"After I was induced to try CASCARETS, I will never be without them in the house. My liver was in a very bad shape, and my head ached and I had stomach trouble. Now, since taking Cascarets, I feel fine. My wife has also used them with beneficial results for sour stomach."

WORK OF REPUBLICAN PARTY.

Controlled by Foreign Influence, It Has Legislated For the Favored Few—Corruptionists Enriched at the Expense of American Labor—A Record of Infamy.

Ex-Governor John P. Altgeld, in his speech before the Illinois Democratic convention, among other things said:

The American people have been paying at the national debt which the war created for 33 years, and yet, such have been the industrial and financial policies of the Republican party that today it will take nearly twice as much of American products, nearly twice as much of American labor, to pay what is left of that debt as would have been necessary to pay it all at the conclusion of the war. This is only a sample of all of the acts of that party. Although we were a mighty producing as well as debtor nation, and were therefore interested in keeping up the price of property and in keeping steady the exchange value of money, this Republican party, controlled by foreign influence, legislated in the interests of the few and struck down the value of American property and American products by nearly one-half, thus practically doubling the amount of labor and sweat that was required to pay a dollar of debt. It is the great mortgaging party of the century. It mortgages the property made by the toil of others. It mortgages the inheritance of the American people, and, not content with this, it has reached out and mortgaged the generations yet to come—generations whose fathers are yet unborn, generations whose bread will be shortened to pay mortgages created by this political party, and the vast sums of money thus raised at the expense of the coming toilers of the earth have been spent in riotous living and in the enrichment of manipulators and corruptionists.

The civil war brought not only an eclipse for the Democratic party, but it brought a change of character. From being the powerful champion of the human race it was reduced to the humiliating condition of being a convenience for men who knew not Jefferson, who cared not for humanity and who used government for personal enrichment. Owing to invention, there took place after the war great concentration of capital, and there were first formed great corporations, but subsequently these combined and formed trusts and wiped out competition. These corporations soon discovered that by controlling the government and its policies vast fortunes could be rapidly drawn from the pockets of the American people, and there came forth in the east shrewd manipulators who controlled both of the great political parties and prostituted both to their base purposes. These men got control of the Democratic party and made it a spoilsman's convenience. Our party was robbed of its mission; it was robbed of a voice in human affairs; it straddled everything and concentrated on nothing. Although the spirit of Democracy had founded this republic and the Democratic party had shaped its destiny for more than half a century, there followed a period of about 80 years upon which no Democrat can look with pride. Having no definite purpose to serve, our people devoted themselves to compromising and trading, and instead of carrying out a great mission we spent our energies in the lowlands and played tricks in the underbrush.

But a new time was dawning, a new century was approaching, and the Almighty decided to make preparation for its advent. The human family was again to move forward. An aggressive army was needed. He looked upon the party of Lincoln and found that it stood for exactly the opposite of all the principles for which that great man had stood. He found that the men who now control the conventions and the councils of that party had won their position by bribing legislatures, by polluting the stream of justice, by undermining free institutions and by debauching everything which they touched with their soiled fingers. They formed an association of banditti, operating in the name of law and giving to the children of toil a stone whenever they called for bread.

Then the Almighty turned to the Democratic party. He was familiar with its great achievements, familiar with the great purpose for which it had been organized. He found that a majority of this party were earnest, patriotic men and as ready as ever to make sacrifices. He found that it had for years been ridden and weakened by parasites. He found that the poison of corruption had also to some extent entered its veins, but he also saw that if the parasites were drawn off and if the trimmers and deadheads were cast aside the poison could be cast out and that the party would then be capable of moving forward and fighting greater battles than had before been witnessed. Then there spread over the land a demand for reorganization, and, although the party had been betrayed and its future looked hopeless, there was a demand by the masses that it should be taken up out of the swamps in which it had wandered and come up again on to the high lands.

In 1896 there was a new battlecry, and the scattered and discouraged Democracy rallied and held the greatest assembly of freemen that ever met on this continent. The party cast off the parasites. It cast off the deadheads, which had long ridden it and fed it only on false pretenses. It flung new banners to the breeze. Then it went forth and fought the most gigantic battle ever waged. Its great leader lifted the issue on to high intellectual and

Free Medical Advice

You need a doctor many times when you don't call one. You suffer pain in fifty forms and yet won't call the doctor, because you hope that the pain "will go away after a while." And, too, you know by experience, that that first visit of the doctor is generally followed by many others, with the inevitable consequence of a big bill "for professional services." You don't know what to do for yourself or what to take. But suppose that you could get free, absolutely free, the advice of one of the most

FISH EXPECTED TO DIE.

He Spoke of His Anticipated Death In the First Battle Without Fear.

Hamilton Fish, Jr., had a presentiment of his death in battle before he left San Antonio for the front. While chatting with a party of friends at the San Antonio club a few days before he departed he expressed the belief that he might be killed. The conversation was brought about by an act of gallantry by Mr. Fish.

While the regiment was dashing at full gallop across a field near the little hut of a humble Mexican family a little Mexican girl, about 4 years old, was discovered right in front of the advancing column. The sudden appearance of the child seemed to paralyze all except Mr. Fish, who dashed forward out of the line, and by a trick of horsemanship that he had learned from the Texas plainsmen reached down and lifted the child to his saddle. Colonel Roosevelt personally complimented Mr. Fish for his gallantry.

The night after the occurrence a poor Mexican woman appeared at the camp of the rough riders, and after making inquiry for the soldier who rescued her child found Mr. Fish and gave him a little image of St. Joseph which the child had carried about its neck. The image was of pewter and had been blessed and given to the child at baptism and was supposed to possess the virtue of warding off danger, especially of a violent kind. The Mexican woman charged him never to lose the image, for if he lost it he would be in greater danger than if he had never had it, but Mr. Fish lost it, and it was while talking about it at the club that he expressed the belief that he would be killed in the first battle.

"I have never amounted to much in this world," he said, "and I suppose it is well that I should be killed in battle. My family and friends will have the consolation that at least I died honorably."—Boston Herald.

FRIENDS IN NEW ZEALAND.

Boy Proposed to Form Regiment to Fight For United States.

To the Editor of the New York Herald: New Zealand Britishers are taking an intense interest in the progress of the Spanish-American war—so much so that even boys of 9 and 10 years of age are desirous of helping America. A boy of 10 in Wanganui at school recently proposed to form a regiment of boys who were to provide themselves with guns, get a boat and go to the aid of America.

When the race sympathy is so strong, the leaders of each section of the Anglo-Saxon race should find no difficulty in arranging "now and forever" an indissoluble union. Such a union would go far toward turning the "sword into a plowshare" and consummating the aspirations of Christianity for peace. "God prosper America" is the heartfelt wish of all good Britishers.

CHARLES W. CLAYTON, Wanganui, New Zealand, May 17.

William Keams, a young farmer, came to Lima, O., recently and enlisted in the recruits for Company C, Second O. V. I. He was plowing corn in his father's field near Bluffton when the idea of going to war struck him, and, tying his horse to a fence, he came to this city and enlisted. His parents objected to his going to war and were not aware of his action until the team was found in the evening—Cincinnati Enquirer.

$100

Challenge!

We again make the offer to pay to any charitable institution the sum of $100 for any item advertised by us that we do not offer for sale just as advertised. This is open to all searchers. We court investigation.

We positively will not publish untruths in our ads., and yet some people said, even after we had moved from the old building, that we would not build, but was only using it as an advertising dodge. But the excavating is being done and materials for the new building are being put on the ground every day.
