratic orators, those favoring Palmer and Buckner, now have preference with republican newspapers over those made by republican speakers. It is remarkable, indeed, the anxiety they display toward the bolters' ticket, but as it is in the interest of McKinley it is not particularly a cause of surprise.

The McKinley cause must be getting desperate. They have started Bob Ingersoll, the noted infidel, out on a campaigning tour for the gold bug ticket. They choked Ingersoll off some years ago, from fear of damage by him to the republican ticket and may have to again.

INDIANAPOLIS has rarely had a larger crowd of people than that attending the Bryan speaking on Tuesday. The speeches of Mr. Bryan at a half dozen or more other points in the State will greatly aid toward the success of the ticket.
