HAS AN ITCHING PALM.

J. Frank Hanley, the Lafayette statesman, who wants somebody to push him forward as a candidate for U. S. Senator, it seems, is always looking for the main chance, and instead of donating his services for the cause of the republican party at the last campaign demanded and was paid for them. Like Gen. Wallace in this respect he is probably always ready to bag the game if some one else will go out and scare it in. The Indianapolis News thus speaks of Hanley's aspirations:

"The friends of the other candidates are saying that a man who has served one term in Congress and has made speeches in one presidential campaign ought not get the impression that he has earned a seat in the United States Senate. More than this, his opponents say that Mr. Hanley has been pretty well paid for the best service he has done the party. It is being related that during the last presidential campaign he received pretty good pay for his speeches. The supporters of the other candidates are telling this story:—After Mr. Hanley had made a few speeches he wrote to the chairman of the State committee, suggesting that he receive pay for his work in the campaign. He fixed a price for each speech, which the committee thought too high, and a controversy arose as to the remuneration he was to receive. It is said that the correspondence has been preserved, and may be 'sprung.'

THE MAKING OF WILLS.

It seems to be much easier to make a will than in having its provisions carried out. Even the wills of the best lawyers of the country have been broken when taken to the courts.

Notably of these is the will of Samuel J. Tilden of New York, and Joseph E. McDonald of this State. Both were able lawyers, yet neither of them made a will that would stand. George E. Pullman, the sleeping car magnate and millionaire died the other day. By his will, which, no doubt, was constructed according to the advice from the best lawyers as to its provisions, gives the most of his property amounting to over $7,000,000 to the wife and two daughters, leaving two sons who seem to have been somewhat trifling, with an annuity of but $3,000 per year. That will will be broken is our guess. Shrewd lawyers will find some way to discover it wrong or unjust toward these two sons, and will have it torn to pieces. It seems impossible for a rich man to have his property distributed as he wants it to be after he leaves this world of sorrow and trouble. Others want a slice of his wealth, and if there is any reasonable grounds that they should, they almost always succeed in getting it, costly as it often is to secure it. Pullman's property will be no exception. It will not all be divided as he wished.

WILL GO ON.

Although the attempt of seeking to get European governments in conjunction with this to adopt bimetallism has proven a failure, the fight in favor of it will go on. Those are monarchical governments; a few rule, and the middle and poorer classes have little to say in the management of public affairs. It is not so in America, and it is hoped never will be. The masses here should control and know their own interests better than others above them in a financial scale. The gold standard boiled down is simply in the interest of the favored wealthy. They can accumulate wealth more rapidly and have more control by the single gold standard. Bi-metalism is in the interest as much of one class of people as the other. The gold standard is not. The money kings of Europe can prosper most by it—the middle class cannot. There will be no such thing as international bimetallism. They won't permit it in Europe. We in this country must make the fight favoring it single handed and alone. Our opponents are bond holders and money kings only. Our fight is with them, and must continue on until we win, which cannot be long delayed. The voters are coming over to us.

AMOUNT TO NOTHING.

The constantly rumored notice that the men engaged in the Ripley county lynching of a few weeks ago are known and are to be arrested and punished by the State authorities, will be generally received with feelings of doubt. When nine-tenths of the people of the county in which the lynching occurred approve and endorse it as they most probably do, what are the State authorities going to do about it? The talk and threats coming from the Governor's office regarding it is more in the nature of "make believe." Nothing will be done toward bringing the lynchers to an accounting of the affair, and the whole business will end in smoke.

A SCHEME NIPPED.

Through the New York World a scheme concocted by a Wall street ring of financiers and a few politicians about Washington City to purchase the Union Pacific railway at many millions below its actual value has been exposed, and the proceedings preliminary to its sale stopped. It was sold this week, and the Wall street crowd expected to pay about $33,000,000. The government's claim is $53,000,000 against the property. The money sharks had expected to clear $20,000,000 by the sale. The railroad is paying property now, and is worth much more than the government's claim. The sale has been completed and the government's claim paid in full, much to the chagrin, no doubt, of the crowd that had figured to make vast sums of money off of the government. The World is entitled to the thanks of the nation for its exposure of the scheme, and shows the benefit of a live newspaper to the public. When the sale takes place the full value of the government claim will be paid, no doubt.

CO-EDUCATION.

Co-education for Wabash College has lately been the subject of much discussion among graduates, friends of the institution and the public in general. It has been developed thus far that nine-tenths of the graduates of the college favor the admission of women to the institution to partake of the same opportunities for education that male members enjoy. What the original intention of the founders of the institution were, the Mills, Hoveys, Thompsons and others, cannot in this late day be taken into consideration. The only question is in this day of advancement and intelligence, how long can any educational institution survive that follows up the old ideas and tenets of its creators? Its life can only be prolonged through the charity of its friends. New ideas and up to date management must prevail. The majority of the alumni of the college who are out in the world, and notice the advancement of the age, seem to view it in this light, and in time will force Wabash College to adopt co-education.

POLICE COURT CASES.

Some of Them Have a Humorous Side.

A majority of the cases which we deal with daily are pathetic or dramatic, but there is a humorous side to the work as well, and some of the most ludicrous incidents conceivable come up in our courts, says Scribner's. The most common cause of complaint by one woman against another in tenement-house quarrels is that "She called me out of me name." A woman told me that she wanted a warrant against a female acquaintance because, as she said, "Judge, your honor, she called me a name out of me place, and I want her to prove it." Those petty brawls must be given a hearing and settled by such good advice as the complaint suggests. "He treats me sometimes ridiculous," was the complaint of one much-abused wife against her husband. The man being brought up to answer the charge, and perhaps explain it, answered: "This is a dead piece of jealousy, your honor; don't mind her." An old Irish woman came before me at the Harlem court and wanted her "boy" arrested for misbehaving himself in her house. It came out that her "boy" was 38 years old, and when I said to her that he was a pretty old boy she remarked: "Sure he's not a girl, and I count a boy a man only when he's married." A German with a very much battered head complained that the defendant had made a "dinge" in it, and described the assault about as follows: "He do me a crack on de kopf, like dis, and I do noddles by him." Many of these people seem to feel that when they make a complaint in court they must use all the high-sounding words they know, regardless of their meaning. The result is sometimes amusing enough to upset the dignity of the bench. One woman who displayed a bruised and battered appearance finished her complaint by saying: "He left marks of violation upon me arm as your honor can see for yerself." A man whose truthfulness was questioned said: "Does your honor doubt me voracity?"

A HAUNTED TREE.

The Coon Dogs Turned Tail When They Struck It.

Last fall a party of coon hunters from this city were in the woods in this vicinity and the dogs hunted splendidly until they struck this old tree, says the Danville (Ky.) Advocate. There they tucked their tails between their legs and simply flew. They whined and gave other evidences of fear and could not be coaxed into hunting any more that night. Finally the hunters themselves became scared. One of them declared he heard the sound of a voice as if from some soul in deep distress. This settled it. Every man in the crowd suddenly remembered that he had business in town and toward the whole layout proceeded without further parleying or loss of time. The next day an old gentleman residing in Danville was told of the occurrence and he recalled the fact that he had been one of the party which had a similar experience near this old tree three years ago and he said that the spot had been haunted for many years. A long time ago an old gentleman by the name of Louis Streast was murdered for his money and the murderer had dragged the body to the foot of this tree and covered it with dry leaves. The murderer was never punished by law. A young man named Henderson was arrested, charged with the crime, and at his examining trial was liberated on $5,000 bail. He jumped his bond and disappeared some time afterward.

A New Evolution.

Two or three mornings after the arrival of a new butler the mistress of the house took the opportunity of asking the cook how she liked her new fellow-servant. The report was an excellent one. "In fact, ma'am," said the cook, "the servants' hall is quite a different place now." Not unnaturally the mistress pressed for further particulars. "Well, he talks so cleverly," said the cook. "Last night, for instance, he explained things to us for an hour and a half." "Explained things—what things?" said the mistress, now really interested. "Well," was the reply, "he was telling us how we are all descended from Mr. Darwin."

The "Chink" Was Not Slow.

From the New Orleans Times-Democrat: "You may talk to me about the stolid, stupid Chinese," said an accident-insurance agent, "but I know better. The other day I insured Hop Lee's life for $1,000. A few days afterward a weak-looking 'Chink' called at my office and asked to see me. 'Well?' said I. 'Me wanted five hundred dollar,' he said. 'What for?' I demanded. 'Hop Lee,' responded my caller. 'He send me. Got thousand for dead. Half dead, wantee half money—five hundred dollar.' Say, I didn't do a thing to that Chinaman."

Mr. Asbury Peppers.

"I observe," said the boaster who likes to talk about actor folks, "that Andre Theuriel, the novelist, presented Sarah Bernhardt a sprig of wild thyme on the occasion of her celebration."

"I wonder," said Asbury Peppers, looking thoughtfully at his plate, "I wonder if it was the first wild thyme Sarah ever saw?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Not at Home.
"Why, Emily, your aunt has been dead only a few days and you are wearing a light dress!"
"But you surely don't expect me to wear mourning at home, do you?"—Fleigende Blaetter.
