Was Not in It.

The blowers and strikers for Gen. Wallace from this county at Indianapolis in the contest for U. S. Senator, are about ready to throw up the job. At no stage of the game have they been enabled to count upon more than five votes for their favorite. Wingate, Bonnell and the rest of them are now probably ready to admit that they know little about political strategy away from home.

Only Six.

That was a mistake the other day which credited Parke county with seven murders during the past year. The last fellow reported as murdered was not, but is likely to recover from his injuries. Give the God-forsaken county proper credit and call it but six murders, as the record is bad enough anyhow.

Wrecked.

Nine cars loaded with coal, north bound on the Moon, were wrecked early this morning at the depot, supposed to have originated through a broken wheel. The cars were mashed into many pieces and the coal scattered.

Changed Ownership.

The "Waveland Telephone Co.," composed of A. J. Wolfe, F. N. Johnson and Fred Stebbins, has purchased the Borum telephone system, the headquarters of which is at Stebbins' store. —Waveland Independent.

Presidential Inauguration Washington

D. C. March 4th.
For the above occasion the C. C. & St. L. Ry., will on March 1st, 2nd and 3rd sell excursion tickets at one fare for the round trip. Good to return leaving Washington March 4th to 8th inclusive. For further information call on or address W. B. Patterson, Agt.

National Monetary Convention

Indianapolis, Ind., January 12-14. For this occasion the Big Four will, on January 10, 11 and 12, sell excursion tickets to Indianapolis and return at $1.75 for the round trip, good to return until January 15. W. B. PATTERSON, Agent.

Will Thompson is attorney for the Northern Pacific railway company.

A notice of importance to tax-payers will be found in our issue this week.

A son of Dr. Hutchings is seriously ill at his home on south Washington street.

Walter Hulet has been appointed administrator of the estate of Fred Bandel, deceased.

Lew Willis goes on the road for a Chicago art store February 1st, his territory covering Illinois and Iowa.

The Ladoga board of trustees have passed a cigarette ordinance. Persons selling them must pay a license fee of $300.

Stephenson & Shackelford, grocers, of Lebanon, made an assignment last week. Their assets will about equal their liabilities.

The trial of Dr. Stout on indictment for alleged complicity in the Grace McClamrock abortion case has been called for trial next week.

The finishing touches necessary to the completion of the Wallace studio were completed yesterday, and it is now ready for the occupant.

No ice has been out in this locality this year, and from present appearances the ice plant will have no trouble in disposing of all it can manufacture.

Four ex-convicts from this county, who have served out their sentences at the Northern prison, will be returned here to-day by Deputy Sheriff Brothers.

Mike White, Major Foote, Squire Stillwell and James Wright, it is said, are receptive candidates for Mayor. The matter will probably be settled next week, while in the meantime Squire Stillwell is attending to the Mayor's duties.

Representative McCrea will introduce a bill into the House for action, drawn up by Peter Kennedy, compelling children between certain ages to attend school. Similar efforts have been undertaken at previous sessions but have heretofore failed.

Miss Luella Sheets, of Frankfort, has been awarded a verdict for $15,000 against the Vandalia railroad, for personal injuries sustained in a wreck at Coatsville about a year ago. Miss Sheets recently refused to compromise with the company for $8,000.

Colfax, Clinton county, a thriving village, is without a newspaper to chronicle the events which weekly occur in and around there. The Standard owned by L. D. Woodcock, which has been published there under the management of different persons for several years, has been moved to Thornton, where it will be issued in the future. Several newspaper men are thinking of locating in the place, as the field is considered a fairly good one.

PLATT, NEW YORK POLITICIAN.

Wants the Midland, and for the Good of the Country Through Which It Passes He Ought to Have it.

Regarding the Midland railway Crawford's line, which runs through New Ross and Ladoga, a late number of the Indianapolis News says:

There is a report that Thomas C. Platt, the New York politician and railroad financier, has his eye on the Chicago & Southeastern, and will try to gather that road in. Years ago Platt wanted to make a railroad manager of his son, and tried it on this road. The Chicago & Southeastern has been involved in much litigation about material, labor, equipment, taxes etc. Total stoppage of the operating department through levies made upon its rolling stock have occurred time and time again. At one time an engine was chained to the track at Anderson, another at Noblesville, a third at Lebanon, and the fourth was hidden in the coal fields, so the sheriffs could not get it. For over a month the mail was carried over the road on a hand car. Receiver ships have been asked often, and the courts invoked for other relief.

In 1876 a charter was granted to the Anderson, Lebanon & St. Louis, and nineteen miles of the road from Anderson to Noblesville was opened. In 1878 James A. Larned became the receiver, and operated it for several years. In 1885 it was sold under foreclosure, and the Midland Railroad Company of Indiana became the owner. Then it was that Thomas C. Platt invested considerable money in it. Mr. Platt extended the road to Westfield in 1885, and a year later to Eagletown. Then he was ousted. The road was extended in 1887 to Ladoga, sixty-three miles from Anderson, and further extensions were made as far as Brown's Valley in 1888. In November, 1889, the part lying in Montgomery county was sold at sheriff's sale to L. P. Dickinson, and about this time Harry Crawford became interested in the road. Its bonds, $375,000 6 per cent, payable in gold, were issued in 1887, and are due in 1917. It is covered with a consolidated mortgage of 5 per cent, limited to $20,000 a mile payable in gold, issued in 1891, and due in 1921. The amount of bonds under this mortgage was about $2,000,000.

The firm of Coffin & Stanton, of New York, got hold of some of the bonds and employed a firm of brokers of Indianapolis to review the mortgage to ascertain if it could be foreclosed, the firm to be appointed receivers. The brokers went to Anderson and read the mortgage. In drawing it up Crawford had provided that there must be a six months' default of interest before the bondholders could begin legal proceedings. This meant several years of litigation, and Crawford still has the road.

The School Superintendent's Election.

EDITOR REVIEW:

An article appearing in last week's issue of THE REVIEW, entitled "For School Superintendent" which is incorrect in many respects. Believing you intended to wrong no person, I take the liberty of answering it. The time you refer to was June 1884, when Prof. W. T. Fry, was elected county superintendent by a democratic vote. The article stated that Trustees J. W. Ford, of Clark, and W. W. Morgan, of Union township, threw their influence in such a way that a democrat was beaten and Cantley a republican chosen. John M. Cantley spoken of was a democrat and not a republican, and was then the county superintendent and a candidate for re-election. There were some of the democratic trustees at that time under suspicion, but Mr. Morgan was at no time ever suspected of doing a wrong act. He at all times during the contest, was outspoken and favorable to the re-election of John M. Cantley. The democratic trustees at that time were Joseph Henry, of Coal Creek; Elston Bayars, of Wayne; Wm. L. Denman, of Ripley; James Foster, of Scott; Jas. W. Ford, of Clark and W. Morgan, of Union. The caucus was held in Union township trustee's office from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., the vote being four for Cantley, one for Zook, and one for any democrat to defeat Cantley, (Ford.) When they adjourned to go to the Auditor's office, agreeing among themselves, that under no circumstances would any of them vote for a republican, but there was a doubting Thomas among them. One of them did vote for a republican, Prof. W. T. Fry. Under all caucus rules Prof. Cantley was the democratic nominee, and should have received the votes of all the trustees present at said caucus. One reason why the Cantley men were so persistent, was that Dr. Washburn, of Madison township, said he would vote for Prof. Cantley, if his vote would elect him, and it was thought by many at that time that he had. As to either of them holding office since said occurrence, Mr. Morgan was not a candidate but once since. Then he received the nomination and at the election in 1893, went down with Montgomery, Sparks, Gray, McKee and others.

Yours Respectfully,

JUSTICE.

OUR OVERZEALOUS FRIENDS

Bring a Rebuke to Gen. Wallace in His Race for U. S. Senator by McPherson Post, G. A. R.

The Grand Army members have time and again said that politics was not allowed in any of its councils or meetings, and no doubt many of the members mean this. However two or three G. A. R. posts, notably Lebanon and Darlington, have endorsed Gen. Wallace, now a candidate for Senator. The endorsement received a signal set back last week when brought before McPherson post in this city, and what makes the affair attract more attention in this case, is the fact that Gen. Wallace is a member of this post. A correspondent of the Sentinel says:

"When Gen. Wallace opened up headquarters at Indianapolis and declared his intention of endeavoring to become the successor of the Hon. Daniel W. Voorhees in the United States senate, several of his soldier friends at once forsook other political gods and flocked to the standard of the 'hero of Shiloh.' Among these war-scarred heroes was Capt. Charles M. Travis, of Crawfordville, who is past department commander of the G. A. R. Capt. Travis is an enthusiastic G. A. R. man, and is at the head of the largest pension agency in Indiana. He declared that he intended to have every G. A. R. post in the state demand Wallace's election, and promised the general the vote of every old soldier in the legislature. He visited several country posts last week and secured the passage of resolutions favorable to Wallace's candidacy. On Saturday night he struck a snag, however, where he least expected it. Upon the conclusion of the business meeting of McPherson post of Crawfordville, Capt. Travis offered for passage a series of resolutions commending Gen. Wallace to the legislature, and urging upon that body the propriety of nominating him to succeed Mr. Voorhees. Capt. Travis concluded with a grand flourish, but his remarks were followed by a silence that was awful and painful. It continued until Private Daggett arose and declared that he was bitterly opposed to the passage of the resolutions. The G. A. R.'s province was not to meddle in politics, but to preserve patriotism. It had never interested itself in the political booms of other members of the order who were much more faithful and loyal to it than Gen. Wallace, and this was no day to begin.

Daggett's remarks were followed by others and when the question came to a vote Capt. Travis was the only one who voted for the passage of the resolution.

TWILIGHT MUSINGS.

Somewhere, beyond this earthly vale,
Not seen by mortal eye,
A nobler life awaits the soul,
That puts its trust on high.

In that weird transition hour,
When day passes into night,
Earth's cares fade in the darkness,
Eclipsed by Heavenly light.

The soul with intense longing,
Peers past the pearly gate,
Where in "the house not made with hands,"
Our loved ones watch and wait.

We hear the sweet, soft cadence
Of voices that we love,
And long with them to inherit
The realms of bliss above.

We look upon each feature,
Brighter yet still the same,
We fondly clasp the loving hand,
And softly call each name.

And lost to earthly duties,
We faint with them would stay,
But in the garish lamplight,
Our musings fade away.

—Hattie L. Martin.

Weather Forecasts.

Foster, the weather prophet, who is about as accurate as Hicks, and both frequently miss it so far as this locality is concerned, says of the weather during the remainder of the month: Another storm period begins on the 10th, moving eastward from the Pacific. Another change to warmer with general storm conditions will appear about the 22nd, first in the west, and during the 23rd, 24th and 25th more storms of rain and snow will pass eastward across the country. Heavy gales about the 25th. The last perturbation of the elements fall from the 29th to the 30th. Cold, clearing weather generally at the close of the month.

The trustees of Wabash College were in session this week.

FROM TIME TO ETERNITY.

After a Long Period of Illness Mayor Bandel Dies on Tuesday Morning.

After a sickness extending over seven weeks Mayor Bandel on Tuesday morning near 3 o'clock, died. His illness or the direct cause of his death was peritonitis, and although the best of medical care was at hand nothing could be done to prevent a fatal termination.

Mayor Bandel was of German birth, and was born at Strausburg, Germany, in April 1851. With his parents he came to this country when only four years of age. He resided most of his years before attaining majority at Springfield, Ill. He came to Crawfordville in 1874 to work upon the Over House then under construction and has resided here ever since. He was elected Mayor for the two year term in 1892, and in 1894 re-nominated and elected. He was the father of seven children, four sons and three daughters. He leaves his family well provided for, having owned at the time of his death two houses and lots, some real estate in the country, and three life insurance policies of the value of $5,000. The funeral occurred on Thursday afternoon and was attended by the various social organizations of which he was a member together with many citizens and friends. Mr. Bandel was a popular citizen, of a pleasant social disposition and will be greatly missed.

QUARTERLY PAYMENTS.

The advance demanded by the Gas Company at Lebanon has created much indignation.

The same company that controls the Crawfordville Natural Gas company is also at the head of the one at Lebanon, and Supt. McAlvey manages it.

About one month ago the Indiana Natural and Illuminating Gas Company, headquarter at Crawfordville, adopted a rule requiring patrons here to pay for cookstoves three months in advance instead of in monthly installments, as heretofore. This rule aroused considerable indignation at the time, and there was talk of enjoining the collection, but no action was taken.

Now that the time for the enforcement of the new order has arrived, public indignation has been given a fresh impetus. Several of the consumers have tendered the old monthly rate, but the officials have refused to settle on those terms. The company allows its customers to pay by the month, but adds a penalty of 12½ cents on the regular rates for the privilege. A number have refused to pay the increase and the company has notified all such that unless the new order is complied with the gas will be turned off. January 10 is the last day for payment.

Monday night a largely attended mass-meeting of the citizens was held in the court-house and a committee was appointed, consisting of two from each ward to canvass the sentiment of the citizen body and report at an adjourned meeting Wednesday night, to which the City Council and city attorney will be invited. A plan of action will be decided upon at this meeting.

Paid His Fine.

Bob Osborn, of the New Richmond Enterprise was down this week and before Squire Stilwell by whom he had been previously tried, paid a fine of $10 and costs for the publishing of a lottery advertisement. The fellow that had it done is now doubtless satisfied having had his revenge, no doubt.

Meet All Signed.

Most of the 180 patrons of the electric light plant in town have signed the new rates for light to be furnished from January 1st. A few have not and probably will not, and the light privileges will be cut off from this class next week.

Taylor Thompson is improving slowly since he returned from Martinsville springs.
