RICH VEIN IS STRUCK

Isabella Mine in Colorado an Ultra Bonanza Wonder.

RICHEST STREAK YET DISCOVERED

Two Previous Discoveries That Were Thought Could Not Be Exceeded—The Assay Is Said to Run as High as $70,000 a Ton—Richer and More Extensive Than Any Previously Found—The Stock of the Mine Rises

Colorado Springs, Col., Feb. 21.—The great Isabella mine created a third sensation by encountering for the third time in two months ultra rich bonanza ore. In December a vein carrying $1,000 a ton was opened on the ninth level of the lee shaft. On January 27 a streak in that vein was encountered which assayed on select samples as high as $100,000 a ton. The run of the vein, including the streak, has returned as high as $20,000 from the smelter.

The latest, or third, discovery is a vein somewhat larger and from its location is believed to be the famous Buena Vista vein, whose character is sylvanite. This vein pinched off two years ago. While it was being worked a period of eighteen months it netted the company $300,000 for dividends. The vein was encountered on the tenth level of the old Buena Vista shaft. The management refuses to deny or confirm the strike or to state the values as shown by assays. From a semi-official source, however, it is learned that the value is as high as $70,000. This authority says the vein is richer and more extensive than any one previously opened on the Isabella property.

The two previous strikes advanced Isabella stock from 21 cents to $1.80. A quarterly dividend of 6 cents a share was declared, and after immense sales a reaction brought the price down to $1.06, at which today's call opened. The stock jumped at once to $1.16. The sales reached 58,400.

SICK MAN PACKED IN SNOW.

Heroic Treatment Probably Saved Life of a Pneumonia Victim.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 21.—Charles F. Robertson, who was thought to be dying of pneumonia, is now much better owing to radical treatment administered by his physician. When the crisis came he lost consciousness, his temperature rose to 107, and various tests failed to bring back signs of life. The physician had a rubber blanket placed under the patient and a bed of snow was made. Robertson was then laid in this and more snow was brought to cover his entire body, except his face. It was packed about him and he lay incased for forty-five minutes without showing a sign of returning life. His family believed him dead. At the end of that time the icy covering was removed, and it was noticed that one eyelid quivered a moment and there was also a flickering pulse.

The doctor struck him a blow in the face, and Robertson opened his eyes, and in reply to the doctor's question, "Who am I?" he exclaimed, "Hello, doctor." Robertson is still a very sick man, but he is on the road to recovery.

ROW IN COLORADO SENATE.

Members Try to Settle a Quarrel by a Resort to Queensberry Rules.

Denver, Feb. 21.—There was an angry altercation in the senate when Senator Stewart accused Senator Philip of changing his vote on the bill taxing department stores, for a consideration.

"When any one makes such an insinuation he lies," came back the retort from Philip. "The senator refuses to grant his fellow-members the least honor or integrity."

"The senator lies," replied Stewart. "You called me a liar, and I am going to slap your face," came from Philip, as he started for the door of the chamber. Stewart accepted the deal, and followed. Just as they crossed the threshold Philip swung around to catch his huge adversary under the belt, but was caught by the sergeant-at-arms, who summoned help and escorted the belligerent senator to an ante-room. In the afternoon both men apologized to the other, and an encounter is looked for off the floor.
