THE SCHOOL BOOK LAW

A Monument Commemorative of Democratic Wisdom and Fealty to the Best Interests of the People of Indiana

And In Its Operation Saving Millions of Money to the Laboring Men of Indiana In the Cost of School Books For Their Children.

It is a well known fact that prior to 1889, the state of Indiana was in the grasp of a schoolbook trust which was as devoid of conscience as a hungry wolf operating in the midst of a flock of sheep. In writing of this aggregation of insatiable men, who for years had mercilessly robbed the people of Indiana, it is designed to briefly point out to what extent these robberies were perpetrated upon

Working Men seeking to educate their children in the common schools of the state, and which, without let or hindrance, had gone on for years. This schoolbook trust, having ample means at its command, was able to debauch not only a portion of the press, but a large per cent of the school officials of the state, and bring into active operation whenever demanded, a thoroughly equipped army of henchmen to do its bidding and aid it in perpetrating its crimes.

At this supreme juncture the Democratic Legislature

resolved to put an end to this schoolbook spoliation and lift the intolerable burden from parents who had been compelled to purchase its books; and there is not in the legislative history of the state a law more in consonance with justice and righteousness than that enacted by the Democratic legislature of 1889, which emancipated the people from the domination of the schoolbook trust. And here it is worth while to say that the Republican Party, as in the case of the Australian ballot law and the revenue law, took a position in favor of the schoolbook trust, and in flagrant opposition to the welfare of the people of the state. But as intimated, the purpose is to show to what extent the workingmen of Indiana are interested in the financial problem which the Democratic law of 1889 solved for the state.

Enrollment of Schoolchildren.

Officially stated, the number of schoolchildren enrolled in Indiana for the year 1888, the year preceding the enactment of the antischoolbook trust law, was 514,463.

A set of schoolbooks as supplied by the trust cost $9.40, hence it appears that to supply each of the schoolchildren in the state for the year 1888 with a set of books would require the sum of $4,835,952.20.

It is stated by officials connected with the state department of education, that a set of schoolbooks on an average, has to be renewed every four years, and assuming that on an average children are in school 12 years, the cost of renewing schoolbooks under the rule of the trust, would be $14,507,856.60.

It is fair to assume that one-half of the schoolchildren enrolled in the state in 1888 (257,231) were the children of citizens, laborers, mechanics and men working on farms, who were required to pay in 1888, under trust rule, $9.40 for every set of books purchased for their children—amounting to $2,417,976.10.

Under the operation of the Democratic schoolbook law passed in 1889, the cost of schoolbooks was reduced one-half, or 50 per cent. This resulted in a saving to the parents of the schoolchildren of the state, as stated, $2,417,976.10 in the purchase of schoolbooks. And if, as is assumed, one-half of the children enrolled in the common schools of the state in 1888 were the children of parents who work for a living, the saving to them amounted to $1,208,988.05.

And here, again, assuming that during the school age of these children, these sets of books have to be renewed every four years, the saving to wage-workers would amount to the sum of $3,626,964.15 during the 12 years.

Under circumstances, as pointed out, and considering the immense benefits accruing to our fellow citizens whose incomes are derived from their labor the Democratic party has a right, predicated upon its fealty to the interests of labor, to expect that workingmen will not overlook its labors in their behalf.

The London political weeklies see in our war with Spain signs that the United States will soon dictate to the rest of the world.

Admiral Sampson reports that the Spanish warship Maria Teresa will be raised and that the Reina Mercedes can probably be saved.

Wounded regular army soldiers now in Bellevue hospital in New York say the Seventy-first regiment boys fought with great bravery in front of Santiago. The testimony is by men who saw the New Yorkers under fire.

Captain Sigbee of the St. Paul says that when he saw the wrecks of Cervara's ships he felt no exultation, but merely that brave men had died, as was the case when the Maine was blown up.

Vice President Capote of the provincial Cuban republic says he is satisfied that the purpose of the United States is to establish a republic in Cuba and that the Cubans will fulfill their pledge to this government.

The Cuban junta advises no man to go to Cuba at this time unless he is provided with at least $1,000. Men who go there now seeking work will find it impossible to live unless food is given them by the government.

Help for the Hair is what a great many men and women are looking for; help against approaching baldness; help against whitening locks; help to restore the lost gloss to the hair; help against fading tresses; help for the scalp attacked by dandruff. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR offers just such help. It restores gray or faded hair to its original color, gives it length, thickness and gloss, and removes dandruff.

"My hair was rough and broken and began to fall out. The use of but one bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR both checked the falling out and rendered my hair smooth, glossy and in splendid condition. It is the finest of dressings."—MRS. F. L. SMITH, Silver Creek, Miss.

"Some years ago my hair began to fall out and I became quite bald. By advice I tried and very soon my hair ceased to fall out and a new and vigorous growth made its appearance. My hair is now abundant and glossy."—WIS. OS. DUNN, Rockville, Wis.

THE TATTLER.

Miss Helen Gould is said to have declared that she will never marry. She is extremely religious.

Miss Brennan, M. A., is the first woman in Australia to hold three degrees in science and art. She recently gained the B. S. in the Sidney university.

Miss Lillian Keyes, who was formerly one of the workers of the Deaconess house in New York city, has gone to Jamaica to labor for the colored people and the lepers.

Rachel Sanford, who, after devoting her life and fortune to the poor, died recently in the almshouse, was one of the earliest settlers in Brooklyn. She was more than a hundred years old at the time of her death.

Mme. Camilla Urso is teaching the violin this summer in Boston. To a friend in New York she writes: "I have not decided in what part of the world I shall play the violin next season, but probably it will be America."

Mother Katherine, formerly Miss Katherine Drexel of Philadelphia, is the richest nun in the world. She is devoting her life and her fortune to the care and education of Indian children. Her wealth is said to exceed $7,000,000.

Miss Cornelia M. Dow of Portland, daughter of the late General Neal Dow, is the custodian of the Willard fund for the payment of the temple trust bonds. She is said to be a woman of great financial ability and is doing this work gratuitously.

Jessie Lowe of Dayton, Wash., 16 years old, was awakened from a nap on a couch down stairs in her home by a dream that a certain up stairs room was afire. She ran up stairs and found it just as in the dream it had been pictured, and she put out the fire.

Miss Lettie Dewey is the first Mormon woman to be sent into the missionary field. She is to go on a mission to England and will travel "without purse or scrip." It is expected that her power to convert will be equal to that of any of the 1,800 men already in the field working for the church of Utah.

Miss Mary L. Carter has been appointed postmaster at Williamsburg, Mass. The appointment was made upon the recommendation of Representative Lawrence, in accordance with a strong petition of citizens and the endorsement of eight of the ten members of the city committee and four of the five members of the congressional committee.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Mr. Ovide Musin will open a violin school in New York in the autumn.

Mr. Alfred Williams has returned from Paris, where he has been studying for the last year with Signor Briglia.

Mr. R. N. Stephens, author of "The Ragged Regiment," has written a four act drama, "A Soldier of the Revolution," for Mr. Edgar L. Davenport.

The subscription sale for the next Chicago orchestra season is said to be the largest yet chronicled, some sections of the house being almost entirely disposed of.

A new musical piece of nonsense brought out in San Francisco, "The Poster," has the theme of an artist's dream, in which his pictures of actresses and other objects become animate.

Messrs. Smyth and Rice have engaged Mr. E. Burke Scott as business manager of "A Wise Son's Father," the new comedy by Mr. Henry Guy Carlton, which they intend to produce early in the autumn.

Mr. Carl Loewenstein announces that he has made arrangements for the organization of his permanent orchestra, with Mr. Emil Faur as leader, Mr. Nahao Franko as concert master and Mr. Leo Schultz as solo cellist.

THE LEITERS.

Mr. Leiter, however, still retains possession of his remarkable chin.—Chicago Tribune.

Young Mr. Leiter seems to be shy $1,000,000 of his own capital and about $4,000,000 of other people's.—Syracuse Post.

Joe Leiter's handsome features have disappeared from the first page. If "nothing succeeds like success," it is equally true that nothing fails like a failure.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Mr. Joseph Leiter will have some difficulty in explaining how he came to lose so much money in a transaction which he so earnestly declared was not speculation.—Washington Star.

It is estimated that Joseph Leiter lost the million which his sire gave him and a few dollars besides. But it was worth something to become known as the father of the young Napoleon.—Baltimore Herald.

A Great Round-Up For Next Week.

The hot weather is likely to continue for several weeks yet and the special prices we are making on all summer goods gives all an opportunity to be comfortable in thin clothes at very small outlay. For next week we have made still greater reductions on all light weight goods and many of the items will go in a day. We do not mention many of the lots as they are not in sufficient quantity to advertise special. However, there will be something of interest to every visitor to the Big Store next week. New fall goods are in the way and arriving every day and the room is worth more to us than the light weight goods now in stock, so we consider no sacrifice too great to move the stock. We will also make some special prices on large lots of staple merchandise in the great
